On weeknights throughout the event season, a cadre of volunteers come together to reach out to potential participants and corporate sponsors. These volunteers are a great tool for recruiting walkers and donations. Through phone calls, potential walkers are informed about introduction meetings in their area, have questions answered about the walk and the animal shelter, and are motivated to make the decision to register or donate.

Local barbershop chorus is singing for life to save lives

On May 10th the South Shore Men of Harmony are teaming up with the American Red Cross and have joined with over 200 other Barbershop Harmony Society choruses across America and Canada in what could be the largest and most effective blood drive and donor recruitment project in history. The Society "Singing For Life Blood Drive" choruses, quartets and other local musical groups will serve as an all-day draw for local potential donors, resulting in a huge shot in the arm (pun intended) to boost and maintain a 5-10 day blood supply in the communities of North American.

The fact is, nearly 2000 units of blood are needed each day to help those in need right in our own community. The life of Bill Brennan, a 59-year charter member of the Hingham-based chorus, was saved by the transfusion of over 100 units of blood that he required during a recent series of operations. Bill, nearing 90 years of age, is a former resident of Scituate now residing in Linden Ponds, has recovered and returned to the chorus rehearsals and performances. The chorus has pledged a commitment to the donor program that saved Bill's life and has accepted the challenge to collect enough blood to meet the needs of hospital patients year round.

"Giving Blood Now Comes With Background Music" provided by the Men of Harmony Chorus and Quartets have joined the Red Cross team to help ensure that a safe and adequate blood supply is available when needed. Please continue supporting your family, friends, neighbors and coworkers by donating blood on Saturday, May 10, at St.Paul School Hall (behind St.Paul's Church on South St.), 18 Fearing Road, Hingham. The hours for blood donation will be from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m.

It only takes about an hour of time — and one small pinch — to become a hero to someone in need. Every donation is an opportunity to help an accident victim, a surgical patient, or a child battling leukemia, to name a few. Anyone 17 years of age or older, weighing 110 pounds or more and feeling in good health may be eligible to donate blood.

Please call 1-800-GIVE-LIFE (1-800-448-3543) with questions about giving blood and to make an appointment, which will save waiting in line, or visit the Red Cross web site at: www.newenglandblood.org. For the Men of Harmony call: 1-781-337-(SING) 7464.

Help curb underage drinking

Proms. Graduation. Summer vacation.

It's a popular time of year for underage drinking, and parents, teenagers and local officials must embrace a multi-pronged approach to address the problem.

• Parents need to have a frank discussion with their teenagers about the consequences of drinking and driving, ranging from legal troubles to tragic results that can snuff out a bright future. A good idea, too, is to talk to them from the standpoint of people who love them and would be devastated if anything were to happen.

• School districts that have toughened policies on drinking are on the right track. These policies must be enforced, and administrators must let students know in advance that drinking won't be tolerated at proms or other school events and can ruin the memorable experience it's supposed to be.

• Community programs and demonstrations by local law enforcement and others must continue to get the message across to teens about the consequences of underage drinking.

• And finally, there's peer pressure. It can be tough for young people to stand up against what has become part of teen culture, but sometimes one right thinker can influence others.

Events such as proms and graduation are special, and teenagers do not need alcohol to enjoy them. Even one drink can be enough to give someone a blood alcohol content of .02 or higher.

That information should be enough, but despite warnings, some youths continue to illegally consume alcohol, and in some cases, get behind the wheel after doing so.

By taking and maintaining a proactive approach when dealing with underage drinking, parents, officials and teens together can help stop the problem before it starts.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Ripley Road project yields less than reported

TO THE EDITOR:

I was concerned with the article in the Cohasset Mariner (May 2, 2008 edition) "No decision on Ripley Road," an article on the project at 25 Ripley Road, for two reasons. Although my first objection sounds somewhat petty, there is not 6/10th of an acre of land at 25 Ripley Road – there is 5/10th of an acre. The actual plot size is 21,956 square feet and there are 43,560 square feet in an acre. So the actual square footage is 50.4 percent of an acre. With what the developer is proposing, seven units and fourteen parking spots, I think this distinction is significant. The reduced acreage compounds the problems of density, traffic safety, noise and sewer.

Secondly, the developer is proposing two 40B units. The town is required by the Commonwealth to have 10 percent of the town properties as affordable. Although I do not have exact figures, there are approximately 2,800 units in town. For this example, that means that 280 units need to be affordable to reach the 40B threshold. Currently the town has approximately 80 affordable units and so there is a need of approximately 200 more affordable units. This project only provides an additional two units toward that goal.

But actually the net yield is less than two units. The math gets confusing here because the two units are added to the number of affordable units in town or 82, but the seven units are added to the base of housing units in town or 2807. So with our example, we now have 2807 units and 10 percent of these units is 280.7 needed as affordable. Subtracting 82 units from the 280.7 units needed yields 198.7 while before the project we needed 200 units. So basically, this project yields the town only 1.3 affordable units, not 2 units.

This project, therefore, provides little gain toward our affordable housing goal while introducing many problems. It will create a significant traffic problem at the busy corner of Sohier Street and Ripley Road. The density of the project certainly does not fit into the neighborhood and will have a negative impact on the neighbors' housing values. There will be noise issues and there are septic questions. The benefits are negligible while the costs severe. In fact, this project benefits only the developer.

Generosity makes a difference for kids

TO THE EDITOR:

On behalf of the Cohasset Education Foundation, we would like to thank the entire community for making our second spring benefit a tremendous success by all accounts. What an uplifting sight, nearly 300 people coming together to support our public schools, from parents of pre-schoolers to empty-nesters, all unified in one goal: providing the best education possible for Cohasset's children.

There are so many people who made the evening possible. Though too numerous to name individually, all donors will be thanked in an ad planned for this paper in July. Until then, we would like to give express our appreciation to: the business community whose generosity allowed us to auction so many wonderful items; the teachers and administration whose support helped us create imaginative donations for auction; the tireless volunteers who solicited donation items and advertising and who helped with the planning, decorating, and clean up — your help made the event possible; the attendees whose smiles and support made the months of planning well worthwhile! Finally, special thanks to Susan Franklin and Doug Eymer, and to the rest of the CEF board who encouraged and supported us all along the way

Although we are still tallying up revenues and expenses, we are comfortable saying that we exceeded last year's benefit result. Because of your support, the CEF raised enough funds to make a significant difference for our kids, our town and our future. Thank you!

HEALTH NOTES

Cohasset has a new Health Nurse

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

National Nurses Week is celebrated annually from May 6 through May 12. It falls on the birthday of Florence Nightingale, the founder of modern nursing. As you probably know, the Board of Health has long understood and worked to make available the benefits of the Town Nurse. In these days when the primary care physician is stretched too thin and personal attention seems to be a fleeting dream, nurses giving personal care and advice are a mainstay in providing effective health maintenance.

Typically, the healthy person is exposed to the medical profession either through the health insurance assigned primary care physician; a doctor who may have hundreds of patients, many of which he sees only occasionally or through the family doctor. It is only after a complaint becomes chronic that an effective system of communication is established with ones 'doctor' and the doctor becomes privy to sufficient information about a patient to be fully effective in his diagnosis and treatment. Far too frequently, a person with a complaint uses hearsay from an acquaintance or an advertisement of a medicine to replace the analysis of symptoms and a review of medical history that a doctor would provide and which is necessary to prevent misdiagnosis and subsequent complications. Local Pharmacists can provide good information about drugs, but increasingly, they work in an environment which prevents the flow of such information. But for those cases where it's not really necessary to see a doctor, it's often useful to talk with someone who has experience with a large number of patients, many of which may have similar complaints. A nurse is exposed to many complaints and can be aware of the latest illness going through the community, its characteristics and the most successful treatment. You can avail yourself of such experience by a visit to the Town Nurse.

Recently, Judy Fitzsimmons, after many years of dedicated service for both the Social Service League and the Board of Health has retired and Mary Goodwin has become our new Health Nurse. Mary has worked with Judy at health fairs, blood drives, emergency preparedness and on other Health Board duties and looks forward to expanding the outreach provided by the office. She has begun to update the records and brings on line computer savvy to the job of recordkeeping, thus allowing for more time with patients.

Mary hopes to expand her contact with those in Town with minor maladies who may not be interested in waiting in a doctor's office. The Town Nurse's office on the first floor at Town Hall is a resource for information about a variety of illnesses and common complaints. There is a supply of pamphlets about most common illnesses along with advice about common health threats such as West Nile Virus, and now, during tick season, what to do about tick bites and how to protect yourself.

Mary would love to meet you, so if you're in Town Hall on another matter, stop by her office and say hello. Give her a high hand during Nurses Week.

CBB gets back to work in center

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Greenbush

If you have driven around the center of the village you may have noticed that CBB has reappeared and is working on finishing up some of the details. They continue to work on the new parking spaces near the Teen Center. CBB is also starting to work constructing the turn-around at Spring Street at the tracks across from the Cohasset Historical Society. They will also be finishing up their work on Lincoln Lane.

One other interesting commitment the MBTA has is to come back after the railroad has been operating and measure the actual noise and vibration emanating from the train operation. The objective is to compare these measurements with the levels predicted in their pre-project environmental reports. The MBTA and a technical consultant will be visiting locations up and down the line to perform these measurements.

Stormwater stuff

There has been a lot of talk around the town about stormwater. Hardly a day goes by at Town Hall when we don't hear a conversation about stormwater. Over and over we hear from residents who complain about stormwater-related issues caused by nearby construction. Recent EPA rules require that stormwater issues be addressed in most new construction projects of any significant size. A new stormwater By-Law has been passed at the recent Town Meeting to begin addressing stormwater concerns. The issues arising from stormwater are two-fold and involve both flooding and pollution. Both issues are important in Cohasset.

Flooding

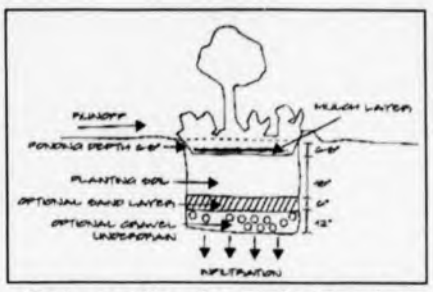
Too much storm water just overwhelms the storm water collection system and floods low lying lands. Years ago, before the rather intensive development we have today this was generally not as important an issue as it is today. Being a tidally restricted coastal Town we can only release stormwater to the ocean when the inland water is above the height of the ocean. So, at high tide the storm water just sits in our low-lying areas awaiting a suitable time for it's outflow.

Solving the flooding problem requires a long-range solution. There is no quick fix. The solutions typically involve major capital projects to temporarily store the stormwater and slowly release it to our brooks, streams as it passes on its way to the harbor. (This is called desynchronization because it delays the cause and effect relationship of the storm and resultant flooding.) Another way to mitigate flooding is via projects that will release floodwater to the ocean more promptly. Cohasset has recently hired an engineering firm to develop a Flood Control Master Plan to address some of these ideas and lay out a plan for identifying solutions. In addition, the Town has also hired an engineering firm to redesign the outfall from Jacob's Meadow to the Harbor with the goal of maximizing the transfer of water between the meadow and the harbor.

Pollution

Another byproduct of stormwater is pollution. When a rain first falls on dry streets, parking lots, rooftops and yards, all of the accumulated road dirt, pollution, fertilizer, etc is washed into our stormwater collection systems and then into the harbor. This initial stormwater flow is called the "first flush." When the first flush storm water enters our estuaries and harbor it clearly does not improve their water quality.

BMPs



The solutions for stormwater pollution fit into a category of devices referred to as BMPs (Best Management Practices). BMPs that have been commonly employed in Cohasset are of two basic types. There are many other designs that can be considered BMPs, but for this article we will focus on the two types that are most prevalent. The first category of device is an underground centrifugal separator. These devices are buried below the ground and take the storm water and separate the debris and particulate matter from the stormwater by spinning it around so that centrifugal force separates and collects the heavier and lighter materials from the stormwater flow. These devices remove debris and particulate matter, and in some cases oil type products. Centrifugal separators can be effective for both high and low stormwater flows. These devices are somewhat expensive and can cost from $15,000 to $50,000, or more installed. Plus, they must be cleaned periodically using highly specialized vacuum equipment. Centrifugal separators have been employed by the MBTA at several locations and the Town has used them for the Forest Avenue project to solve some drainage problems.

The second common type of stormwater clean-up devices is a rain garden. A rain garden consists of a shallow depression along side the roads into which storm water is directed. They are carefully engineered devices. Rain gardens are filled with special soils and plants that filter the stormwater and clean up certain chemicals commonly found in the stormwater. They create a special ecosystem of plants and soils that filter and absorb particulate matter as well. A rain garden's principal function is to capture and treat the first flush from a rain that carries most of the "nasties" that are washed off the land by the first part of the rain. After the first flush passes, the following stormwater is considerably cleaner, because the first flush has washed away a good portion of the surface pollutants.

Individual rain gardens generally have little effect reducing flooding effects because they have a relatively small storage capacity. But, a very large number of rain gardens, distributed throughout a watershed can have an impact on flooding. Rain gardens are generally less capital intensive than centrifugal separators. Depending on their complexity and site they can cost from $2,000 to $20,000, or more to construct. Maintenance of typical rain gardens usually averages several hundred dollars per year against $1,500 to $3,000 for centrifugal separators.

What does A Rain Garden Look Like?

The design of a rain garden is very flexible with regard to plantings, size, capacity, etc. The diagram on this page shows a cross section of a typical rain garden.

In the diagram, storm water is directed to the rain garden from the left. The diagram shows that this particular rain garden has a depth of 6 to 8 inches where water can pool. The ecosystem of the soils and plantings absorb particulate matter and some pollutants from the storm water. In a light rainfall that does not overflow the rain garden; the storm water will then slowly percolate down through the rain garden. In our example, the portion of storm water that does not disperse into the ground is collected by an underdrain system and flows into the storm sewer quite a bit cleaner that it was. (An underdrain is simply is one or more perforated pipes under the rain garden that collect the processed water.) Rain gardens that can be exposed to very high storm water flows will need to be designed to accommodate these flows without overload or damage.

There is a great deal of flexibility in choosing the plants for a rain garden. In some instances, blooming plants have been chosen to create a showy summer flower garden. Or, low lying plants can be chosen if the rain garden is in a place where it should blend into low lying surroundings. The size and shape of a rain garden can vary immensely. They can be long and narrow or wide to fit the available space. The Water Department has added a large number of rain gardens around town. For the most part, you can't even tell where they are since they blend in so well. The maintenance we referred to earlier for rain gardens is needed to replace the plants periodically as needed, or to replace the soils if they have become so loaded with pollutants that the ecosystem has done its job and needs to be rebuilt. Thus, the pollutant loading will ultimately determine the ultimate life of any individual rain garden.

A fancy technical name for a rain garden is a bioretention basin or cell. Rain gardens are often a component of Low Impact Development (LID) for management of the water quality issues resulting from new development projects. We'll all be hearing much more about stormwater and rain gardens, especially when the new Storm Water bylaw kicks in.

Those WhiteHouse weddings

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

Given her choice of the White House or the family ranch in Crawford, Texas, for her wedding to Henry Hager next weekend, Jenna Bush smartly chose the ranch.

Smartly, because in the past most White House weddings have lived up to the classic admonition, "Don't worry. With any luck it won't last."

There have been nine of them, eight daughters and one son, starting with Maria Monroe, who married her first cousin, White House staffer Samuel Gouvernour, in the Blue Room on March 9, 1820.

Most of Washington society was frozen out of the affair since its organizer, Maria's older sister, Eliza, despised the social whirl and only 42 members of the family and friends were allowed to attend the ceremony.

The first public reception was hosted by Commodore Stephen Decatur, the Naval hero of the war with Tripoli, who lived across the street. He was killed in a duel days later and the rest of the public celebrations were cancelled.

John Adams II, son of John Quincy Adams, married Mary Catherine Hellen in the Blue Room of the White House on Feb. 15, 1828, after the lady had jilted John's older brothers, Charles and George. Charles and George refused to attend the wedding.

Elizabeth Tyler, daughter of John Tyler, wed William Waller in the East Room on Jan. 31, 1842, the ceremony performed by the Rev. William Hawley, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church.

The Rev. Hawley must have been the Billy Graham of his day since he also officiated at the Monroe and Adams weddings.

The new Mrs. Waller was only 18 when she married and 26 when she died giving birth to her sixth child, a trait that obviously ran in the family since her father sired 14 children, the last when he was 70 years of age.

Ellen "Nellie" Grant also was 18 when she married Algernon C.F. Sartoris, a minor English nobleman she met when her dad, President Ulysses Grant, sent her to Europe to get away from her dissolute suitors in Washington.

The wedding was called "the great American social event of the century," but Algernon turned out to be every bit as dissolute as the lads in Washington and they divorced. Congress enacted a measure restoring her citizenship.

If any one event can be called the White House wedding of the century it was that of Alice Roosevelt, Teddy's daughter, to Nicholas Longworth, the Republican congressman from Ohio, on Feb. 17, 1906, an event so huge that its news occupied the entire Page 1 of the Washington Post the next day.

The Marine Corps band played the grand march from Tannhauser, the empress of China and Pope Pius X sent gifts, and Douglas MacArthur was among the 12 military aides and eight ushers. But there were no brides maids to detract from Alice.

Two of President Woodrow Wilson's daughters were wed in the White House — Jessie to Francis B. Sayre on Nov. 25, 1913 and Eleanor, 25, to Treasury Secretary William McAdoo, 55 and a grandfather, on May 7, 1914.

Likewise, President Lyndon Johnson had White House weddings for two daughters, Lynda Bird to Marine Capt. Charles Robb on Dec. 9, 1967, and Luci to Patrick Nugent on Aug. 6, 1966.

Luci's wedding was actually at the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception but everything else was at the White House. They divorced 13 years later.

Tricia Nixon tied the knot with Edward Cox in the Rose Garden on June 12, 1971 — - and the next day the New York Times broke the story of what has gone down in history as the Pentagon Papers and the downfall of Richard Nixon began.

Washington story Part 2: Capitol Offenses

DRIVING WHILE TYPING

JOHN LENGYEL

Day 1 of our April vacation week trip to Washington D.C. went fine. We visited points of interest, ate huge portions of rich food, and swam in the hotel pool until it was time for bed. Days 3 and 4 were equally fun and relaxing.

At this time I would like to turn our attention to Day 2.

It began well. Suspiciously well, looking back on it. My wife rose early as she is wont to do despite the luxury of time, because as Ben Franklin once said, when you're early to bed and early to rise you can cut out a good 30 minutes of family time on either end of the day. Franklin might have bumped that up to 45 had he known about Starbucks, which had a shop on the lower floor of the cavernous, hexagonal mall into which our hotel was built, and which, due to some snafu with my wife's order, gave her a free coffee on the morning of Day 2.

That was it. Game over. Starbucks doesn't just give out free coffee without making compensatory adjustments to your karma and the karma of those around you that you're supposed to be loving and protecting. My wife should have known this. She would have taken the free coffee either way, but I like to think she would have warned the rest of us not to leave the hotel.

Unaware that anything in the cosmos was out of balance, we ate breakfast, took the Metro into the heart of Washington and walked over to Pennsylvania Avenue. At this point it was still an ordinary outing with children. Everybody was whining, wanting to be carried, we didn't have enough snacks, it was hot, people were dying of thirst, all five water fountains in the park outside the White House were broken, they couldn't see the President, they wanted to stay till he mowed his lawn, etc. The usual stuff.

The trouble started when we got to the Capitol building. As we were filing through the security gauntlet I was stopped by large military personnel holding what looked to this gunphobe like anti-tank weapons. The charge: possession of baby food. I had about 10 jars of Gerber pears in my backpack, but apparently no baby food is allowed inside the Capitol building since those behind the Great Strained Peas and Liver Melee of 2004 went and ruined everything for the rest of us. My utter lack of a baby wasn't helping my credibility, either; the MPs had seen my whole party go in ahead of me, the youngest of which is almost 8. I would have to either ditch the pears in one of the many convenient baby food disposal units or stay outside and become separated from my family without a cell phone. The choice seemed obvious.

I stayed outside. You'll just have to trust me when I say I really, really needed those pears.

Plus I figured it wouldn't be too hard to hook up with my family again. As I've learned from countless Scooby Doo episodes, when you get separated from a group the first rule is to stay put and let them find you, not to go wandering around randomly through the haunted Museum of Natural History searching for Velma, Fred, and Daphne. But then I remembered that my family couldn't find the Washington Monument if they banged into it snoot-first. They have absolutely no sense of direction. So I disregarded the first rule and began circumnavigating the building; according to the anti-tourist squad the tourist exit was on the south side.

The Capitol Building is gigantic on a good day. It's like half a mile of marble from end to end. On top of that it's surrounded by construction at the moment, and since everything in Washington needs a security perimeter, including construction sites, there was another buffer zone outside the construction fence. And since that layer of security was itself under construction it required its own security perimeter, and so on. I swear to God just walking around that building was an eight-mile hike. I lost sight of it several times, despite the fact that it's the tallest structure in DC. When I finally reached the south side I was told that tourists can also exit on the west side.

For 90 minutes I made sweeps between the south and west exits and the north entrance. I was still alone, and beginning to panic. Meanwhile, I learned later, inside the Capitol building my family was being accosted by a man they called "The Crazy Guy", who was ranting about how he was going to kill all the senators. They could tell right away he was crazy because the Senate wasn't even in session that day. Where all the large military personnel were at that point I don't know, but because Crazy Guy wasn't packing any baby food I guess he wasn't seen as a threat. He was allowed into the gallery and was even given a chance to speak on the floor of the House, making an excellent case for attacking the Confederate Armies at Appomattox and the teaching of intelligent design.

John Lengyel lives in Cohasset. In Part 3 of "Washington Story" a family is found, a lunch is lost, and John hangs on to his pears.

Secondhand smoke still a problem

Most adults in Massachusetts go through their workweek without ever inhaling someone else's cigarette smoke. Unfortunately, many high school students are not so lucky.

Thanks to Massachusetts' statewide Smoke-free Workplace Law, implemented in 2004, secondhand smoke has been eliminated from bars, restaurants, and other workplaces, but as schools reopen for the year, public health officials are sending a reminder that secondhand smoke is still a problem in some Massachusetts schools.

Far from just an annoyance, secondhand smoke is a serious health hazard. In the short term, even brief exposure to secondhand smoke can trigger asthma attacks, ear infections, and respiratory infections in children. Secondhand smoke contains 250 chemicals known to be toxic or carcinogenic, so the long-term effects of exposure are also serious. In a recent report, the Surgeon General states that there is no risk-free level of exposure to secondhand smoke. Every second our children are exposed to secondhand smoke, their health is in danger.

To raise awareness of this important health hazard, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health has distributed flyers, decals and newspaper ads to remind parents, teachers and school administrators to Stop the Secondhand in our schools.

All schools—public and private—are covered by the same workplace law that made bars and restaurants smoke-free across Massachusetts. In addition, tobacco use on all public school grounds, including sports playing fields, is also prohibited. Other state and local laws provide additional protection from secondhand smoke. To report a violation, anyone can call the state's anonymous hotline at (800) 922-1895.

Student smoking and schools

Nine percent of all students admit to smoking cigarettes on school property.

90 percent of adult smokers began smoking while they were teenagers.

One in five Massachusetts high school students (20.7 percent) is a current cigarette smoker.

The nicotine in tobacco is a powerful addictive drug, and once a person starts smoking, it becomes very difficult to quit.

Research indicates that the earlier young people begin to smoke, the greater their permanent lung damage and the more likely they are to become addicted to cigarettes.

(The survey report can be found at http://www.doe.mass.edu/cnp/hprograms/yrbs/05/ch2.pdf)

Facts: Stop the Secondhand!

Smoking on school property is still a problem.

• According to the 2005 Massachusetts Youth Risk Behavior Survey, 9 percent of all students smoked cigarettes on school property in the 30 days before the survey.

• Among current student smokers, 43 percent reported smoking on school property in the past month.

• The percentage of current student smokers smoking on school property in 2005 was significantly lower than it was in 1995. In 2005, the figure was 43 percent, down from 54 percent 10 years before.

The U.S. Surgeon General has concluded that breathing even a little secondhand smoke poses a risk to your health.

• Scientific evidence indicates that there is no risk-free level of exposure to secondhand smoke. Breathing even a little secondhand smoke can be harmful to your health.

• The National Toxicology Program estimates that at least 250 chemicals in secondhand smoke are known to be toxic or carcinogenic (cancer causing).

• Secondhand smoke contains many chemicals that can quickly irritate and damage the lining of the airways.

• Even brief exposure can trigger respiratory symptoms, including cough, phlegm, wheezing, and breathlessness.

Brief exposure to secondhand smoke can trigger an asthma attack in children with asthma.

It is illegal for anyone to smoke in school buildings.

• All schools in Massachusetts are covered under the Smoke-Free Worksite law. This means that it is illegal for anyone to smoke inside a school.

• Since the passage of the Massachusetts Educational Reform Act in 1993, it's been illegal to use tobacco anywhere on school grounds.

• And while we're at it, it's illegal for anyone to smoke on school buses, too—part of the same 1993 Education Reform Act.

Relay For Life planned for June 13-14

An important part of Relay is honoring and remembering those people in our lives who have faced cancer.

Relay for Life is the signature fundraiser of the American Cancer Society. Participants raise money by personally collecting donations and organizing group fundraisers prior to or at the event. The money goes towards cancer research, patient services, advocacy and education. It also provides hope to those how have cancer and their family and friends that a cure is available, it provides hope that cancer can be detected in its early stages and it provides hope that cancer is eradicated in our life time. The Hingham/Hull/Cohasset and Scituate Relay will be held on June 13th and 14th organizations clubs, family, friends and coworkers form teams of at least 8-15people and gather at Cohasset High School on the 13th.

Members of the team take turns walking around the track for the duration of the event. An important part of Relay is honoring and remembering those people in our lives who have faced cancer. Each Relay invites cancer survivors in the community to walk a special Survivors Lap. Another focal point of each Relay is the Luminaria Ceremony, held after dark, where candles are sponsored and lit in honor and memory of our loved ones who have battled this disease. Part of what makes Relay for Life special is its atmosphere — the sense of community, camaraderie and hope that permeates the event from start to finish. Hope has become the catchword of Relay, because hope is what it's all about; the hope that one day we will be free from the fear of this terrible disease, that our children will grow up in a world where cancer is no longer fatal. Relay is a time to do something about a danger that seems so much bigger than us, and to know that we are actually making a difference. It is a time to reflect, to remember those who have been lost and those who can still be saved. And it is also a lot of fun to be there with friends and take part in the activities.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on 11 roll calls from the week of April 28-May 2. There were no important roll calls in the Senate last week. All House roll calls are from debate on the House version of an estimated $28.2 billion plus fiscal 2009 budget.

$28.2 BILLION FISCAL 2009 BUDGET (H 4700)

House 130-19 and 136-19, voted strictly along party lines, approved and sent to the Senate an estimated $28.2 billion fiscal 2009 state budget. The price tag grew by an estimated $200 million during five days of debate. Several controversial amendments were debated on the House floor but most of the work was done behind the scenes. Individual representatives filed dozens of amendments on the same general subject matters including local aid, social services and public safety. They were then invited to "subject meetings" at which they pitched their amendments to Democratic leaders who drafted "consolidated amendments" that were brought to the House floor for consideration. All of these consolidated amendments were easily approved with most of the opposition coming from Republicans who argued that the amendments were too costly. House Democrats successfully defeated several Republican efforts to reduce taxes including one to create a tax amnesty program and another to establish a sales tax holiday that would exempt consumers from the sales tax for two days in August. Democrats also easily defeated a Republican proposal to give another $200 million in local aid to cities and towns. Supporters said that the budget is a fiscally responsible and balanced one that increases local aid and education aid and funds important programs. They argued that members of both parties had an opportunity to have input into the process. Opponents said that the budget is fiscally irresponsible and unbalanced and questioned where the money would come from to fund it. They argued that that the budget does not offer any tax relief, includes wasteful spending, too much money for "pork" projects in favored legislators' districts and insufficient local aid. (A "Yes" vote is for the budget. A "No" vote is against the budget).

DELAY AND ESSENTIALLY KILL $200 MILLION IN ADDITIONAL LOCAL AID (H 4700)

House 138-21, voted mostly along party lines and approved a Democratic-sponsored amendment that would delay and essentially kill a Republican-sponsored proposal requiring 50 percent of any surplus state tax revenue, up to $200 million, to be distributed to cities and towns as additional local aid. The delaying amendment prohibits the GOP proposal from taking effect until a separate piece of legislation that is similar to the proposal, has been filed and approved by the House and Senate through the regular legislative process including public hearings. Two Democrats voted with GOP legislators against the delaying amendment. Supporters of the delay said that the $200 million proposal is a fiscally irresponsible one that would tie the hands of the Legislature and not allow it any flexibility in the future to decide the best and most responsible way to spend any surplus. They argued that the decision would be made in the future - if and when there is actually a surplus. Some noted that the state substantially increased local aid this year and last year to help make up for decreased local aid over the prior three years. Opponents of the delay said that the Legislature cut Lottery LocalAid by $450 million over the past three years when the state's financial situation was in question. They noted that eventually the state ended up with an estimated $1 billion surplus in each of those three years and diverted the money to the state's Rainy Day Fund instead of giving it back to cities and towns. They argued that many communities have been forced to override Proposition 2 1/2 and increase taxes or cut funds for their schools, police and firefighters because of this lost local aid. (A "Yes" vote is for the delay. A "No" vote is against the delay).

EXEMPT AVIATION REPAIRS FROM SALES TAX (H 4700)

House 67-88, rejected an amendment that would maintain the current law that exempts airplane maintenance and parts from the state's five percent sales tax. The House budget eliminates the current exemption. Amendment supporters said that abolishing the exemption would lead to small airline companies moving out of the state's dozens of small airports to New Hampshire and other border states that still have the exemption. They noted that the exemption is a major incentive for small airlines to locate or remain in Massachusetts and hire or continue to employ many workers. Amendment opponents said that the exemption is currently costing the state $9 million which it cannot afford during this fiscal crisis. They argued that the exemption mostly benefits wealthy owners of small private planes and asked why this small group should be rewarded when automobile owners do not receive a similar exemption. (A "Yes" vote is for the exemption. A "No" vote is against the exemption).

SALES TAX HOLIDAY IN AUGUST (H 4700)

House 20-134, voted mostly along party lines and rejected a Republican-sponsored amendment allowing consumers to buy most products that cost under $2,500 on Saturday, August 9 and Sunday, August 10 without paying the state's five percent sales tax. Only one Democrat voted with GOP legislators in favor of the holiday. Amendment supporters said that the holiday would be a boon to retailers and consumers and noted that similar tax-free holidays over the past four years have saved shoppers millions of dollars and resulted in a substantial increase in retail sales for the two days. They argued that the state's sales tax revenue loss would be offset by increased revenue from the meals and gas tax generated by shoppers. Some amendment opponents said that the holiday helps the big box stores more than small operations and actually generates little additional revenue for stores because consumers would buy the products even without the tax-free days. Others argued that establishing the holiday too far in advance would hurt sales over the next three months because consumers would delay big purchases until August. Some said that the Legislature should be looking at broader tax relief and not a tiny tax-free holiday while others argued that the Legislature should not vote for tax cuts when the money could be better spent on worthwhile programs. (A "Yes" vote is for the tax-free holiday. A "No" vote is against the tax-free holiday).

TAX AMNESTY PROGRAM (H 4700)

House 24-129, voted mostly along party lines and rejected a Republican-sponsored amendment creating a tax amnesty program that waives penalties for taxpayers who voluntarily file an overdue tax return or pay a delinquent tax liability within a two-month period between October 1 and December 3 of this year. The program does not waive the tax itself or the interest. Five Democrats voted with GOP legislators in favor of the amnesty. Amendment supporters said that a similar program in 2002 was a huge success that raised $173 million. They argued that implementing the program this year would generate millions of dollars in increased tax revenue that the state can use to balance the budget and fund important programs. Amendment opponents said that proponents have not presented an estimate of how much an amnesty program would bring in this year. They argued that frequent adoption of an amnesty program would be counterproductive and become something that is expected by taxpayers. (A "Yes" vote is for the tax amnesty. A "No" vote is against the tax amnesty).

STUDY REQUIRING SOME COLLEGES TO PAY NEW EXCISE TAXES (H 4700)

House 136-18, voted mostly along party lines and approved an amendment that would impose an excise tax on private universities that have an endowment fund in excess of $1 billion. The tax would be 2.5 percent of the institution's funds that exceed $1 billion. Current state law exempts nonprofit institutions, including universities and hospitals, from paying property taxes. The Democratic leadership, on a voice vote without a roll call, successfully added a section prohibiting the new tax from being implemented until the Department of Revenue produces a study on the economic impact of the new tax and issues a report. Only one Republican voted with the Democrats in favor of the amendment.

Some supporters of the study said that the tax might be a good idea. They said that the study would simply allow accurate estimates of the economic impact and noted that it is irresponsible to impose a new tax without knowing the consequences. Others said that they are simply opposed to this new tax and argued that these endowments are an important cushion for universities. They noted that they voted for the study as a way to defeat the new tax. Some said that many schools already pay their host communities millions of dollars under the voluntary Payment in Lieu of Taxes (PILOT) program that encourages institutions to provide money to their host communities through a wide variety of ways ranging from outright cash payments to scholarships for local students. Opponents of the study said that the House should not have added the delaying amendment and instead should have voted on the tax itself. Some noted that they would support the tax while others indicated that they would have voted against it. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment that both provides and delays the new tax. A "No" vote is against the amendment).

EXEMPT ALL GUN SAFES FROM THE STATE'S SALES TAX (H 4700)

House 59-94, rejected an amendment that would exempt all gun safes from the state's five percent sales tax. Current law exempts only commercial gun safes that are used by businesses. Amendment supporters said that expanding the exemption to home safes would provide an incentive for gun owners to properly store their guns and keep them out of the hands of children. They argued that the exemption would cost only $1 million which is a worthwhile investment that would likely save some children's lives. Amendment opponents did not offer any arguments. (A "Yes" vote is for exemption. A "No" vote is against it).

DO NOT REQUIRE PRESCRIPTION PLAN (H 4700)

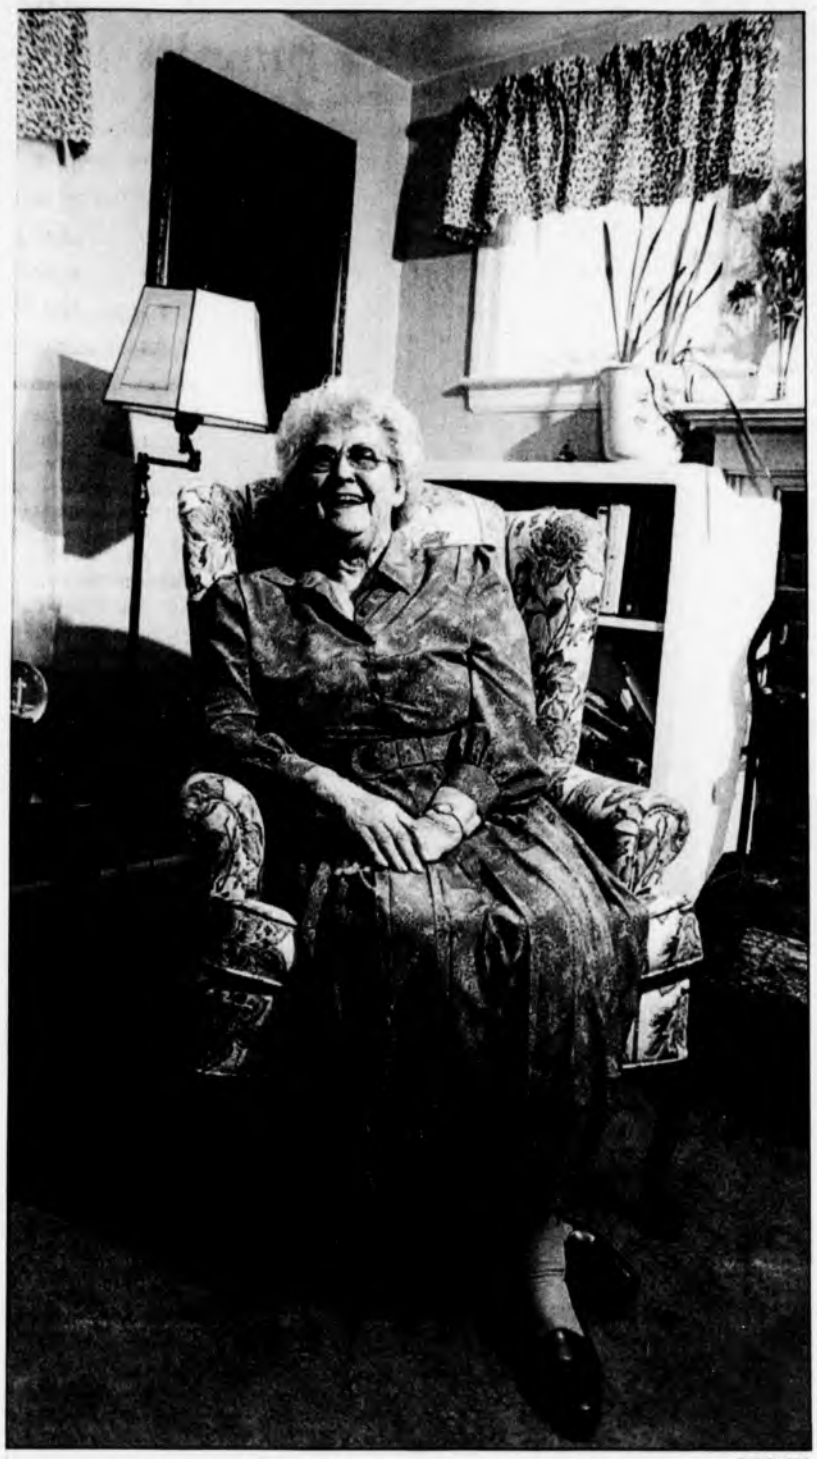
House 29-128, rejected an amendment requiring the state to offer at least one health plan that does not include prescription coverage. The amendment was filed in response to a recent vote by the Connector Authority, the group that implements the state's health care reform law, requiring that beginning in January 2009, a person have prescription coverage as part of his or her health insurance plan in order to satisfy the state's requirement that all residents have health insurance coverage or face a financial penalty. Amendment supporters said that requiring the prescription coverage is putting health insurance out of the reach of many of the people that it was intended to help. They argued that it makes it too expensive for many self-employed people and others and results in their choosing not to purchase any health insurance and instead pay the financial penalty for not having it. Amendment opponents said that prescription coverage is an integral part of health insurance and should be a requirement. They argued that even if a person does not need the coverage now, he or she might eventually need it in the future. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment requiring the state to offer at least one health plan that does not include prescription coverage. A "No" vote is against the amendment requiring the state to offer at least one health plan that does not include prescription coverage).

BAN SMOKING AND POSESSION OF TOBACCO FOR YOUTHS UNDER AGE 18 (H 4700)

House 24-131, rejected an amendment prohibiting a minor under 18 from possessing or smoking cigarettes or any other tobacco product. Current law prohibits minors from buying tobacco products but does not prohibit them from possessing or smoking them. Current law also prohibits anyone, except parents, from giving tobacco products to their minor children. The bill repeals the parental exemption and prohibits anyone from giving tobacco to minors. The amendment also imposes 20 hours of community service and/or fines on minors who are caught with tobacco. Another provision allows police officers, school officials and local boards of health to confiscate any tobacco products possessed by minors. Amendment supporters said that it is ridiculous to prohibit minors from buying cigarettes but allow them to smoke them if they can obtain them illegally. They argued that it is time to get serious with the efforts to combat youth smoking. Some amendment opponents said that the ban goes too far and argued that there are better ways to combat youth smoking than criminalizing it. Others noted that the amendment is well-intentioned but objected to the provision that allows police officers and school officials to confiscate cigarettes from these minors. They argued that this may work well in rural and suburban communities but big city police officers have more important youth crime problems on their hands. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment prohibiting anyone under 18 from possessing or smoking cigarettes or any tobacco product. A "No" vote is against the ban).

STUDY IMPOSING PROPERTY TAX ON TELEPHONE POLES AND WIRES (H 4700)

House 131-25, approved an amendment creating a commission to study and report by June on the possibility and effect of allowing cities and towns to impose local property taxes on above ground poles, wires and switching equipment owned by telecommunications company. Under current law, their poles and wires are exempt from local property taxes while electric companies and wireless companies are required to pay property taxes on poles and wires. The amendment would replace a proposal that would simply allow cities and towns to impose the tax, without requiring a study. The tax exemption was established in 1915 to offer an incentive to the phone company to bring telephone service to rural areas. Sponsors of the amendment said that imposing the tax would generate an estimated $77 million annually in property taxes. Some amendment supporters said that they support taxing the telecommunications companies but are agreeing to the study as a compromise in order to build a consensus. In fact, Rep. Carl Sciortino (D-Somerville), the sponsor of the original proposal allowing the taxation, was also the sponsor of the amendment replacing the tax with the study. Others said that they have not yet made up their minds on the tax but would prefer to get more information on its impact prior to voting on it. Some opponents of the study said that they simply favor the tax and argued that a study would delay its impelementation or kill it. Others said that they oppose the tax and hope that the study will delay and eventually kill it. Some said that their position on the tax aside, they feel that this issue has been studied for years and prefer to have an up or down vote on the tax itself. The state Appellate Tax Board in March issued an order allowing the taxation of poles and wires of telecommunications companies. The order is being appealed and the Department of Revenue has ruled that communities are allowed to collect the property tax but are prohibited from spending it until the appeal is decided. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment replacing the tax with a study. A "No" vote is against the study).



LOWER FIREARMS FEE (H 4700)

House 75-83, rejected an amendment that would reduce the firearms licensing fee from $100 to $40 and expand to six years the length of time for which the license is valid. Under current law, the license is valid for five or six years, depending on the birthday of the license holder. The state receives $75 of the current $100 fee while the local community gets $25. Under the new $40 fee, local communities would still receive the same $25 while the state's share would be reduced to $15. Amendment supporters said that the fee was raised in 1998 in order to fund a new and more efficient system of licensing. They argued that the system is now in place and it is time to reduce the fee. Amendment opponents said that the state cannot afford the revenue loss. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment reducing the fee to $40. A "No" vote is against the reduction and favors the $100 fee).

She was one of the early members of the recreation committee, the forerunner of the Recreation Commission, which set up the recreation department. She and her late husband, Gerald Stanton, were founding members of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

For obituary, see page 30

Always thinking of others, Stanton even kept a turkey or roasting chicken in the freezer in order to prepare and deliver them to any family undergoing a crisis. She loved knowing and chatting with Clayspring Road neighbors and was often known to sit on a chair in her front yard to catch up with a passersby.

Because her children lived outside of town in recent years they are now hearing many fond memories and anecdotes of their mother from neighbors and friends. They say one of the character traits that shines through in many of the stories is that Stanton never hesitated to speak her mind.

"When she thought something was wrong, she would try to fix it," says Barker. Her outspoken nature led her to write many letters to the Mariner and the Patriot Ledger over civic issues and she was never at a loss for words on the floor of Town Meeting.

For years, Stanton has expressed her anger and frustration at the heavy front doors in the newer portion of Town Hall that were nearly impossible for her to open in her later years. She would have to be accompanied to Town Hall by a neighbor or friend or wait for someone to come along to open the doors for her.

"I know it meant a lot to her," says Quigley. Ensuring the handicapped had equal access was a cause close to her heart. Her late son, Robert "Buzz" Stanton, was a quadriplegic.

"She was his primary caregiver for over 30 years," says Barker. She and her husband never thought of not caring for him at home.

Growing up Jerry wonders how his mother balanced everything she did. On School Committee meeting nights, she would always make sure there was something for dinner before heading out to the meeting.

"It was always unpredictable, sometimes indescribable, but usually edible," he says with a laugh.

In addition to raising four kids, Stanton was a fifth grade teacher for 20 years in Hingham Public Schools, retiring in 1976.

"I wish I had known her as a teacher," says Murphy, who was also a teacher for many years. "I bet she ran a tight ship and had high expectations for her students. She's somebody the kids would have admired."

A lifelong learner and avid reader, both Quigley and Murphy say she enjoyed having intelligent discussion.

"She loved to get her updates on what was going on at Town Hall and who was doing what," says Quigley. "We didn't always agree on things, but we were always able to have a discussion.

"She was very direct, straightforward, you never had to wonder what she thought," Quigley says with a laugh. "She was a friend and a role model. As I continue to age I hope to be a little bit like her—independent, not afraid to speak my mind and continue to be interested in the goings on in town."

She did so much for her family, for the community and for causes she believed in, even her children wonder how she ever did it all.

"I just go day by day. Whatever has to be done, has to be done. Somehow it all fits in," Stanton told the Mariner in 1998 as she had just celebrated her 80th birthday.

"She was part of the greatest generation," says Jerry. "We were fortunate to have her as long as we did."

Secondhand smoke still a problem

Most adults in Massachusetts go through their workweek without ever inhaling someone else's cigarette smoke. Unfortunately, many high school students are not so lucky.

Thanks to Massachusetts' statewide Smoke-free Workplace Law, implemented in 2004, secondhand smoke has been eliminated from bars, restaurants, and other workplaces, but as schools reopen for the year, public health officials are sending a reminder that secondhand smoke is still a problem in some Massachusetts schools.

Far from just an annoyance, secondhand smoke is a serious health hazard. In the short term, even brief exposure to secondhand smoke can trigger asthma attacks, ear infections, and respiratory infections in children. Secondhand smoke contains 250 chemicals known to be toxic or carcinogenic, so the long-term effects of exposure are also serious. In a recent report, the Surgeon General states that there is no risk-free level of exposure to secondhand smoke. Every second our children are exposed to secondhand smoke, their health is in danger.

To raise awareness of this important health hazard, the Massachusetts Department of Public Health has distributed flyers, decals and newspaper ads to remind parents, teachers and school administrators to Stop the Secondhand in our schools.

All schools—public and private—are covered by the same workplace law that made bars and restaurants smoke-free across Massachusetts. In addition, tobacco use on all public school grounds, including sports playing fields, is also prohibited. Other state and local laws provide additional protection from secondhand smoke. To report a violation, anyone can call the state's anonymous hotline at (800) 922-1895.

Student smoking and schools

Nine percent of all students admit to smoking cigarettes on school property.

90 percent of adult smokers began smoking while they were teenagers.

One in five Massachusetts high school students (20.7 percent) is a current cigarette smoker.

The nicotine in tobacco is a powerful addictive drug, and once a person starts smoking, it becomes very difficult to quit.

Research indicates that the earlier young people begin to smoke, the greater their permanent lung damage and the more likely they are to become addicted to cigarettes.

(The survey report can be found at http://www.doe.mass.edu/cnp/hprograms/yrbs/05/ch2.pdf)

Facts: Stop the Secondhand!

Smoking on school property is still a problem.

• According to the 2005 Massachusetts Youth Risk Behavior Survey, 9 percent of all students smoked cigarettes on school property in the 30 days before the survey.

• Among current student smokers, 43 percent reported smoking on school property in the past month.

• The percentage of current student smokers smoking on school property in 2005 was significantly lower than it was in 1995. In 2005, the figure was 43 percent, down from 54 percent 10 years before.

The U.S. Surgeon General has concluded that breathing even a little secondhand smoke poses a risk to your health.

• Scientific evidence indicates that there is no risk-free level of exposure to secondhand smoke. Breathing even a little secondhand smoke can be harmful to your health.

• The National Toxicology Program estimates that at least 250 chemicals in secondhand smoke are known to be toxic or carcinogenic (cancer causing).

• Secondhand smoke contains many chemicals that can quickly irritate and damage the lining of the airways.

• Even brief exposure can trigger respiratory symptoms, including cough, phlegm, wheezing, and breathlessness.

It is illegal for anyone to smoke in school buildings.

• All schools in Massachusetts are covered under the Smoke-Free Worksite law. This means that it is illegal for anyone to smoke inside a school.

• Since the passage of the Massachusetts Educational Reform Act in 1993, it's been illegal to use tobacco anywhere on school grounds.

Relay For Life planned for June 13-14

Relay for Life is the signature fundraiser of the American Cancer Society. Participants raise money by personally collecting donations and organizing group fundraisers prior to or at the event. The money goes towards cancer research, patient services, advocacy and education. It also provides hope to those how have cancer and their family and friends that a cure is available, it provides hope that cancer can be detected in its early stages and it provides hope that cancer is eradicated in our life time. The Hingham/Hull/Cohasset and Scituate Relay will be held on June 13th and 14th organizations clubs, family, friends and coworkers form teams of at least 8-15people and gather at Cohasset High School on the 13th.

An important part of Relay is honoring and remembering those people in our lives who have faced cancer.

Members of the team take turns walking around the track for the duration of the event. An important part of Relay is honoring and remembering those people in our lives who have faced cancer. Each Relay invites cancer survivors in the community to walk a special Survivors Lap. Another focal point of each Relay is the Luminaria Ceremony, held after dark, where candles are sponsored and lit in honor and memory of our loved ones who have battled this disease. Part of what makes Relay for Life special is its atmosphere — the sense of community, camaraderie and hope that permeates the event from start to finish. Hope has become the catchword of Relay, because hope is what it's all about; the hope that one day we will be free from the fear of this terrible disease, that our children will grow up in a world where cancer is no longer fatal. Relay is a time to do something about a danger that seems so much bigger than us, and to know that we are actually making a difference. It is a time to reflect, to remember those who have been lost and those who can still be saved. And it is also a lot of fun to be there with friends and take part in the activities.

Author Barrow to sign books at Buttonwood

Buttonwood Books & Toys will welcome children's author Annie Barrow at 11:30 a.m., on Wednesday, May 14, at Buttonwood Books & Toys, Shaw's Plaza, Route 3A.

Barrows will be signing copies of "Ivy and Bean Take Care of the Babysitter" as well as other books from the series. The main characters, Ivy and Bean, are 7-year-old girls who perfectly complement one another. Bean is wild and messy while Ivy is quiet and steadfast. The stories are humorous and the pencil-like drawings from illustrator Sophie Blackall are the perfect accompaniment to the witty text. These books are an excellent choice for emerging readers. Barrows lives in northern California, and is on book tour for "Ivy and Bean Take Care of the Babysitter," the newly published fourth book in the series.

Those who are unable to attend and would like to order a personalized or signed copy can call Buttonwood at 781-383-2665.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local representatives' votes on 11 roll calls from the week of April 28-May 2. There were no important roll calls in the Senate last week. All House roll calls are from debate on the House version of an estimated $28.2 billion plus fiscal 2009 budget.

$28.2 BILLION FISCAL 2009 BUDGET (H 4700) — Y/Y

House 130-19 and 136-19, voted strictly along party lines, approved and sent to the Senate an estimated $28.2 billion fiscal 2009 state budget. The price tag grew by an estimated $200 million during five days of debate. Several controversial amendments were debated on the House floor but most of the work was done behind the scenes. Individual representatives filed dozens of amendments on the same general subject matters including local aid, social services and public safety. They were then invited to "subject meetings" at which they pitched their amendments to Democratic leaders who drafted "consolidated amendments" that were brought to the House floor for consideration. All of these consolidated amendments were easily approved with most of the opposition coming from Republicans who argued that the amendments were too costly. House Democrats successfully defeated several Republican efforts to reduce taxes including one to create a tax amnesty program and another to establish a sales tax holiday that would exempt consumers from the sales tax for two days in August. Democrats also easily defeated a Republican proposal to give another $200 million in local aid to cities and towns. Supporters said that the budget is a fiscally responsible and balanced one that increases local aid and education aid and funds important programs. They argued that members of both parties had an opportunity to have input into the process. Opponents said that the budget is fiscally irresponsible and unbalanced and questioned where the money would come from to fund it. They argued that that the budget does not offer any tax relief, includes wasteful spending, too much money for "pork" projects in favored legislators' districts and insufficient local aid. (A "Yes" vote is for the budget. A "No" vote is against the budget).

DELAY AND ESSENTIALLY KILL $200 MILLION IN ADDITIONAL LOCAL AID (H 4700) — Y

House 138-21, voted mostly along party lines and approved a Democratic-sponsored amendment that would delay and essentially kill a Republican-sponsored proposal requiring 50 percent of any surplus state tax revenue, up to $200 million, to be distributed to cities and towns as additional local aid. The delaying amendment prohibits the GOP proposal from taking effect until a separate piece of legislation that is similar to the proposal, has been filed and approved by the House and Senate through the regular legislative process including public hearings. Two Democrats voted with GOP legislators against the delaying amendment. Supporters of the delay said that the $200 million proposal is a fiscally irresponsible one that would tie the hands of the Legislature and not allow it any flexibility in the future to decide the best and most responsible way to spend any surplus. They argued that the decision would be made in the future - if and when there is actually a surplus. Some noted that the state substantially increased local aid this year and last year to help make up for decreased local aid over the prior three years. Opponents of the delay said that the Legislature cut Lottery LocalAid by $450 million over the past three years when the state's financial situation was in question. They noted that eventually the state ended up with an estimated $1 billion surplus in each of those three years and diverted the money to the state's Rainy Day Fund instead of giving it back to cities and towns. They argued that many communities have been forced to override Proposition 2 1/2 and increase taxes or cut funds for their schools, police and firefighters because of this lost local aid. (A "Yes" vote is for the delay. A "No" vote is against the delay).

EXEMPT AVIATION REPAIRS FROM SALES TAX (H 4700) — N

House 67-88, rejected an amendment that would maintain the current law that exempts airplane maintenance and parts from the state's five percent sales tax. The House budget eliminates the current exemption. Amendment supporters said that abolishing the exemption would lead to small airline companies moving out of the state's dozens of small airports to New Hampshire and other border states that still have the exemption. They noted that the exemption is a major incentive for small airlines to locate or remain in Massachusetts and hire or continue to employ many workers. Amendment opponents said that the exemption is currently costing the state $9 million which it cannot afford during this fiscal crisis. They argued that the exemption mostly benefits wealthy owners of small private planes and asked why this small group should be rewarded when automobile owners do not receive a similar exemption. (A "Yes" vote is for the exemption. A "No" vote is against the exemption).

SALES TAX HOLIDAY IN AUGUST (H 4700) — N

House 20-134, voted mostly along party lines and rejected a Republican-sponsored amendment allowing consumers to buy most products that cost under $2,500 on Saturday, August 9 and Sunday, August 10 without paying the state's five percent sales tax. Only one Democrat voted with GOP legislators in favor of the holiday. Amendment supporters said that the holiday would be a boon to retailers and consumers and noted that similar tax-free holidays over the past four years have saved shoppers millions of dollars and resulted in a substantial increase in retail sales for the two days. They argued that the state's sales tax revenue loss would be offset by increased revenue from the meals and gas tax generated by shoppers. Some amendment opponents said that the holiday helps the big box stores more than small operations and actually generates little additional revenue for stores because consumers would buy the products even without the tax-free days. Others argued that establishing the holiday too far in advance would hurt sales over the next three months because consumers would delay big purchases until August. Some said that the Legislature should be looking at broader tax relief and not a tiny tax-free holiday while others argued that the Legislature should not vote for tax cuts when the money could be better spent on worthwhile programs. (A "Yes" vote is for the tax-free holiday. A "No" vote is against the tax-free holiday).

TAX AMNESTY PROGRAM (H 4700) — N

House 24-129, voted mostly along party lines and rejected a Republican-sponsored amendment creating a tax amnesty program that waives penalties for taxpayers who voluntarily file an overdue tax return or pay a delinquent tax liability within a two-month period between October 1 and December 3 of this year. The program does not waive the tax itself or the interest. Five Democrats voted with GOP legislators in favor of the amnesty. Amendment supporters said that a similar program in 2002 was a huge success that raised $173 million. They argued that implementing the program this year would generate millions of dollars in increased tax revenue that the state can use to balance the budget and fund important programs. Amendment opponents said that proponents have not presented an estimate of how much an amnesty program would bring in this year. They argued that frequent adoption of an amnesty program would be counterproductive and become something that is expected by taxpayers. (A "Yes" vote is for the tax amnesty. A "No" vote is against the tax amnesty).

STUDY REQUIRING SOME COLLEGES TO PAY NEW EXCISE TAXES (H 4700) — Y

House 136-18, voted mostly along party lines and approved an amendment that would impose an excise tax on private universities that have an endowment fund in excess of $1 billion. The tax would be 2.5 percent of the institution's funds that exceed $1 billion. Current state law exempts nonprofit institutions, including universities and hospitals, from paying property taxes. The Democratic leadership, on a voice vote without a roll call, successfully added a section prohibiting the new tax from being implemented until the Department of Revenue produces a study on the economic impact of the new tax and issues a report. Only one Republican voted with the Democrats in favor of the amendment.

Some supporters of the study said that the tax might be a good idea. They said that the study would simply allow accurate estimates of the economic impact and noted that it is irresponsible to impose a new tax without knowing the consequences. Others said that they are simply opposed to this new tax and argued that these endowments are an important cushion for universities. They noted that they voted for the study as a way to defeat the new tax. Some said that many schools already pay their host communities millions of dollars under the voluntary Payment in Lieu of Taxes (PILOT) program that encourages institutions to provide money to their host communities through a wide variety of ways ranging from outright cash payments to scholarships for local students. Opponents of the study said that the House should not have added the delaying amendment and instead should have voted on the tax itself. Some noted that they would support the tax while others indicated that they would have voted against it. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment that both provides and delays the new tax. A "No" vote is against the amendment).

House 59-94, rejected an amendment that would exempt all gun safes from the state's five percent sales tax. Current law exempts only commercial gun safes that are used by businesses. Amendment supporters said that expanding the exemption to home safes would provide an incentive for gun owners to properly store their guns and keep them out of the hands of children. They argued that the exemption would cost only $1 million which is a worthwhile investment that would likely save some children's lives. Amendment opponents did not offer any arguments. (A "Yes" vote is for exemption. A "No" vote is against it)

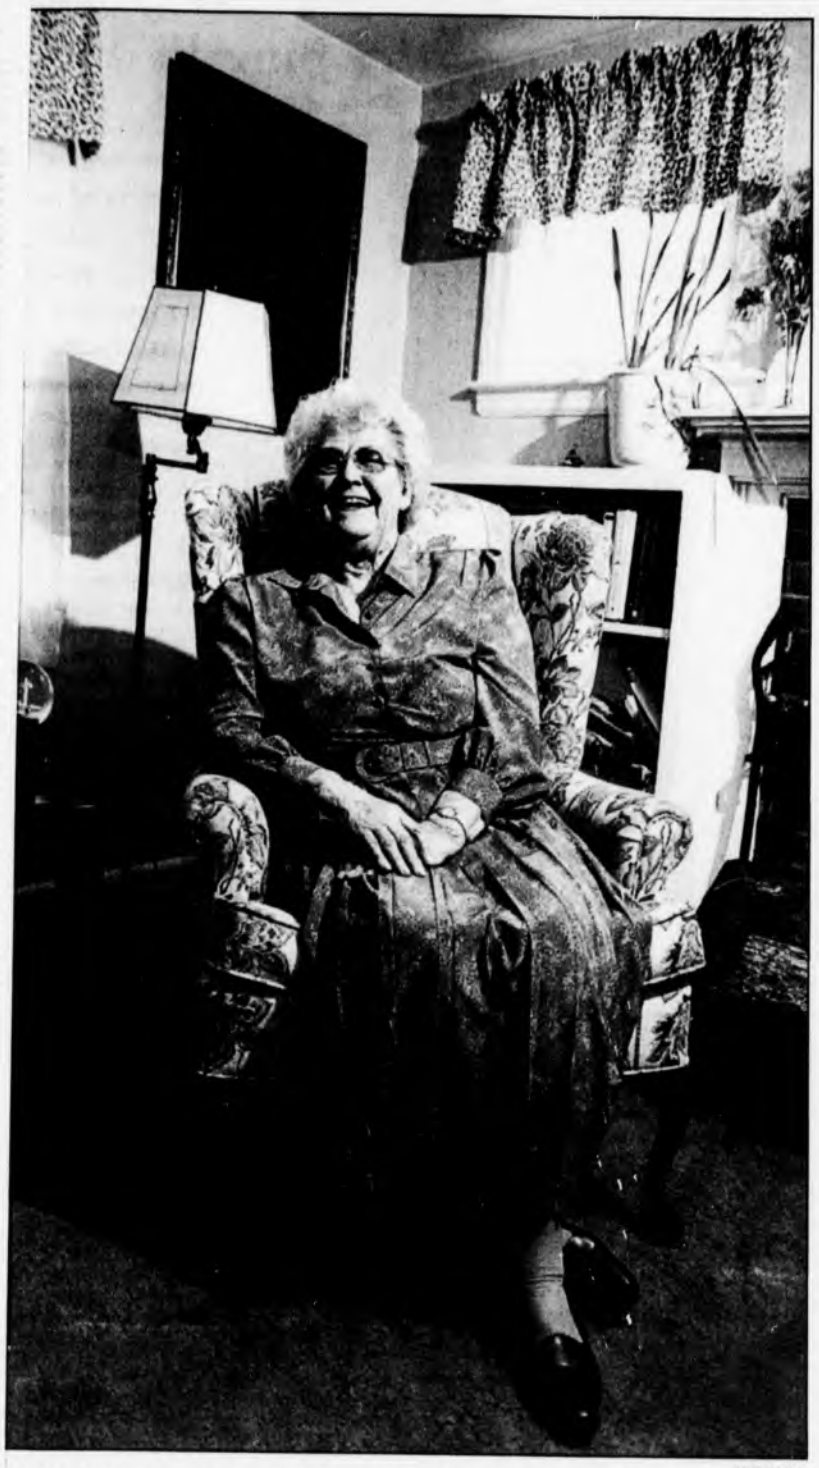
DO NOT REQUIRE PRESCRIPTION PLAN (H 4700) — N

House 29-128, rejected an amendment requiring the state to offer at least one health plan that does not include prescription coverage. The amendment was filed in response to a recent vote by the Connector Authority, the group that implements the state's health care reform law, requiring that beginning in January 2009, a person have prescription coverage as part of his or her health insurance plan in order to satisfy the state's requirement that all residents have health insurance coverage or face a financial penalty. Amendment supporters said that requiring the prescription coverage is putting health insurance out of the reach of many of the people that it was intended to help. They argued that it makes it too expensive for many self-employed people and others and results in their choosing not to purchase any health insurance and instead pay the financial penalty for not having it. Amendment opponents said that prescription coverage is an integral part of health insurance and should be a requirement. They argued that even if a person does not need the coverage now, he or she might eventually need it in the future. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment requiring the state to offer at least one health plan that does not include prescription coverage. A "No" vote is against the amendment requiring the state to offer at least one health plan that does not include prescription coverage).

BAN SMOKING AND POSESSION OF TOBACCO FOR YOU THIS UNDER AGE 18 (H 4700) — Y

House 24-131, rejected an amendment prohibiting a minor under 18 from possessing or smoking cigarettes or any other tobacco product. Current law prohibits minors from buying tobacco products but does not prohibit them from possessing or smoking them. Current law also prohibits anyone, except parents, from giving tobacco products to their minor children. The bill repeals the parental exemption and prohibits anyone from giving tobacco to minors. The amendment also imposes 20 hours of community service and/or fines on minors who are caught with tobacco. Another provision allows police officers, school officials and local boards of health to confiscate any tobacco products possessed by minors. Amendment supporters said that it is ridiculous to prohibit minors from buying cigarettes but allow them to smoke them if they can obtain them illegally. They argued that it is time to get serious with the efforts to combat youth smoking. Some amendment opponents said that the ban goes too far and argued that there are better ways to combat youth smoking than criminalizing it. Others noted that the amendment is well-intentioned but objected to the provision that allows police officers and school officials to confiscate cigarettes from these minors. They argued that this may work well in rural and suburban communities but big city police officers have more important youth crime problems on their hands. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment prohibiting anyone under 18 from possessing or smoking cigarettes or any tobacco product. A "No" vote is against the ban).

STUDY IMPOSING PROPERTY TAX ON TELEPHONE POLES AND WIRES (H 4700) — N



House 131-25, approved an amendment creating a commission to study and report by June on the possibility and effect of allowing cities and towns to impose local property taxes on above ground poles, wires and switching equipment owned by telecommunications company. Under current law, their poles and wires are exempt from local property taxes while electric companies and wireless companies are required to pay property taxes on poles and wires. The amendment would replace a proposal that would simply allow cities and towns to impose the tax, without requiring a study. The tax exemption was established in 1915 to offer an incentive to the phone company to bring telephone service to rural areas. Sponsors of the amendment said that imposing the tax would generate an estimated $77 million annually in property taxes. Some amendment supporters said that they support taxing the telecommunications companies but are agreeing to the study as a compromise in order to build a consensus. In fact, Rep. Carl Sciortino (D-Somerville), the sponsor of the original proposal allowing the taxation, was also the sponsor of the amendment replacing the tax with the study. Others said that they have not yet made up their minds on the tax but would prefer to get more information on its impact prior to voting on it. Some opponents of the study said that they simply favor the tax and argued that a study would delay its impelementation or kill it. Others said that they oppose the tax and hope that the study will delay and eventually kill it. Some said that their position on the tax aside, they feel that this issue has been studied for years and prefer to have an up or down vote on the tax itself. The state Appellate Tax Board in March issued an order allowing the taxation of poles and wires of telecommunications companies. The order is being appealed and the Department of Revenue has ruled that communities are allowed to collect the property tax but are prohibited from spending it until the appeal is decided. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment replacing the tax with a study. A "No" vote is against the study).

LOWER FIREARMS FEE (H 4700) — Y

House 75-83, rejected an amendment that would reduce the firearms licensing fee from $100 to $40 and expand to six years the length of time for which the license is valid. Under current law, the license is valid for five or six years, depending on the birthday of the license holder. The state receives $75 of the current $100 fee while the local community gets $25. Under the new $40 fee, local communities would still receive the same $25 while the state's share would be reduced to $15. Amendment supporters said that the fee was raised in 1998 in order to fund a new and more efficient system of licensing. They argued that the system is now in place and it is time to reduce the fee. Amendment opponents said that the state cannot afford the revenue loss. (A "Yes" vote is for the amendment reducing the fee to $40. A "No" vote is against the reduction and favors the $100 fee).

1999 Citizen of the Year interview. She was one of the early members of the recreation committee, the forerunner of the Recreation Commission, which set up the recreation department. She and her late husband, Gerald Stanton, were founding members of the Cohasset Sailing Club.

Always thinking of others, Stanton even kept a turkey or roasting chicken in the freezer in order to prepare and deliver them to any family undergoing a crisis. She loved knowing and chatting with Clayspring Road neighbors and was often known to sit on a chair in her front yard to catch up with a passersby.

Because her children lived outside of town in recent years they are now hearing many fond memories and anecdotes of their mother from neighbors and friends. They say one of the character traits that shines through in many of the stories is that Stanton never hesitated to speak her mind.

"When she thought something was wrong, she would try to fix it," says Barker. Her outspoken nature led her to write many letters to the Mariner and the Patriot Ledger over civic issues and she was never at a loss for words on the floor of Town Meeting.

For years, Stanton has expressed her anger and frustration at the heavy front doors in the newer portion of Town Hall that were nearly impossible for her to open in her later years. She would have to be accompanied to Town Hall by a neighbor or friend or wait for someone to come along to open the doors for her.

"I know it meant a lot to her," says Quigley. Ensuring the handicapped had equal access was a cause close to her heart. Her late son, Robert "Buzz" Stanton, was a quadriplegic.

"She was his primary caregiver for over 30 years," says Barker. She and her husband never thought of not caring for him at home.

Growing up Jerry wonders how his mother balanced everything she did. On School Committee meeting nights, she would always make sure there was something for dinner before heading out to the meeting.

"It was always unpredictable, sometimes indescribable, but usually edible," he says with a laugh.

In addition to raising four kids, Stanton was a fifth grade teacher for 20 years in Hingham Public Schools, retiring in 1976.

"I wish I had known her as a teacher," says Murphy, who was also a teacher for many years. "I bet she ran a tight ship and had high expectations for her students. She's somebody the kids would have admired."

A lifelong learner and avid reader, both Quigley and Murphy say she enjoyed having intelligent discussion.

"She loved to get her updates on what was going on at Town Hall and who was doing what," says Quigley. "We didn't always agree on things, but we were always able to have a discussion.

"She was very direct, straightforward, you never had to wonder what she thought," Quigley says with a laugh. "She was a friend and a role model. As I continue to age I hope to be a little bit like her—independent, not afraid to speak my mind and continue to be interested in the goings on in town."

She did so much for her family, for the community and for causes she believed in, even her children wonder how she ever did it all.

"I just go day by day. Whatever has to be done, has to be done. Somehow it all fits in," Stanton told the Mariner in 1998 as she had just celebrated her 80th birthday.

"She was part of the greatest generation," says Jerry. "We were fortunate to have her as long as we did."

fashion show. The organizers hope to have a special Farmer's Market on a piece of the common.

One of the main events will be an "automobile Concours d'Elegance" where antique cars will parade through the village and the common, then park on South Main Street for up close viewing.

Around 6 p.m. Cohasset restaurants will set out tables to tastes of their favorite dishes. Gourmets and gourmands will be asked to judge the food in three categories: main dish, clam chowder and dessert.

"We hope to get all the restaurants and food providers in Cohasset to participate," Pinel said.

While many of the activities are still in the early portion of planning, it's clear the organizers will ensure Cohasset Day has a full agenda.

Pinel promised Cohasset Day will have something for everybody, "it is Cohasset Day, it is for everyone. It's for the young and the not so young…we want those visiting Cohasset to enjoy the town and to come back."

The EDC has been meeting with public safety officials to iron out the safety aspects of the event, which will involve several road closings.

"Our main concern is keeping Elm Street and North Main clear because that's our main emergency response lane," Fire Chief Robert Silvia said.

Police Chief James Hussey said figuring out the manpower needed for the event and the amount of barricades needed to be finalized. The Selectmen suggested the EDC stay in communication with the Water and Sewer Commissions because the construction will be ongoing on North Main Street around the time period of the event.

"The star of the show will be the Cohasset, its co-stars will be the residents and visitors attending the event. It's a day to enjoy the town and to be proud of the town."

— Alain Pinel, EDC member

Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr made clear the town would not be able to put any money toward the costs associated with the event from police details to Port-A-Potties.

"We realize this is a first time event for the town and the onerous is on us to produce a quality event," said Peter Brown, chairman of the EDC. The event organizers will rely on ticket sales and sponsorships to put on the first annual event, but Brown said if the event is successful he was optimistic the town could provide some sort of funding next year.

"To the extent feasible every bit of help would be welcome. We'd like to dress up (the town) as well as possible for the event. We want the town to be beautiful," said Pinel, indicating landscaping and litter clean up before the event could be items.

Tickets will be sold for the event beginning Friday, Aug. 15, at local businesses. Before the event, family tickets will go for $25 and individual tickets will be sold for $12 each. On the day of the event, family tickets will be $30; individuals $15.

In addition to the ticket revenues, the EDC is hoping to defray the cost of the event by gathering sponsors in three levels: Minot Light ($1,000), Cohasset Harbor ($500), Cohasset Common ($100).

The net proceeds from the event will benefit future EDC initiatives, charities and non-profits.

The selectmen resolved unanimously to support the event in whatever capacity they could.

Common curbing up for discussion

• Current asphalt curbing on the Common could be replaced with granite.

• Robert Jason Road and William B. Long Road could each be made one way and parking spaces removed from residential side of North Main St.

"There are a bunch of different solutions brought to bear, but most involve some significant change in one way or another," said Brennan. "I tried to float an underground parking, but I guess the pond is in the way," quipped Brennan.

Both Gruber and Brennan stressed the need for a timely decision because of the construction schedule.

"We need to make some decisions in a pretty short time period," said Brennan, giving the drop-dead date as mid-June for a decision to be made.

Brennan likened the Common curbing issue to the similar curbing decision made during the Village revitalization a few years back, "we put in proper curbing and it took some getting used to but it made the village safer and aesthetically better."

Selectman Ralph Dormitzer said the first step would be to establish a set of principles to guide them to a decision.

"We have to make sure there is no less parking, if anything we should increase parking," said Dormitzer. "We don't want to mess with the Common either."

Dormitzer said keeping the Common green should be a priority and the change in roadway repaving should not include more blacktop. He suggested options like more aesthetically pleasing pavers or cobblestones be explored.

Selectman Paul Carlson said the option to make Robert Jason Road and William B. Long Road one-way streets made sense. That option would create 16 parking spaces on Robert Jason Road and William B. Long Road, but take away the current 15 spaces on one side of North Main St.

Although the presentation was the first time Fire Chief Robert Silvia had heard of the issue, he said anything that could be done to open up Common area (which often has cars parked on both sides of the street) would help in getting the large fire trucks through the congested area.

Although the project includes budget line items for the grinding and re-paving of the street, due to an oversight the budget does not include the cost for granite curbing. If the decision is made to install granite curbing, financing options will need to be explored. The curbing will not be installed until spring 2009, said Brennan, giving the town some time to find the money.

Selectmen said they would think about what other boards/organizations they would like to discuss the issue with before making a decision. Pratt said even a public forum on the issue may be advisable.

"It's a special area and I think we need to take that into account. We really want to preserve that area," said Selectman Karen Quigley.

Laxers stave off Indians attack

Ferocious comeback nipped Tuesday afternoon

The Cohasset boys lacrosse team raced out to a 9-3 lead on the road Tuesday, but then barely held on against a scrappy Hanover team to win 9-8. The Skippers needed a defensive stand (in their zone defense) of nearly two minutes at the end of the game to secure the victory.

Cohasset now has a record of 9-3 on the season.

At the start of the game, it looked like Cohasset would dominate the contest easily. Chuck Czerkawski won the first face off cleanly, scooped the ground ball, and quickly passed to Will Wise who found Johnny Wade alone on the side of the crease for a perfect fast break goal.

Seconds later, Czerkawski again won the face-off clean and drove in alone for a hard, high-rising shot which found the cage. Nate Porter made a great stop in goal to keep Hanover off the board. Mike Grimm picked up a ground ball on the sideline, ran the length of the field, passed to Wise who assisted to Mark Flibotte who buried the shot high to low.

After less than three minutes, the Skippers had a three-goal lead and their face break offense was humming. However, Hanover scored the next two goals, one on a failed Cohasset clearing pass, to stay in the game. After dodging from behind and drawing a slide, Grimm found Gordon Smith alone on the high crease for a quick stick goal and a 4-2 Cohasset lead after one period.

The Skipper defense stood tall at the outset of the second quarter. Porter made a stop at point blank range and Jake Cuneo, Anderson Lynner, Vin Curran and Dana Valentine pressured the Hanover offense whenever they entered the offensive zone.

Freshman Thomas Flibotte made a great strip on the man-down defense and clearing run to kill one penalty. After still another Cohasset penalty, Cuneo checked the ball out of his attackman's stick, made a long run through the middle of the field and found Grimm who quickly turned and passed to Mark Flibotte for a rare man-down goal. Less than two minutes later, Flibotte again scored roll dodging from the side while Hanover had the man advantage.

After an early Hanover score at the start of the second half, Cohasset went on a run to build its big lead. Flibotte found Grimm alone making a back door cut and Grimm buried the shot. PJ McCaw picked up a tough ground ball, found Wise up top who hit a streaking Flibotte for still another goal.

Then Grimm came out of a free-for-all scramble with the ball and assisted to Flibotte who beat the Hanover goalie to the short side for a six goal lead. However, Cohasset's seemingly insurmountable lead did not hold up very well against a game Hanover team that would not quit.

The Indians scored five unanswered goals to close out the game and force the Cohasset defense to make the big defensive stand at the end. Fortunately, Porter, Cuneo, Anderson, Curran, Nick Lieberman, John Maher, Alec Livingstone, and Cliff Musto rose to the challenge.

Cohasset head coach Stew Curran was not pleased.

"We did not play for the full 48 minutes today and seemed to fall asleep particularly on offense in the final 15 minutes," Curran said. "We were fortunate to walk away with the win and will need to play much better as tournament time approaches."

Mark Flibotte led Cohasset scoring with 5 goals and 1 assist. Mike Grimm had 1 goal and 3 assists and Will Wise had 3 assists. Cohasset hosts Mashpee Wednesday and Weston Thursday past Cohasset Mariner deadline.

Skippers cage Bulldogs

Bats come alive for softball team

By Joel Racicot
JRACICOT@CNC.COM

The Cohasset High girls softball team may be coming around after all. It took half the season to get on track but the youthful Skippers pulled of a major 9-8 win Wednesday, May 7, against Rockland at Freedom Field.

They improved to 2-9 overall and 1-5 in the South Shore League with the victory.

"They played terrific ball today," Cohasset coach Rob Spofford said. "It's coming together, the bats are coming together."

Brittney Pinkus earned her first varsity win throwing a complete game, three-strikeout game against the Bulldogs. Christine Coner went 3-for-4 with a home run and two doubles. Meredith Kelly hit her third home run of the season going 2-for-3.

Marissa Tangherlini left after the second inning but not before a two RBI single got things started for the Skippers. Cohasset trailed 4-2 after two innings. The Skippers took a 9-5 lead until Rockland scored three runs in the sixth inning. Cohasset held of the Bulldogs comeback, and Pinkus sent them packing, in a one, two, three inning in the seventh.

"We could have folded after Rockland came back, but we didn't," Spofford said.

Cohasset has been buy this week with a 20-16 loss to Mashpee on the road Monday, May 5, and 6-2 loss Tuesday at Abington.

The Skippers really got the bats going against the Falcons.

Carly Salerno went 3-for-4 with a triple. Coner continues to rip the ball, going 2-for-3 with a pair of triples. Tangherlini went 2-for-5 with three RBI. Kristen Monaco set the table getting on base and

Bats struggle, pitching strong

Green Wave win pitcher's duel

Despite struggling at the plate for two consecutive games, the Cohasset High boys baseball team split their first two games this week with a win over Mashpee and a loss to Abington.

Sam DeGiacomo (Sr.) started and finished the Mashpee game for Cohasset, leading the Skippers to a 4-0 victory. Cohasset head coach Al Gallotta called the performance, "the best effort of the season for him."

This effort consisted of a complete game shutout where DeGiacomo allowed only five hits, gave up only four walks, and struck our eight Mashpee batters.

Although the Skippers did score four runs in the game, overall the team struggled at the plate. Cohasset only got five hits, two of them coming from senior catcher Kyle Pinkus, a single and a triple. And only two of Cohasset's runs came on RBI's as Mashpee errors helped the Skippers out.

Brendan Doonan (So.) and Chris Rose (Sr.) each had RBI singles. DeGiacomo got the only other hit for the Skippers.

The hitting woes only got worse for the Skippers against the Green Wave of Abington, a game that at the time was virtually for first place in the league. The Skippers lost the game 3-0, as senior Brian Hill pitched relatively well but received no support from his offense.

"He pitched well enough for us to win if we could have got some hits," said Gallotta about Hill's effort. Gallotta did recognize that it was not the pitcher's best performance of the season. Only two of the runs given up by Hill were earned, and the pitcher did record seven strikeouts, but the Cohasset bats only found the gaps four times.

Hill got himself out of numerous jams; two being with the bases loaded that had potential to open up the game for Abington. Fortunately, Hill was able to work out of them and end the two bases loaded jams with strikeouts.

As a team, the Skippers struck out a total of 11 times, as Abington's ace pitcher was dominant the entire game. He allowed only four Skippers' to get hits, and all four hits were singles. The four singles were by Rose, Doonan, and seniors Kenny Muir and Dave Snowdale.

Cohasset's offense will have to pick up if they want to continue the fight for first place in the South Shore League.

The Skippers are set to face Norwell at home Monday, May 12. Match time is 3:30 p.m. Thursday, May 8, the boys played at Harwich past Cohasset Mariner deadline.

The girls are 8-1 overall with their only loss coming Friday, May 2, against Patriot League powerhouse Hingham. Since then they defeated Mashpee, 3-2, and Abington, 5-0. The girls played Thursday, May 8, at home against Harwich past Cohasset Mariner deadline.

Monday, May 12, the girls are scheduled to face Norwell on the road at 3:30 p.m. For all intents and purposes it will decide the winner of the South Shore League.

If the girls win they should be the frontrunners for an outright championship. If they lose they are still in the running for a co-championship. See next week's Cohasset Mariner for game information.

Both the boys and girls will be taking part in the state individual tournament this weekend. The boys will be at Wellesley High School and the girls will be at Hingham High School.

Girls Youth Lacrosse Notes

With youth teams from Hingham opting to take the day off rather than travel to Cohasset in the rain, it was only the Cohasset Blue youth teams that got in games in the drizzle of May 4, traveling to the Hatherly School to play at the new Ryan Flannery Field.

It was the 11-and-Under girls (grades 3 and 4) who started the day off, and after Cohasset Blue had beaten Scituate's Blue team at the end of April, the girls might have been hoping for more of the same, but Scituate's White team avenged the loss in a tightly controlled contest that was closer than the 5-2 final score suggests.

Cohasset center Lilli Smith controlled the draws from the beginning. This allowed middies Holly Maher, Ellie Jackish, Lanie Schwartz, and Danielle Picot to run an aggressive offense, keeping the early game in the Scituate zone.

Cohasset scored first as Abbie McLean transitioned the ball into the Scituate zone; after Scituate briefly knocked the ball away, Colleen McGowan picked up the loose ball and fired a shot to the upper right corner of the net. With two minutes left in the half, Cohasset scored again as Lanie Schwartz picked up a loose ball behind the net, lost her defender coming around the left side and found the bottom left corner of the net for her team-leading fourth goal of the season.

Clair Glavin played a tremendous half in goal – the first time she has tended the net for the Blue – making 5 saves and triggering the transition game with tight clears to the wings. Megan McElgunn, Madeline Schwandt, Margaux Robbins and Olivia Sanderson stood out on defense, holding back an aggressive Scituate attack.

Scituate came back strong in the second half, however, scoring three unanswered goals to put Cohasset on its heels. Cohasset's momentum was stalled three times midway through the half by close foul calls that reversed play deep in the Scituate zone.

Minnie Stavis and Jackish continued to pressure the defense, refusing to let the game get away. With 5 minutes left in the game, Regan O'Donnell was fouled five yards from the mouth of the goal. After a loose ball scrum, O'Donnell emerged with the ball again but was fouled a second time. Play resumed outside of the zone where O'Donnell was given the ball once more.

On the whistle; O'Donnell drove to the left side of the net, rolled a defender and scored to the bottom right, but the official waved off the goal saying that Regan's foot had crossed a faintly painted crease. Though Cali O'Neil, Madigan O'Neil and Maggie Queenan continued to pressure from the attack position, the Blue couldn't manage to come back. Scituate finished off the match with two more goals to close out the game with a 5-2 edge.

13-and-Under (grades 5 and 6)

The 13-and-Under Blue team won its third straight game, topping Scituate White by a score of 10-7. Cohasset started fast with Lexa Grasz controlling the draw, sprinting up the middle of the field and swinging the ball to the right wing and Jackie Driscoll, who ripped one into the net for a quick 1-0 lead. The Blue team would take a 3-0 lead on goals by Kathryn Dunn and Grasz before Scituate responded and the game would be back and forth until the second half.

Cohasset regained control in the second half by dominating the ground balls. Dunn was fierce, scooping ground balls between two and three Scituate players, while Rebecca Brown and Maggie Ernst joined in with strong efforts as well. Scituate pulled to within two goals before the Blue team reeled off several goals. Micaela Braun, Molly Fitzgerald and Dagmar Seppala scored – the latter netting a slick free-position shot – and Victoria Bryan scored her first goal of the season on an amazing backhand shot from in tight, putting the game well in hand.

Shannon McGowan anchored the defense with two ground balls, two interceptions and an assist. Goalie Olivia Blackburn continues to impress with seven saves and has stopped almost 60% of the shots she has faced this season.

15-and-Under (grades 7 and 8)

The Cohasset Blue 15-U team took to the soggy day in Scituate as if they would have rather been warm and cozy at home, giving up four goals and squandering any chances through the first 14 minutes of play. At that point, the team scored on two consecutive direct-free position shots – one from Nicole Hajjar, the other from Kristen Alecander – to cut the deficit in half, only to see Scituate answer with two goals to make the score 6-2 going into the break.

From there, however, Cohasset started to play with more energy. Whitney Jaffe answered a Scituate goal, and then Mariel Teague took the ensuing draw, raced down the field and blasted a shot past the Scituate goalie. When Scituate scored off the ensuing draw, Cohasset answered on its next possession, as Jaffe fed Kate Bodner for a quick-stick score. The assist made Jaffe the all-time leader in helpers for the Cohasset girls youth program with 19.

Scores from Alison Whelan and Danielle Healy made it a one-goal game with all of the momentum seeming to be with the visitors, but a bad turnover after a great stop by goalie Sarah Evans – who finished the day with 6 saves – led to a Scituate goal.

Whelan's second goal made it 9-8, but was answered by Scituate. Jaffe then worked her way around a double team to bring it back to a one-goal game with less than two-minutes left.

It would not be enough, however, as Scituate scored quickly on its next possession, and then weathered a furious Cohasset offensive charge. Cassedy Gwynn scored with 8 seconds remaining in the game to make it 11-10, and Cohasset won the final draw of the day, but could not advance the ball to get a last crack at the net.

Boys Youth Lacrosse Notes

The U-11 White team stepped it up a notch or two this past weekend with a decisive 6-2 win over Pembroke. The scoring started early in the first period with a solo goal by Graham Blackburn. Dan Axelson won the next face-off, fed it to Graham Schwandt who shot but the shot was deflected by Pembroke's goaltender.

Schwandt came back to score after a great fast break, ending the day with one goal and an assist as well as three clears. Throughout the first half the team got excellent play by Alex Fusco and Sam Arnold. Sam won a number of key ground balls, clearing it to our offense.

Fusco also had an excellent day with three clears and number of key groundball plays. Attackmen Charlie DeVries and Gavin Dunkelberger also played a smart game by keeping the ball in play.

The score was 5-1 at the end of the half.

Pembroke looked much more confident in the second half. They made three quick shots in the first minutes, which were deflected by newcomer Charlie Swartwood in his debut as goalie.

Charlie then scored a goal as a middie in the forth. Chris Norton was also strong at the midfield with an assist for the day and a number of key clears.

Dan Axelson continues to prove his ability to play every position with poise, scoring two goals and excellent play across the midfield. Defensemen Jackson Dutton and Will Lucier continued to frustrate Pembroke by turning back the fast break on forth quarter goalie Sam Arnold.

Jack Osten also showed great skills winning two ground ball battles. Newcomer Jack Speer showed his team a great effort with a few groundballs and a clear to the offense. The last score of the game came from a fast break by Graham Schwandt, who passed the ball to Chris Norton at the top of the box, who then fed the ball to Scottie Whelan for a goal.

In all, it was an excellent effort by the White team. They played as one cohesive unit, maintained their positioning on the field and never quit in man-for-man play.

Cohasset Blue jumped out on top of Dartmouth Sunday with a first quarter 5-0 advantage. Everything came together for this young team from the initial face-off.

Jack Donoh.ue dominated on the midfield line and took five for the day with no losses. He also added an assist and several ground balls. A.J. Kucinski (5 goals and 2 assists) and Michael McKelvey (4 goals and 1 assist) led the scoring for the Blue Team and had Dartmouth on their heals all afternoon.

Michael Durkin had a breakout game and netted two scores on a couple of sweet drives to the cage. Alex Norton and J.D. Dietrich alternated time between midfield and defense and the two big guys came away with 3 goals and 12 ground balls.

Kyle Ferreira netted 1 and just missed another following a catch in front of the cage. Sean Mavilia and Owen Burchill were outstanding in terms of ball control and just plain hard-nosed lacrosse.

Cole Joslin also chipped in a score and assisted on two others while scooping up a total of 11 ground balls on the day. Jimmy Farren was more than steady at Midfield and came up with four groundballs; making sure Cohasset retained the ball during the game.

Finally on offense, Evan Baldry made his debut on attack with a lot of impact. Evan was key in breaking up a number of clears by the Dartmouth Defense and helped keep the ball on Cohasset's offensive end.

The defense was totally dominant and frustrated Dartmouth's attack all afternoon. Davis Cronin made a great clear late in the game dodging players and moving the ball over the midfield line with a sensational run. Levante Haber playing defense for the first time picked up a pair of ground balls and provided excellent coverage.

Taggart Eymer, and Liam Prescott were anchors for the defense and held Dartmouth to only four shots on goal for the entire game. Alternating in goal were Brian Counihan and first time in the cage Wyatt Dominguez. Both goalies showed their ability to make big plays and direct the defense. Counihan has been nothing less than spectacular all season long making some incredible stops in previous games and keeping games close.

All in all it was the best game of the year and showed what good passing and field position means to winning games. The final tally was Cohasset 16-3.

"We are really coming together," Spofford said. "Maybe we can put a nice run together. I told them losing to Abington is not bad, we played well in the game. Our pitching staff is young but (Christine) Coner pitched terrific, she really kept them off balance."

Tennis benefit for Children's Hospital

Save the date for Cohasset's longest-running tennis tradition, which swings into action again this summer to benefit Children's Hospital Boston beginning Friday, July 18th through Sunday, July 20th. The popular weekend tennis tournament dates back to the 1950's, when Cohasset's legendary philanthropist Jesse Cox gathered family and friends for a charitable game of tennis to benefit some of the neediest children and their families at Children's Hospital.

The event was a tremendous success and soon became an annual summer tradition. In the past 10 years alone, more than $100,000 has been raised to benefit patients and their families at the hospital, earning the Cohasset Tennis Benefit a commemorative plaque in the Children's lobby. This year all proceeds will help fund the Pediatric Trauma Program, with 100 percent of the proceeds paying for transportation, lodging and personal care packages for families of trauma patients.

This summer's benefit kicks off with an evening reception on Friday, July 18th at the Lightkeeper's Residence on Cohasset Harbor. On Saturday, July 19, tennis players of all abilities, from beginners to advanced, are evenly matched and play on some of the most spectacular private courts throughout Cohasset. Finals for three levels of play (social, intermediate and advanced) take place on Sunday, July 20th on the grounds of the Roy estate, formerly the home of Cohasset Tennis Benefit founder Jesse Cox.

Reach for the Stars

Cohasset Education Foundation hosts its annual spring benefit

Saturday, May 3, the Cohasset Education Foundation hosted its annual spring benefit, Reach for the Stars. The event raised money to fund approved grants to enhance the Cohasset public schools. The turnout from the community was tremendous, as was the excitement and enthusiasm for this fun filled party.

The live auction included a ride to school in a Cohasset fire truck and Cohasset police car, a behind the scenes tour of Fenway Park during a Red Sox game, a reserved 12 seat box for the Celtics or Bruins, American Girl trip to New York City, an aerial adventure over Cohasset, a weekend in Nantucket and passes for the Grand Tasting at the Wine Festival, an opportunity to be a ball boy or girl during a Celtics game, a tour of Channel Five newsroom with Anthony Everett, an autographed surf board, movie poster and DVD by Kate Bosworth, and box seats for the Red Sox. The silent auction included gift baskets donated by every grade at the Cohasset schools, teacher gifts and activities, golf and boating packages, health and beauty items, sports and entertainment tickets, kids packages, travel excursions and many more.

Event chairs, Carolyn Coffey and Catherine O'Callaghan reported the event was a huge success. For information on the Cohasset Education Foundation, visit its Web site at www.cohasseteducation.org.

FOCUS ON HIGHER EDUCATION

IT'S ALL IN THE NUMBERS

Further your career with a master's degree in math

By Gabriel Leiner
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

Learning is a lifelong pursuit.

That's the message students and faculty in public and private colleges and universities in Massachusetts offer grad school applicants.

"Going back to the classroom was a good choice for me," said Elizabeth Dore, who is 46 years old and part way through Framingham State College's graduate program of education concentration in mathematics.

"I spend a lot of time at the library and writing papers, but the people and professors have been great and I think it's been worthwhile," said Dore. "I'm gaining a deeper understanding of the foundations of math."

Boston University graduate student Dessie Hristova said she is also seeking a degree in mathematics at age 26. It's allowing her to study how to use differential equations to express properties and motions of celestial bodies.

Both Dore and Hristova said their graduate courses have allowed them to rededicate themselves to the classroom and build on their undergraduate education.

"At first you don't know exactly what to expect, but for me it turned out to be a big change from an undergraduate degree and presented a lot of new challenges," said Hristova. "I'm really glad I decided to enroll."

Boston University mathematics professor David Fried said he has seen other students make decisions similar to Dore to return to school later in life.

"Those are usually the kind of people who re-thought their position and came back to math because they have a passion for it," he said.

Fried said those students often complete comprehensive thesis papers in fields such as number theory or statistics, which take time to master.

"We prefer the younger group but we realize that if someone in their 30s has a contribution to make we will consider admitting them," added MIT Mathematics Professor Gigliola Staffilani. "An education in math is not something that has to end after you receive an undergraduate degree."

Janet Castleman, dean of Framingham State's graduate program, said the college encourages students like Dore to enroll in master's programs to further their education at any age.

DAILY NEWS PHOTO BY LISA CASSIDY

Elizabeth Dore has gone back to school to become a math teacher.

"We welcome all applicants because going back to school, especially to study math or become a math teacher, is often a hard sell in our society," said Castleman. "The typical person who enrolls is an engineer in their 30s who is rethinking what they want in life."

After graduating, Dore and Hristova said they plan become researchers or teachers.

At age 26, Hristova said she never considered her age when applying to graduate school, while Dore, at age 46, said she "never thought it was too late."

Castleman agreed.

"People can benefit from education at any age," said Castleman.

Adult learners are motivated students

By Karyn Donahue, M.Ed.
EASTERN NAZARENE COLLEGE

As our economic base shifts from industry and manufacturing to information and technology, adults are going back to school in higher numbers than ever before.

According to the National Center for Education Statistics "an estimated 65 percent increase in enrollments of students 35 years of age or older, from 1.7 million to 2.9 million, occurred between 1985 and 1996" (NCES, 1996). They are categorized as "non-traditional" student, and often share some of the following characteristics:

Have delayed enrollment into postsecondary education

Attend part time

Are financially independent of parents

Work full time while enrolled

Have dependents other than a spouse

Are single parents

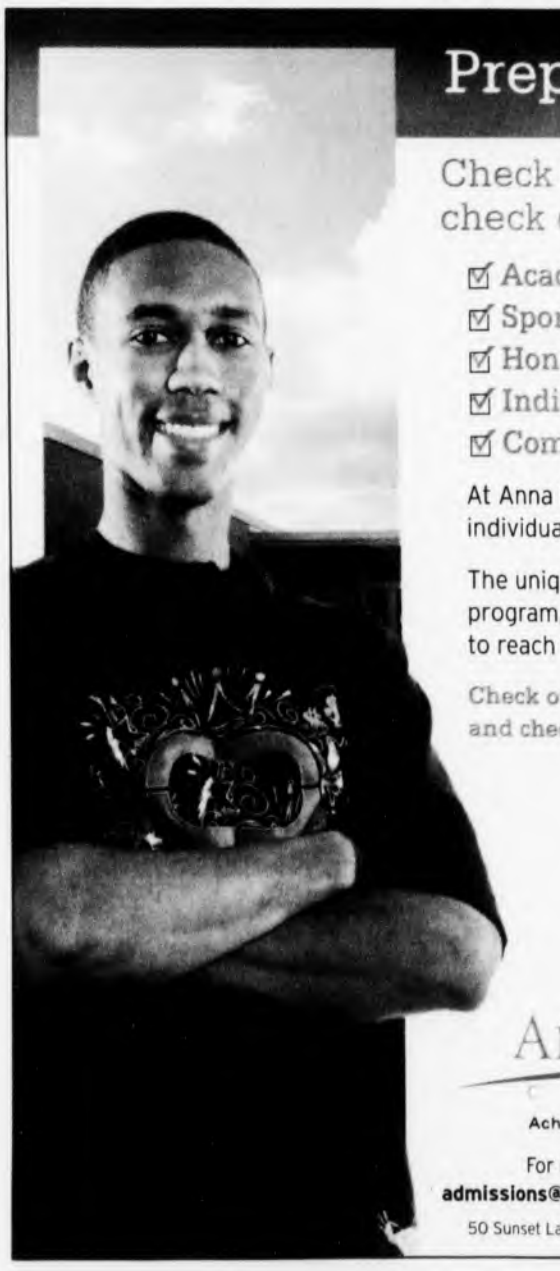
Lack a standard high school diploma

Colleges and universities, responding to the overwhelming demand for programs for adults, have reached out to this group of learners in varying degrees and with varied levels of commitment and enthusiasm.

Many institutions still view adult education programs, even their own, as watered down versions of the traditional model of higher education, to be utilized simply as "cash cows" to supplement the traditional side. This is wrong-headed on many levels.

Adult learners demand quality for their tuition dollar, and can quickly sense when curriculum is being "dumbed down." Many adult students are highly motivated to achieve As in every course, as opposed to many of their traditional counterparts, those 18- to 22-year-olds who attend classes as infrequently as possible, and are happy with passing grades.

The colleges and universities that focus on the unique needs of adult students will reap the benefits both financially and institutionally. Adult students bring a wealth of real world experience to the classroom. Faculty who teach in non-traditional programs often report that they prefer teaching adults. The classroom is more student-centered, because adults like to take charge of their own educational experience. The instructor is more of a facilitator of learning, guiding more than lecturing.



So what motivates adults to return to the classroom? Why would they add to their already full schedule of work and family obligations, sometimes incurring debt, to achieve higher education? The No. 1 reason for most is career advancement. Many find themselves being passed over for promotions, often losing to younger, less experienced colleagues. The difference between them, of course, is that piece of paper.

Personal fulfillment comes in close behind career advancement as a driving factor. Some started out as traditional students entering college after high school, but lacked direction, focus, maturity or a belief that postsecondary education was even necessary. As parents, they have a new motivation to show their children, not just tell them, how important education is.

At graduation ceremonies across the country, more and more, you see adults walking across the stage to receive their hard-earned degrees while in the audience their spouses and children cheer them on.

As technology advances and information becomes the major economic commodity, lifelong learning is not just a buzzword for the new millennium, it is a requirement for anyone hoping to get and stay ahead.

Getaway: Rent in France for savings and local ambience

Christina Tree
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

PARIS - France can still be affordable despite the current unfavorable exchange rate. The trick is to rent a house or apartment. Generally known as "gites," vacation rentals are a time-honored tradition throughout France and, thanks to the Internet, easier than ever to access.

I learned the hard way about the advantages of renting. As a frequent Paris visitor, I prided myself on being an aficionado of that city's many small, special and relatively inexpensive hotels.

On a flight from Boston, I told my seatmate how skillfully I had patched together a 10-day family reunion using several Parisian hotels. He described the apartment rental he was sharing with a few other students.

The enormity of my blunder sank in a few weeks later when we exchanged e-mails, comparing notes. His apartment with its splendid roof deck cost a fraction of what we paid for the hotels. Then there were the tabs for all the cafes where my family gathered because our hotel rooms were too small, and all the restaurants in which we dined because we did not have a kitchen to cook our own meals.

For last year's family trip, I tried an entirely new approach. At Charles de Gaulle Airport we boarded the fast TGV train south, snoozing the two hours until our stop at Angouleme, a small walled city known for its 12th century cathedral, a colorful public 19th century market and an elaborate museum devoted to "la Bande dessinee" (the comic strip).

In rural France, businesses still close for a two-hour lunch. Luckily, there's a good restaurant in Angouleme's train station. We arrived at 12:03, and the Eurocar rental office was already on its lunch break. Eventually three of us squeezed into a tiny, two-door, stick-shift Renault and drove 20 miles south, through increasingly lush countryside.

Angouleme is the capital of The Charente, an area of small villages and rural, rolling farm country north of Bordeaux and bordering the better- known Dordogne.

The small, picturesque farms are no longer profitable and antiquated old farmhouses are being sold off, snapped up as bargains by Brits, given the favorable exchange rate of the pound vs. euro.

"La Vieille Forge," the farmhouse apartment we found on a British Web site, featured a big old hearth in the living room and included a fully equipped country kitchen/dining area and two baths (one with washing machine) and two upstairs bedrooms, all for about $478 per week.

"It's Coo-Coo mating season" our British host, Diana Conheeney, explained cheerfully as we arrived at a farmyard filled with the fragrance of roses and the calls of Coo-Coo Birds. Diana and her husband, David Conheeney, are enthusiastic converts to The Charente, familiar with the weekly schedule of farmers' markets in surrounding towns as well as the hours of the local golf and tennis club, now owned by British expats named Peacock.

Given all the small questions that inevitably come with rural rentals ("Do you have matches?" "An iron?"), it was a plus to have English-speaking landlords. I had ample opportunity to use my fractured French in the local supermarket nearby and at the farmers' market beside the Byzantine cathedral in Perigueux, capital of the Dordogne and an easy drive. We feasted on fabulous and reasonably priced breads, cheeses and wine, on strawberries and asparagus.

Day by day we explored the farm paths that began at our door. Our challenge was to find our way to l'Abbaye Ste. Marie de Maumont, a nearby monastery with magnificent Gregorian chant. The neighboring farmer claimed that he had driven oxen along these paths right to the monastery. We rented bikes from our hosts but got bogged down wheeling them through cornfields, happily lost.

As our stick-shift skills driving the Renault increased, we ventured farther along narrow, curvy roads. The local sight-to-see was Aubterre-sur-Dronne, a truly beautiful medieval village clinging to a steep hillside above a sandy beach on the River Dronne. Its big attraction is a spooky 12th century monolithic church, a high-domed but dark cathedral-sized cave, with tombs dating to the sixth century.

We walked the narrow streets of the Dordogne village of Sarlat, sampling its foie gras, and climbed the steep Pilgrim's Staircase in Rocamadour, where carless streets are lined with 12th to 15th century buildings and capped by a turreted castle.

But as glorious as the Dordogne was, it was a relief to return to the less-touristy Charente, and to our farmhouse apartment - which progressively felt like our French home away from home.

Renting in Paris

"The apartment wasn't just a bargain, it was a big part of the way we experienced Paris" enthused Melrose, Mass., resident Richard Appleyard.

Agreed wife, Betty Appleyard, "We felt like we belonged. The woman in the patisserie knew just what we would order when we walked in the door."

Although widely traveled, the Appleyards had not been to France until Richard presented Betty with roundtrip tickets, a surprise retirement present.

Friends advised the couple to spend time in Paris, specifically in the 6th arrondissement, a lively Left Bank neighborhood within walking distance of most major sights. On the Web they booked a rental above Les Deux Magots, one of the oldest and most famous cafes in Paris. It seemed too good to be true. It was.

Two nights before departure an e-mail informed them that the apartment had been double booked. They could either have their deposit back or a less appealing-looking rental elsewhere.

"It was clearly a case of bait and switch," Richard still fumes. The good news is that he was quickly able to find promising rentals on other Web sites and to book an apartment in the 6th.

"For years I'd been wondering what was inside those fabulous 16-foot-high doors you see throughout Europe," said Richard.

On arrival, the Appleyards were presented with the key to just such a door in a former convent, around a corner from the River Seine. It opened onto a flower-filled courtyard, the view from their bedroom. The kitchen was fully equipped, phone and Internet service were free, and the Louvre art museum was an easy walk, all for about $159 per night.

Happy Mother's Day from Mrs. Cook's class

My mom is cool. She always looks pretty. Her hair is as blonde as the sun and her eyes are as blue as the sky. My mom is nice on the inside. She is loving and kind-hearted. She is a retired police officer but now she stays home. At home she pays bills, takes care of my animals and my mom cooks for me and my sister. When I am sick my mom brings me soups and drinks and she helps me do my homework. I like when my mom plays trucks and cards with me. My mom makes me feel loved and special when she calls me "Dom-ee" and she hugs and kisses me. I love my mom as much as candy hearts!

Domenic Albanese

I have the best mom. My mom is beautiful like a butterfly. Her hair is black and she has pretty green eyes. She is very loving, caring and peaceful. She works at the Liberty School in Hingham. John Cotter

Mechanical engineer, loved the ocean

John Cotter

John Cotter, a Cohasset native, died in a swimming accident on May 2, 2008 while vacationing in Northern Vietnam. He was 25 years old.

He was a graduate of Saint Sebastian's School in Needham, and received a degree in Mechanical Engineering from Lehigh University.

Having grown up on the coast, Mr. Cotter loved the water. His interest in all things related to the ocean led John to employment with Great Lakes Dredge and Dock, an Illinois company with coastal projects worldwide. For the past almost two years, he was working to create artificial islands in the Persian Gulf. He was living and working in Manama, Kingdom of Bahrain where the islands were being built for the development of a tourist industry similar to that in Dubai.

He loved his work especially the opportunity it gave him to work closely with others and to solve problems. As a young production engineer, he had a special gift for understanding technology and applying it to specific engineering projects with maximum efficiency. His management of teams of workers from India, Pakistan, Thailand, The Philippines and other geographically and culturally diverse areas gave him the impetus to use his time off (usually in three week blocks) to visit countries on six continents.

As exacting as his work and travels were, his heart was always with his family, friends and home in Cohasset. Even more than his professional accomplishments and extensive travels, he will be remembered for his ability to make life happier for everyone he knew.

Mr. Cotter leaves his parents Dr. Paul B. Cotter, Jr., and Margaret (Barres) Cotter, his brothers Nathaniel and Paul B. Cotter III, his grandparents Mary E. Cotter, Oliver M. Barres and Marjorie (Catchpole) Barres, and many uncles, aunts, cousins and friends.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated on Friday, May 9, at 2 p.m. in St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset. Interment will be private.

In lieu of flowers memorial contributions in his memory may be made to the CRUDEM Foundation (for medical relief in Haiti), 362 Sewall St.,, P.O. Box 804, Ludlow, MA 01056 (www.crudem.org).

Katherine F. Stanton

Teacher, former Cohasset Citizen of the Year

Katherine F. Stanton

Katherine Frances (Magullion) Stanton, 89, of Cohasset, died May 3, 2008 at home.

The proud possessor of a rich Dorchester accent, she joined the world October 28, 1918 as a native Bostonian and first child of Frank E. and Katherine W. (Stone) Magullion. As a native Bostonian and first child of Frank E. and Katherine W. (Stone) Magullion, she enjoyed early academic success as a student at Girls Latin School of Boston, graduating with honors in 1935. She received her B.A. from Teachers College, Boston in 1939 – the start of a life-long passion for education. From 1939 to 1945, she taught in Boston Public Schools, while also serving as a Lieutenant in the Massachusetts Women's Defense Corps. Katherine and Gerard were married in 1944, and she spent the following decades raising their four children. She returned to the classroom in 1957, teaching fifth grade in several Hingham Schools until her retirement from the Plymouth River Elementary School in 1976.

Mrs. Stanton believed in the importance of volunteer work and served the Cohasset community in many ways during her six decades as a town resident. She served as a member of the Cohasset Recreation Committee; directed the Cohasset Red Cross Swimming program, drove the Cohasset Senior Shuttle, and volunteered as a Girl Scout leader, and at the Cohasset Library. From 1956 to 1968, Cohasset voters elected her to four terms on the Cohasset School Committee. Even in her later years, she traveled to Plymouth each month to review child welfare cases for the Department of Social Services, where she organized an innovative program to collect and distribute suitcases to children under DSS custody, giving them a way to carry their possessions so they could have a sense of dignity when they changed homes.

Katherine was passionate about Cohasset affairs and was an active participant in the Annual Town Meeting. For decades she wrote letters regarding civic issues to town officials and area newspaper editors – and when they got online, she did too, switching from snail mail to email. In 1998, the Cohasset Mariner named her Citizen of the Year.

Wife of the late Gerard J. Stanton, she leaves her children was the dearly loved mother of Katherine Stanton Barker and her husband, the late Robert J. Barker, II; Gerard J. Stanton, Jr. and his wife Darlene; Mary Stanton Hynes and her husband Richard T. Hynes; and the late Robert F. "Buzzy" Stanton; her grandchildren Katherine Barker Marshall (Matthew), Kristine E. Barker, Andrea L. Stanton, Brianna L. Stanton Mahoney (William), Patrick S. Hynes and Matthew J. Hynes; and a great-grandson William M. Mahoney, III. She also leaves a brother Frank Magullion and his wife, Sheila, and a cousin Madeline Brown.

A memorial Mass will be held Friday, May 9 at 10 a.m. at St. Anthony's Church, Cohasset.

The McNamara-Sparrell Funeral Home, handled the arrangements.

In lieu of flowers, at Mrs. Stanton's request, please make donations in her memory to the Hospice of the South Shore, 100 Bay State Dr., Braintree, MA., 02184, or to a charity of your choice.

Anthology performs Friday at First Parish Unitarian Universalist Meeting House

Anthology, a professional women's vocal quartet, will perform a concert of a cappella music at the Meeting House of First Parish Unitarian Universalist on Friday evening, May 9, at 7:30 p.m. This Boston-based quartet blends its high standard of performance with a varied repertoire and a sense of fun. Their Cohasset performance will include a mix of classical, folk, a smattering of barbershop, and some Sweet Honey in the Rock. Classical selections will include madrigals and Renaissance motets, through Brahms and Bartok, and new music hot off the press from Boston composers.

In the past week, Anthology has performed at First Parish in Cambridge and at Boston's Church of St. John the Evangelist. Allegra Martin, a mezzo-soprano with the quartet, recently joined First Parish in Cohasset as Music Director. All the vocalists are professionally trained and include also Vicky Reichert, soprano; Michelle Vachon, mezzo-soprano; and Anney Gillotte, soprano. As a benefit concert, the suggested donation is $15 per person. Half of the proceeds will support renovation of the First Parish organ. Half will go to the artists. To learn more about this emerging quartet, visit www.anthologyvoices.com.

Horoscope

FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MAY 5, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You've set a fast pace for yourself. But as you approach your goal, you might want to slow down a bit in order to take time to reassess your situation and make changes while you can.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Patience continues to be a virtue for the Divine Bovine. So as eager as you might be to get things moving, remember that time is on your side. Make good use of it.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) There's a wee bit of uncertainty in the early part of the week. But things clear up as more facts come to light. Spend quality time this weekend with family and friends.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) An old friend's return could open new possibilities for both of you. But don't let yourself be rushed into anything. There could be some factors you haven't yet explored.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) This week offers a challenge you're raring to take on. And while eager to get started, do so slowly so that you can focus those sharp Cat's Eyes on every detail.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Put your skepticism aside and listen to advice from colleagues who've been where you are now. What they say could be helpful as you get closer to a decision.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A family matter might again require your reassuring touch. Handle it, as always, with kindness and fairness, even if some of your kin prove to be especially difficult.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Your ability to tackle even the most intricate details of a project is likely to impress some very important people. A relative shares news later this week.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) The Archer's aim might be focused on the big picture this week, but don't overlook checking for those details you might have missed.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You might feel awkward asking for assistance, but who would refuse the charming Goat's request? Do it, then go ahead and enjoy a musical weekend.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Pour some cold water on that simmering misunderstanding before it boils over. The sooner things settle, the sooner you can move ahead with your plans.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) You're in a highly productive period, which you feel can go on forever. But you could be courting exhaustion. Take time out to relax and restore your energies.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Everything's in sync

Braintree's Redick to dance 'In the Upper Room' at the Wang

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Jared Redick remembers the exact moment when he knew for sure that he wanted a career in ballet.

"I was a student in the American Ballet Theatre (ABT) in New York in the late 1980s and I can still remember seeing Mikhail Baryshnikov's staging of Twyla Tharp's 'In the Upper Room' for the first time," Redick recalled from his home in Braintree last week. "It was the ABT premiere of the piece and I thought to myself, 'God, this is what I want to do.' It is such a dynamic, driving, and relentless work and it had a tremendous impact on me. I have felt a special connection to it ever since."

That connection will come full circle for Redick next week when the Boston Ballet soloist dances "In the Upper Room" as part of the Ballet's season-closing program, "Three Masterpieces," May 15-18, at Boston's Wang Theatre.

First performed by Tharp's own company, Twyla Tharp Dance, in August 1986, the Boston Ballet is reprising the explosive, energetic work, set to music by Philip Glass, this month – with staging by long-time Tharp collaborator Keith Roberts – for the first time in more than a decade. The ballet features three couples in sneakers as "stompers" and two women in pointe shoes as a "bomb squad," who "stomp" and "bomb" with force and unbridled energy. Tharp's fierce movements in the piece were inspired by such activities as yoga and jogging and the dancers feed on the music's heart-pounding pulse.

Jared Redick will be principal of the Boston Ballet's South Shore Studio in Norwell next season.

"There is no great meaning in 'In the Upper Room' or any real story for that matter," Redick said. "As Twyla Tharp herself has said many times, 'It is purely about the dance.'"

Redick himself has been almost purely about dance, too, since beginning his ballet training with his mother, Julia Redick, at the Conservatory Ballet in his hometown of Reston, Va. He went on to study at the North Carolina School of the Arts, Mikhail Baryshnikov's School of Classical Ballet and the School of American Ballet. Redick danced with the San Francisco Ballet and Dallas/Forth Worth Ballet prior to becoming a soloist with Miami City Ballet in 1996. Boston Ballet Artistic Director Mikko Nissinen brought Redick to Boston in 2002 as a member of the corps de ballet and promoted him to soloist the following year.

He has been featured in Marius Petipa's "The Sleeping Beauty," Rudi Van Dantzig's "Romeo and Juliet" and Nissinen's "The Nutcracker." In addition to the Tharp piece, Redick will be featured in Antony Tudor's "Dark Elegies" in Boston Ballet's "Three Masterpieces," which also includes George Balanchine's "Concerto Barocco."

"Tudor's 'Dark Elegies' is a true masterwork. The whole premise is that this village has suffered the great loss of their children following an unspecified tragedy. The ballet is a communal expression of grief, where everyone comes to peace at the end."

Set to Gustav Mahler's "Kindertotenlieder" ("Songs of the Death of Children"), "Dark Elegies" was first performed in 1937 by Ballet Rambert at the Duchess Theatre in London. It is being staged in Boston by Donald Mahler, who has won widespread acclaim recreating Tudor's works for ballet companies throughout the world.

"This entire program is perhaps one of the best we have done in my six years with Nikko and the Company," said Redick, whose maternal grandmother was a prima ballerina with the Hungarian National Ballet and whose mother also danced professionally before becoming a teacher. Redick not only followed his grandmother and mother into the ballet world, but also is following his mother's lead and becoming a teacher. Beginning next season, Redick will be principal of the Boston Ballet's South Shore Studio in Norwell while also continuing as a soloist with the company.

"My mom has been a teacher for 40 years. Her teaching not just of ballet, but of the life lessons that go along with it like respect, manners, integrity and work ethic are very valuable," said Redick who is also a photographer whose work has been published in national arts magazines. "I never imagined I would ever become a teacher when I was starting my professional career as a dancer 17 or 18 years ago. Being in this profession for so long; however, there are things one would never foresee that end up being very good experiences."

One such experience came when Redick met his future wife, Sharon Parsley, while both were with Dallas/Fort Worth Ballet. Redick and Parsley went on to dance with Miami Ballet, before being hired by Boston Ballet – where Parsley is now Artistic Coordinator and Assistant Ballet Mistress – and relocating from the Miami heat to the far more temperate South Shore. The pair will celebrate their ninth wedding anniversary this Thursday.

"We've been in Braintree since we moved to this area. We came with our two golden retrievers so we knew from the beginning that we were looking for a nice community in which to settle and we really found one. We have just a 30-minute commute to work so we still have all the benefits of the city."

And how has the family adjusted to Massachusetts weather after Florida?

"The dogs love the snow. They don't miss Miami's humidity at all and neither do Sharon and I. We missed the changing seasons very much when we were in Miami, so we're very happy here."

(The Boston Ballet will present "Three Masterpieces" at the Citi Performing Arts Center Wang Theatre, 270 Tremont St., Boston, May 15-18. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call either 800-447-7400 or 617-695-6955 or go online at bostonballet.org.)

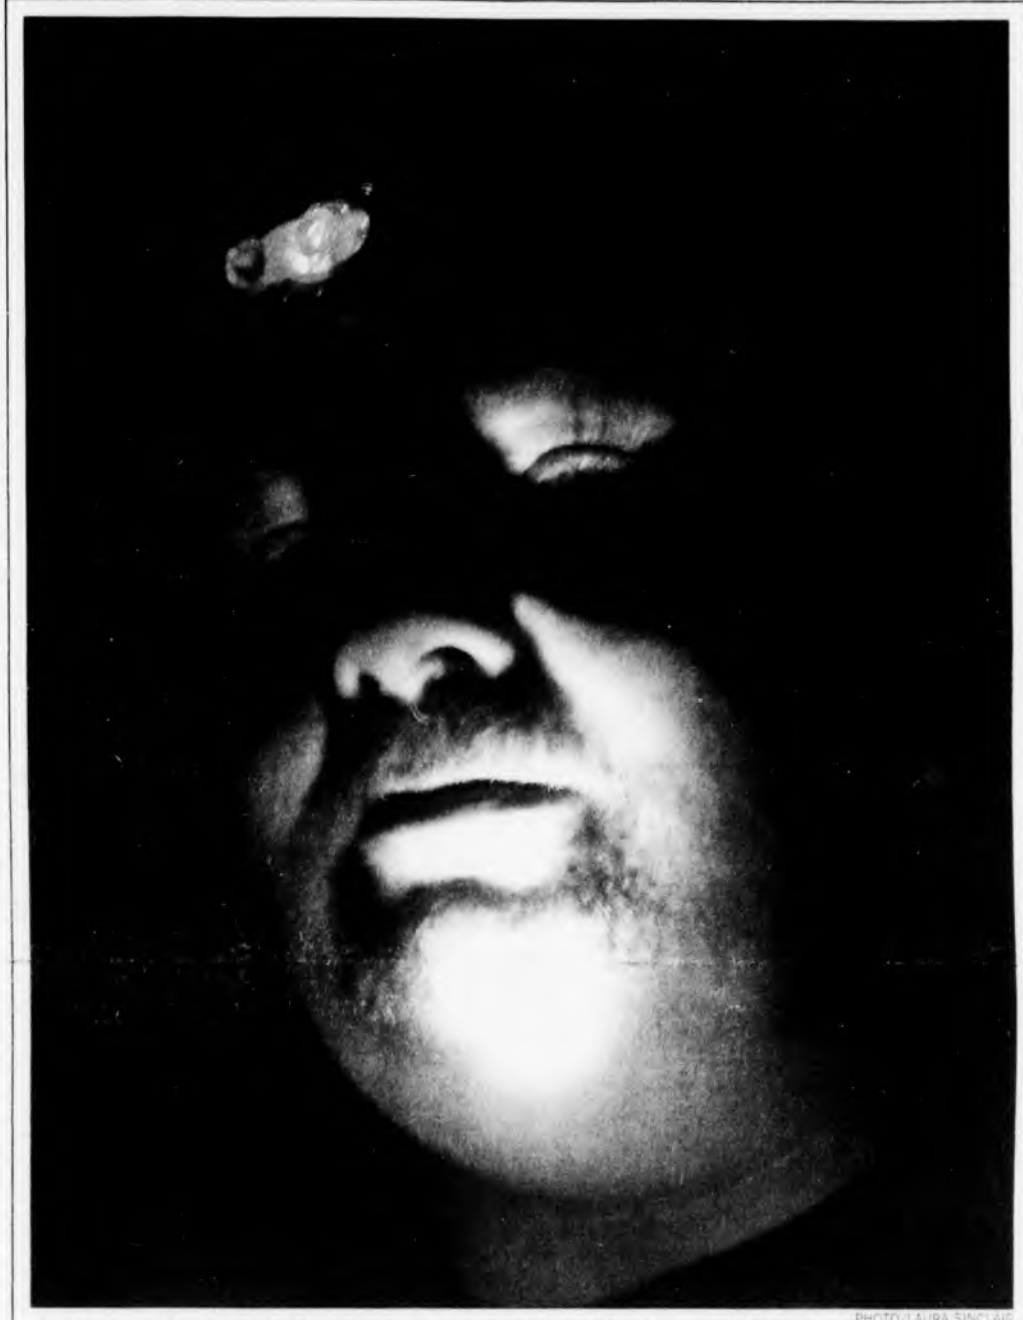
Committee approves new graduation requirements

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In an effort to ensure a more well-rounded and well-prepared student, Cohasset High School's Class of 2012 (current eighth graders) will have to complete a re-vamped set of graduation requirements. The new program of studies places students on a track that administrators say will give them a strong academic foundation across all academic disciplines.

The new requirements increase the number of credits students need to accumulate for the majority of academic areas: mathematics, science, social studies, arts, and foreign language. With increased credits dedicated to specific disciplines, the new requirement calls for 30 free elective credits as opposed to 80 free elective in the past.

"It all starts with the fact we want students to be more globally prepared and more competitive once they graduate from Cohasset High School," said Middle-High School Principal Joel Antolini.



The new graduation requirements instill a better balance into every student's high school curriculum. In the past, students who excelled in a certain discipline could take as many as 12 courses in that discipline and potentially take only a few courses in other areas because of the minimum requirements, said Antolini.

"The new requirement allows a student to continue to excel in their areas of interest while at the same time provide a foundation and support a rigorous academic schedule across all disciplines," Antolini said.

The broadening of the academic program sets the stage to reinforcing ideas and concepts across subjects. For example, they can make connections between their calculus equations, physics concepts and real life application in technology. "It all blends together," said Antolini.

There will be more "linked electives" available, which facilitate interdisciplinary learning. Man versus nature, an English course, will look at literature

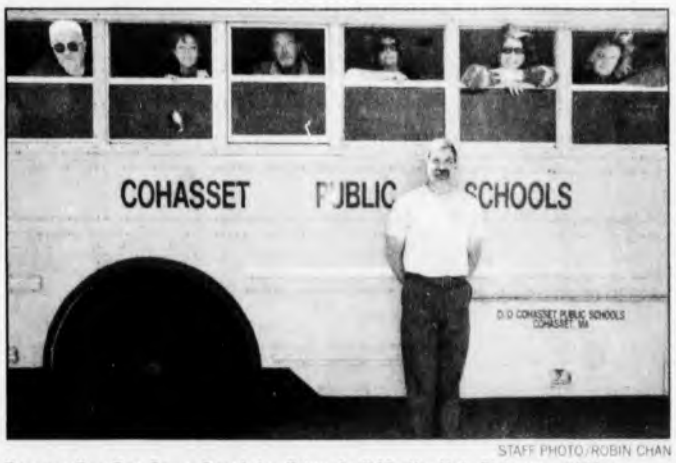
Is Town Hall haunted?

Mass Paranormal not ready to say

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

After two nights of investigation at the Cohasset Town Hall, Mass Paranormal isn't ready to say there is definitive paranormal activity in the 1857 building. But they have gathered hours of video evidence and audio recordings, pages of notes, and a few instances of unexplainable personal experience.



In the next few weeks, they will be reviewing their data to determine if there is solid evidence to call the Town Hall haunted – or, at the very least, to say that something strange is going on. What they've been looking for are indications of paranormal activity – something beyond the range of normal experience or scientific explanation.

Quincy-based Mass Paranormal is a well-respected group within the paranormal world and has done dozens of investigations inside and outside of Massachusetts. They take what they do seriously and come to each investigation with an open, yet skeptical, mind.

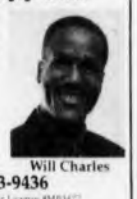
Safety first for Cohasset bus drivers

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

For most kids and parents, Cohasset bus drivers are the first and last representatives of the school system. They greet the children as they climb onto the big yellow school bus, knowing they have the weighty responsibility of handling Cohasset's most precious cargo. They offer words of comfort to a nervous kindergartner on the first day of school and give a stern warning to a rambunctious middle schooler.

When they head out in their buses, they face the usual obstacles on the road – construction (more so than ever this year, with the Little Harbor water and sewer project), potholes, snow, ice, rain, traffic, railroad crossings – all while trying to control as many as 50 children.



"I refer to us as land pilots," said Dama Dow, bus driver and driver training instructor.

"It's multitasking at its best," said Kelly Dickson, transportation coordinator. The bus drivers balance watching the road with watching the children, who are not always on their best behavior.

"I tell the kids, 'If I'm looking at you, then I'm not watching the road'," Dickson said. "There's not a parent in town who can't understand how

POLICE BEAT

Officer cautions parent about leaving kid in car

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

A concerned citizen flagged down an officer last Wednesday afternoon after seeing a child locked in a car alone with the windows cracked. The officer was able to respond quickly and as he approached the car, the parent returned from the store. The officer cautioned the parent about this practice.

"Obviously, we realize there is no ill intentions, but we never want to see a child left alone in the car," said Police Chief James Hussey. Even if the intention is to only run into the store for a minute or if the child is sleeping, Hussey said the unexpected could occur — a 30-second stop turns into a five-minute stop or the child could wake up.

"It's a safety issue, parents should be conscientious about not leaving children unlocked or locked inside a car by themselves."

Late night catch

Early Monday night a resident on Nichols Road called in to the business line to report a kid throwing a ball in the cul-de-sac behind his house. The resident initially called the 911 emergency line, but Hussey said he must have realized it was not a true emergency and called back on the Police business line (383-1212).

An officer responded to the call, but was unable to locate a kid throwing a ball.

Raccoon in tree

An Ash Street resident requested help from the Animal Control Officer after noticing a "rabid" raccoon in the tree outside her home. ACO Paul Murphy responded to the home, but made no observations indicating the raccoon was rabid. Murphy suggested the residents ignore the animal so he can get back down and continue on his way.

Car hits tree

Last Tuesday morning, a 1997 Ford van crashed into a tree on Cedar Street. The van was heading toward Route 228 when the driver reportedly took her eyes off the road for a second and when she looked up she was at a curve in the road. The car struck a tree on the southbound side of the road. While there was extensive damage to the van and needed to be towed from the scene, no injuries were reported.

Larceny

Cohasset Police are seeking a criminal complaint against a person who passed a bad check. The person allegedly made a purchase of more than $250 at Frank Williams landscaping supplies and paid by check. When the business owner attempted to cash the check it came back with insufficient funds, he waited a reasonable amount of time but the funds were never deposited. The party has been summoned to court.

Injured goose on tracks

The dispatch center received a call from the MBTA about a goose that was struck by a train. The report indicated the goose had been injured and seemed to be suffering. When officers responded to the area near the Lower King Street crossing, they found no visible sign of the goose on the MBTA right-of-way. Chief Hussey believes the goose was able to fly over the fence and away from the tracks.

Accident at Beechwood and 3A

While making a left hand turn from southbound Route 3A onto Beechwood last Thursday, a 2002 Toyota struck a 2005 Nissan heading northbound. There was extensive damage to both cars, but no injuries reported. The driver of the Toyota, a Hingham resident, was cited for failure to use caution while turning based on the officers' observations and witness statements. The cars were able to move to the side of the road and Route 3A remained open while the accident was sorted out.

ATM card

Last Friday, a Good Samaritan found an ATM card left at the Rockland Trust Bank, they dropped it off at the Police Station. Officers made contact with the owner and made arrangements for the owner to retrieve it.

Erratic drivers

Two calls came into dispatch regarding a white BMW on Route 228 heading toward Route 3A driving in the wrong lane. Cohasset Police notified Hingham and Hull units of the vehicle, but the callers were unable to provide a plate number for the car. The police weren't able to locate the car.

A second erratic driving report involving a red Chevy Malibu was reported driving on Route 3A later the same day. The caller was unable to provide a plate number and the car wasn't located.

Chief Hussey said if at all possible it's important to get a license plate number.

"At the very least we will follow up with the owner of the car to give them a warning and let them know someone reported their car driving erratically," said Hussey.

Motorcycle accident?

Several callers reported a motorcycle accident on Route 3A near King Street on Friday morning, but officers were unable to locate the accident. Dispatch called back one of the callers to get a better location for the accident. The caller reported the accident occurred closer to the Hingham line. Cohasset police handed the incident over to Hingham units, but they did not find evidence of an accident.

Hit and run

Early Saturday morning, a 911 caller reported a motor vehicle had just crashed into the wall in front of her house on Hull Street then left the area. The caller was only able to describe the car as red and heading toward Hull. When officers responded to the house, they found the front license plate near the wall. The plate had fallen off in the crash.

The police ran the plates and found it was registered to a red BMW out of Yarmouth. A "be on the look out" message went out to the Hull and Hingham police and a short time later the Hull police came across the car.

The driver was cited and summoned to court for leaving the scene of property damage and marked lanes violations. The rainy weather may have been a factor in the crash, said Hussey.

Smashed window

Around 3 a.m. Saturday morning, a Cushing Road resident reported a rock was thrown threw one of his home's windows. Officers responded to interview the reporting party. The object thrown was portion of a brick. Detectives are investigating the incident.

"We do not believe this was a random act," said Hussey.

Rear-end accident at Pond Street

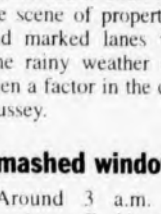
A 2002 Lexus sedan heading northbound on Route 3A stopped to allow cars to exit the Village Greenery and enter the lane. As the car was waiting, the Lexus was rear ended by a 1995 Pontiac. The Lexus pulled to the side of the road anticipating exchanging papers with the Pontiac's driver. Instead, the Pontiac drove off continuing down Route 3A.

The Lexus owner was able to get the Pontiac's license plate and report it to the police. Upon further investigation, the police located the driver of the Pontiac—a 23-year-old male of Cohasset. The police are charging the driver with leaving the scene after causing an accident and operating a vehicle on a suspended license.

Triathlon route change

The Board of Selectmen gave the thumbs up for a course alteration from last year's triathlon. The 12.5-mile bike route will travel on Cedar Street heading toward Route 228/Hull Street in order to avoid both railroad grade crossings.

In order to ensure the safety of all, Police Chief James Hussey said during the time of the race, approximately 8:30 to 10:30a.m. Cedar St. will be open for one-way (toward Route 228) resident only access. The Recycling Transfer Station will be closed until the triathletes clear this portion of the course. Hussey and Race Director Bill Burnett estimate reopening the street and the transfer station around 10:30a.m.



Hussey is working closely with Burnett to ensure there is a safe and easy outer perimeter route to move around town during the Sunday, June 29 race. Last year, many residents were frustrated as they tried to make their way to church and other activities. Detail officers and volunteers will be given clear instructions on how to guide motorists to the easiest route.

"The race is only for a couple of hours and if we restrict movement (on the racecourse) it will be safer for everyone and less frustrating to residents," said Hussey. "The race is good for the town in the long run."

Luck is on Mascot's side

Cohasset-based dog-accessory brand is growing

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

By definition, a mascot is a person, animal or thing believed to bring good luck. Professional sports teams have mascots to entertain fans. Others count on lucky charms for good luck. For Jeff Alexander and Stephanie Murray, they believe every dog owner has their own personal mascot in their furry friend.

In that spirit, the duo founded Mascot, a dog accessory business, based in Cohasset. Their cozy office tucked in the James Brook Crossing is a true reflection of their business. The décor is dog-oriented, but sophisticated: the floor is covered in a turf-like rug, their entire product line neatly covers one wall, the mascot logo is on another and stuffed dogs with stylish sweaters are placed on shelves.

Most striking about their office is its four-legged occupants. Business partners Alexander and Murray both say it is their dogs that inspired them to strike out on this entrepreneurial venture and it is their dogs that continue to inspire them everyday. As a result, all four dogs "work" at their office each day.

Alexander has Max, a Boston terrier and muse for the Mascot logo, and Lola, a sweet natured boxer. Murray brings her shitzu-poodle mixes, 4-year-old Riley and 8-month-old Milo.

"The Mascot brand is inspired by the role each of our dogs play in our daily lives. They are our personal mascots, always there to encourage us, make us feel better when we are down and bring us that dose of good luck everyday," says Alexander. Given that philosophy, they couldn't possibly do their job without the help of their canine companions, who (like most dogs) lie horizontally all day long.

Alexander and Murray each come from corporate backgrounds. Alexander, founder and Hingham resident, had jobs in product development for Banana Republic and Pottery Barn. Murray, who is moving to Hingham, came with experience in branding, marketing and Web site development. Each play to their strengths in running Mascot: Alexander as creative director and Murray as marketing director.

Mascot founder and creative director, Jeff Alexander, and marketing director, Stephanie Murray, create and design high quality accessories for dogs such as leads, collars and tags.

They launched their business on both coasts, getting their product in stores that reached the city dwelling dog owners Boston and San Francisco, as well as resort areas, like Nantucket. The trendy Louis Boston on Newbury Street has carried the Mascot line from the very start.

The pet business is growing exponentially with sales topping $43.5 billion in the U.S. alone, a quarter of that generated from the sale of collars and leads, currently Mascot's core product line.

While there are many product options out there for pet owners, Murray says there aren't a lot of identifiable brands. With Mascot, Alexander and Murray are hoping to make their brand unique.

In 2004, the duo set off on their entrepreneurial venture. They spent nearly two years building their brand before officially launching in the summer 2006. When developing the company and in creating new products, they are very conscientious about the details in order to make their products stand out from the pack.

"Our main focus is building our brand," says Murray. They work on the design and functionality of each product with the future dog owner in mind. They say only one-third of their product concepts actually make it to shelves. "We really wanted to come out with a brand versus a grouping of products."

Alexander offers the bone shaped buckle that adorns several of the collars as an example. The buckle's shape alone makes it distinctive, but then they made sure it was comfortable for the dog (it's slightly contoured to a dog's neck) and durable to stand up to everything the dog gets into (the lightweight metal was die cast to keep it from bending or breaking).

Then there are canvas leads available in colorful stripes ("old school repp") and Hawaiian prints ("aloha") that have a quick release adjustment at the handle for an easy (and secure) tie-out if the owner wants to grab a cup of coffee when out and about.

All their products are branded

Mascot in some way either on the bone shaped buckle or a grommet emblazoned with "Mascot." They worked on creating a versatile color pallet to allow mixing and matching between the products.

Mascot's best seller is the sailor's knot lead and collar. Inspired by the Nantucket braided rope bracelets, the lead and collars are made from colorful polypropylene cord — they're waterproof, anti-microbial and machine washable.

If you have a beach and saltwater loving dog, Mascot carries the "essential beach collar" — classic hues encased in water-resistant, anti-microbial material. Each collar is paired with a contrasting signature bone buckle.

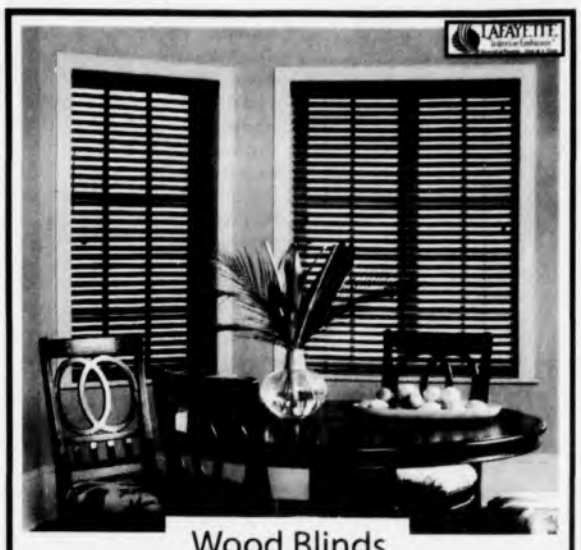
"We like to call it a swimsuit for your dog," jokes Alexander.

Mascot has partnered with Canine Companion for Independence, a non-profit organization they felt reinforced the philosophy of the brand. Canine Companion for Independence, a national organization with local chapters, pairs dogs with physically disabled persons and specially trains the dogs free of charge to be the perfect companion for that person. Mascot created a companion charm, a piece of hardware that separates to become a keychain and a collar charm to echo the connection between owner and dog. Ten percent of the proceeds of the companion charm are donated to Canine Companion for Independence.

During the winter months, their collars and leads in leather begin to pick up. There is a leather collar/leash to complement any dog's style—argyle, studded, braided and laced. There are two "signature" leather styles, one braided and one laced, that are handmade in Florence.

Each winter they plan on introducing new apparel—sweaters, scarfs, and jackets. In September, Mascot will unveil five new sweater styles in two weights and their first ever jacket, a puffer vest. Collar charms and ID tags round out the current Mascot line.

Both Alexander and Murray have aspirations for the company and say they want to continue expanding their product lines while staying true to their roots of quality design and functionality.



"Our company is a lifestyle brand for dogs. We really want to show how our product can fit into their lives," says Alexander.

The entire Mascot line is available on the Web site, www.mymascot.com. In addition, Mascot products are available locally at four Hingham locations: Maggie's Dog Shop, Old Derby Animal Hospital, London Harness, Social Graces.

Luck is on Mascot's side

Cohasset-based dog-accessory brand is growing

By Nancy White

Mascot founder and creative director, Jeff Alexander, and marketing director, Stephanie Murray, create and design high quality accessories for dogs such as leads, collars and tags.

By definition, a mascot is a person, animal or thing believed to bring good luck. Professional sports teams have mascots to entertain fans. Others count on lucky charms for good luck. For Jeff Alexander and Stephanie Murray, they believe every dog owner has their own personal mascot in their furry friend.

In that spirit, the duo founded Mascot, a dog accessory business, based in Cohasset. Their cozy office tucked in the James Brook Crossing is a true reflection of their business. The décor is dog-oriented, but sophisticated: the floor is covered in a turf-like rug, their entire product line neatly covers one wall, the mascot logo is on another and stuffed dogs with stylish sweaters are placed on shelves.

Most striking about their office is its four-legged occupants. Business partners Alexander and Murray both say it is their dogs that inspired them to strike out on this entrepreneurial venture and it is their dogs that continue to inspire them everyday. As a result, all four dogs "work" at their office each day.

Alexander has Max, a Boston terrier and muse for the Mascot logo, and Lola, a sweet natured boxer. Murray brings her shitzu-poodle mixes, 4-year-old Riley and 8-month-old Milo.

"The Mascot brand is inspired by the role each of our dogs play in our daily lives. They are our personal mascots, always there to encourage us, make us feel better when we are down and bring us that dose of good luck everyday," says Alexander. Given that philosophy, they couldn't possibly do their job without the help of their canine companions, who (like most dogs) lie horizontally all day long.

Alexander and Murray each come from corporate backgrounds. Alexander, founder and Hingham resident, had jobs in product development for Banana Republic and Pottery Barn. Murray, who is moving to Hingham, came with experience in branding, marketing and Web site development. Each play to their strengths in running Mascot: Alexander as creative director and Murray as marketing director.

They launched their business on both coasts, getting their product in stores that reached the city dwelling dog owners Boston and San Francisco, as well as resort areas, like Nantucket. The trendy Louis Boston on Newbury Street has carried the Mascot line from the very start.

The pet business is growing exponentially with sales topping $43.5 billion in the U.S. alone, a quarter of that generated from the sale of collars and leads, currently Mascot's core product line.

While there are many product options out there for pet owners, Murray says there aren't a lot of identifiable brands. With Mascot, Alexander and Murray are hoping to make their brand unique.

In 2004, the duo set off on their entrepreneurial venture. They spent nearly two years building their brand before officially launching in the summer 2006. When developing the company and in creating new products, they are very conscientious about the details in order to make their products stand out from the pack.

"Our main focus is building our brand," says Murray. They work on the design and functionality of each product with the future dog owner in mind. They say only one-third of their product concepts actually make it to shelves. "We really wanted to come out with a brand versus a grouping of products."

Alexander offers the bone shaped buckle that adorns several of the collars as an example. The buckle's shape alone makes it distinctive, but then they made sure it was comfortable for the dog (it's slightly contoured to a dog's neck) and durable to stand up to everything the dog gets into (the lightweight metal was die cast to keep it from bending or breaking).

Then there are canvas leads available in colorful stripes ("old school repp") and Hawaiian prints ("aloha") that have a quick release adjustment at the handle for an easy (and secure) tie-out if the owner wants to grab a cup of coffee when out and about.

All their products are branded

Mascot in some way either on the bone shaped buckle or a grommet emblazoned with "Mascot." They worked on creating a versatile color pallet to allow mixing and matching between the products.

Mascot's best seller is the sailor's knot lead and collar. Inspired by the Nantucket braided rope bracelets, the lead and collars are made from colorful polypropylene cord — they're waterproof, anti-microbial and machine washable.

If you have a beach and saltwater loving dog, Mascot carries the "essential beach collar" — classic hues encased in water-resistant, anti-microbial material. Each collar is paired with a contrasting signature bone buckle.

"We like to call it a swimsuit for your dog," jokes Alexander.

Mascot has partnered with Canine Companion for Independence, a non-profit organization they felt reinforced the philosophy of the brand. Canine Companion for Independence, a national organization with local chapters, pairs dogs with physically disabled persons and specially trains the dogs free of charge to be the perfect companion for that person. Mascot created a companion charm, a piece of hardware that separates to become a keychain and a collar charm to echo the connection between owner and dog. Ten percent of the proceeds of the companion charm are donated to Canine Companion for Independence.

During the winter months, their collars and leads in leather begin to pick up. There is a leather collar/leash to complement any dog's style—argyle, studded, braided and laced. There are two "signature" leather styles, one braided and one laced, that are handmade in Florence.

Take time to enjoy the small things in life

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

Hello Cohasset. How is everyone doing after a few nice days of springtime weather? So much is going on these days with special events, graduations coming and the anticipation of summer on the horizon that I am forgetting to enjoy the small things that happen each day. I am going to try and work on that from here on in. Life is happening so fast and seems always to be so hectic that before I know it, another week has gone by. On with the news...

SCHOLAR LEADER

We have a student in eighth grade at Cohasset Middle High School who is so deserving of recognition in this week's column. Isabel Robinson was nominated by the teachers and administrators of Cohasset Middle School for the Scholar Leader Award. This award is given annually to two eighth grade students from each middle school in Massachusetts by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Middle Level Educators and the New England League of Middle Schools. A banquet will be held to honor this recognition and Isabel and her family will attend on May 29 at the DCU Center in Worcester. Congratulations on this nomination Isabel and good luck with your future, we know you will go far.

EVERETT'S EMMYS

It was a big night for WCVB-TV and Cohasset resident Anthony Everett at Saturday's 31st Annual New England Emmy Awards dinner in Boston. WCVB won 10 Emmy awards, including seven for its nightly newsmagazine "Chronicle," which Everett co-hosts with Mary Richardson. Everett himself was honored with an Emmy for his reporting on a "Chronicle" program that examined special education. And in the category of "Special Event Coverage," Chronicle won the Emmy for its annual "Holiday Lights" special on the Boston Common, which is hosted by Anthony Everett and Mary Richardson. Congratulations on this wonderful recognition.

EXPRESS YOURSELF

Are you looking for a fun event to attend this weekend? On Saturday, May 17, the Carriage House Nursery School will host its bi-annual fundraiser and children's art show. This year's theme, Express Yourself, focusing on enhancement to the schools cultural and arts program. The evening includes drinks, hors d'oeuvres, entertainment and a silent and live auction. The event will be held at the Carriage House Nursery School, 23 North Main St., in Cohasset from 7 until 11 p.m. The evening will kick off with a silent auction offering a vast array of items to bid on in support of Carriage House.

The live auction will kick off later in the evening and Anthony Everett, co-anchor of WCVB-TV Channel 5 nightly newsmagazine Chronicle, will be the auctioneer. Live auction items include Club Tickets to the New England Patriots, Red Sox Tickets, a weekend in Nantucket, an evening in Boston including a stay at the Four Seasons, Golf and Lunch at Blackrock Country Club. In addition, the beautiful children's art items include a toy box, handmade quilt, hand painted dish set and tote bags. Hors d'oeuvres are being provided by Hola Flatbread and Tapas and live music will keep things moving until 11 p.m. Tickets to the event are $45 per person and may be purchased at the door with cash or check. Call the Carriage House Nursery School at 781-383-9785 if you have any questions. The Carriage House Nursery School was founded in 1978 in Cohasset, and offers programs for children from ages 16 months to 5 years.

Helping teens stay safe this season

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The prom and graduation season has arrived, accompanied by parties and other celebrations.

While teens anticipate these activities with great enthusiasm, parents often go into worry mode about how to keep their children both happy and safe.

Police Chief James Hussey said parents are the key to preventing underage drinking during this celebratory season and beyond.

"At this time of year especially, we encourage parents to be just that—parents. We want parents to be parents and not their children's friends," said Hussey. "We, as adults, need to set an example that people can have a good time without the use of alcohol and/or drugs."

The Police Department has been working with the parents of the Post-Prom Committee to ensure a safe, fun and alcohol and drug free event after prom.

"The parents have put together quite a night. I would hope parents as well as the kids take advantage of all the planning and effort (the Post-Prom Committee) has done," said Hussey. "It should be a good night for the kids and it goes well into the wee hours of the morning."

The Cohasset High prom takes place on Friday, May 30 and graduation is set for Saturday, June 7.

Hussey said the officers on duty prom night will be extra-vigilant in looking for evidence of underage drinking going on.

Underage youth who get caught drinking are putting themselves at risk and parents or other adults who may have provided them with the alcohol face consequences as well.

"If we discover any adult is involved in providing alcohol to any underage youth, we will seek criminal action," said Hussey.

There are stiff penalties for individuals who provide alcohol to underage youth. The same is true for people under age 21 who attempt to purchase or make arrangements for another to purchase alcoholic beverages for themselves, as well as for those who use a fake I.D.

There are also penalties for minors who possess or transport alcohol; individuals who contribute to the delinquency of a minor or sell, deliver, or furnish alcohol to those under 21 years of age; and for individuals who operate a motor vehicle while under the influence.

If teenage alcohol consumption has taken place at a supervised party, and the teenagers have left the home, the host's responsibility doesn't end. The hosts are responsible both criminally and civilly in the event something happens after the child leaves.

In leading up to what should be a very special month for graduating students and the beginning of summer for others returning home from college, Hussey stressed the importance of talking to kids about alcohol use and setting clear guidelines about what is acceptable.

"Parents can't ignore the behavior if they see it. If they don't talk about it and pretend it's not happening they might as well give their kids permission to do it," said Hussey. While the conversation may be difficult, he said a parents' influence could prevent a tragic circumstance from taking place.

"Kids, alcohol and motor vehicles are a recipe for disaster," said Hussey.

According to the Norfolk County District Attorney Bill Keating, it is estimated alcohol takes 6.5 times more young lives than all other illicit drugs combined.

When the police come across an intoxicated teenager, the parents are always contacted to pick up their child at the station.

"Some youth will experiment, but it is not a behavior parents want to allow to continue," said Hussey. "We encourage parents to nip it in the bud."

Pamphlets and other brochures on how to talk to kids about alcohol and drugs are available at the police station. If an underage youth is caught a second time under the influence, Hussey said they typically seek court involvement.

"We want to send a strong message to kids that they are heading down the wrong path," said Hussey.

Staff reporter Carol Britton Meyer contributed to this report.

Hussey said the officers on duty prom night will be extra-vigilant in looking for evidence of underage drinking going on.

The Cohasset High prom takes place on Friday, May 30 and graduation is set for Saturday, June 7.

Where to find help

There's help available for those who are worried about a friend or family member who may be abusing alcohol or other drugs, or who may be struggling themselves. For further information, contact

Did you know . . .

- The legal drinking age in Massachusetts and every other state is 21. It is against the law to serve or provide alcohol to underage guests or to allow them to drink alcohol in your home or on other property under your control. Those who do may be prosecuted criminally.
- You may be sued civilly. If this occurs, a jury may decide whether you are liable and how much you will have to pay for injuries caused by your guests.
- You could be prosecuted criminally or sued civilly if you knowingly allow a person under age 21 to drink at your house, or if he or she becomes very ill or dies from alcohol poisoning or other injuries.
- You could be civilly liable if you give permission for your underage child to drink in someone else's home and he injures or kills a third party.
- You could be civilly liable if your child has friends into your home when you are not present, a drinking party develops, and a partygoer injures himself or herself when fleeing after the police arrive.
- Even if you win a criminal or civil lawsuit, it is an expensive process. Lawsuits can take years to conclude and put a tremendous amount of strain on you and your family.

Setting guidelines

Parents can play a key role in helping their teens stay safe during the busy prom and graduation season.

Ray Palermo, director of public information for the Teachers' Insurance Plan in Meriden, Conn., offers several tips that go beyond the usual "don't drink and drive" advice:

- Get involved in planning prom night and other activities.
- Talk specifically about what teens should say or do in certain high-risk situations.
- Consider having a mutually agreed upon "contract," setting rules regarding post-prom parties and other activities – who teens will be with, where, for how long, and what they will be aoing.
- Get the names of other prom-goers and their parents' phone numbers.
- Set a curfew. Have your teen call if there is a delay or a change in plans.
- Send your teen a text message during prom night telling them to have fun, but reminding them not to do anything that could ruin a good time.
- Limit the number of passengers in a car.
- Be on call for a ride home or other emergency.
- Have a "no questions asked" policy on getting home safely.
- Join other parents and rent a limo for prom-goers.
- Be the chauffeur for the night, but don't meddle. Rent a vintage car to make the event more special.

Tips for teens include:

- Make an agreement with your parents not to drive and drink and not to ride with anyone who is or has been drinking.
- Resist high-risk activities.
- To avoid drink tampering, do not leave beverages unattended.
- Check in with your parents during the night. This will go a long way toward reassuring them about how you are doing.
- Always buckle up.
- In short, follow your parents' rules.

and writing about environmental issues and the impact they can have on the science and technology have on the environment. At the same time, students will be taking environmental science. Other new "linked courses" include a course titled the psychology of drama will be linked to a psychology elective and a literature of discrimination linked to the Holocaust elective.

"We want students to think beyond the discipline and make connections between them," said Antolini. "It's a very positive change for the students."

High school educators are also hoping to expand enrollment in the Virtual High School program, a Web-based classroom learning environment.

"Virtual High School enables students to go where their curiosity lies," said Antolini, while expanding the school's course offering by leaps and bounds. For example, Antolini said, Cohasset High could not support a zoology course unless there were 15 or 20 interested students; Virtual High School opens that door for those one or two students who are truly interested in the subject.

"An added bonus is the students are sharing ideas and conversing with students throughout Massachusetts, the US and the world. Talk about gaining an international perspective," said Antolini.

In addition to enabling a more well-rounded student, School Committee chairman Rick Flynn said he is hopeful the changes in graduation requirements will enhance the reputation of the school and give students an edge when it comes to the competitive college application process.

"Students will truly be challenged academically and we can be sure they are getting the most out of their four years at Cohasset High," said Flynn.

The School Committee unanimously approved the new graduation requirements and Antolini's recommendations for the program of studies.

Going to the 'Xtreme'

Recreation to run inaugural middle school summer program

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Despite being on the job for only a few weeks, new Recreation Director Ted Carroll has big plans for this summer. In addition to the tried and true summer playground program, Carroll is adding a new summer program designed specifically for middle school-age kids—"Summer Xtreme."

For seven weeks, the Summer Xtreme program will keep kids entering grades six, seven and eight thoroughly entertained and busy.

"It meets the market of kids who feel too old for the playground program, but are still too young to work. We have a lot better options than sitting at home alone watching television or playing on the computer," Carroll said.

Twice a week, the program takes kids out of Cohasset to attractions as near as Starland in Hanover to as far as Canobie Lake Park in New Hampshire. Each Tuesday and Thursday features a different field trip.

"The kids are constantly on the move," Carroll said.

The program stays in Cohasset on Monday and Wednesday, but the kids stay busy and active with games, sports and crafts. Every Wednesday is pizza day.

Parents can sign up their kids for one week or all seven weeks; each week is $99.

In his previous position as recreation administrator in Hanover, Carroll oversaw the inaugural year of the "Teen Extreme" program, modeled after a similar program started in Norwell ten years ago.

"It was a huge success," Carroll said, and he is looking forward to a repeat in Cohasset. He has brought on the director and assistant director who ran the Hanover program to head up his Cohasset program. He credits the endless energy of program director Mike Curtin and assistant director Mike Barra for much of the Hanover program's success.

"It's a great opportunity, there's not a lot out there for middle school kids," said Curtin, a 20-year veteran employee at Quincy Recreation and current Quincy middle school teacher. "They get the chance to see different things they wouldn't normally see – and they get to hang out with their friends."

Barra has worked at summer camps for the last 10 years and will be a senior at Plymouth State in New Hampshire in the fall. What he loves most about the program is the diversity of activities.

"By catering specifically to the middle school-age group we have created a program that offers a wide range of high energy activities.

"Our main goal is to create a program that kids want to come everyday … Whether we are on an outing to Canobie Lake Park or playing one of Mike Curtin's famous 'Curty games,' the excitement, energy and fun are always going to be off the chart," Barra said.

Judging from last year's experience, both Curtin and Barra name Water Wizz and Water Country as two of the kids' favorite field trips. But, Barra said, he was surprised at the popularity of the kayaking trip last year.

"Even kids who had never been in a boat in their lives were having a blast," he said, adding he is looking forward to the Morton's Pond trip as well.

Curtin said the home base days are just as much fun. "We have no shortage of ideas; we keep them busy."

He quickly lists a half-dozen summer favorites – kickball, tennis, baseball, capture the flag, dodgeball – the kids love to play. He often changes some of the rules and calls them "Curty games."

"We give them the freedom to be themselves and make their own decisions while giving them positive guidance and encouragement. I truly believe that it is impossible to have a bad time when you are constantly active," Barra said.

One of his goals this summer is to bike to work every day – nine miles each way. "I would like to set the example that through hard work (anything) is possible. (Curtin) and I strive to be the best role models we can be for these kids.

"Summer Xtreme is going to be the thing to do this summer," Barra said.

While Carroll will open up registrations to non-Cohasset residents to fill the program, he is giving preference to Cohasset kids.

"It's the start of a brand new tradition in Cohasset," Carroll said.

Applications for the "Summer Xtreme" program are available on the Cohasset town Web site Recreation Department page (www.townofcohasset.org) and in the Recreation office at Town Hall.

Field trip schedule by week

Week 1 (6/30 to 7/3): Canobie Lake Park and Starland
Week 2 (7/7 to 7/10): Water Wizz and Armstrong Ice Arena
Week 3 (7/14 to 7/17): Morton's Pond, Plymouth and P&L Paintball, Bridgewater
Week 4 (7/21 to 7/24): Laser Gate, Fall River and United Skates of America in Rhode Island
Week 5 (7/28 to 7/31): Water Country and Paw Sox
Week 6 (8/4 to 8/7): IMAX/Aquarium by boat and Boston Bowl and Billiards

OPINION

EDITORIAL

The next stimulus plan

Most Americans have yet to receive their much-awaited stimulus checks from the federal government, though they may have spent them several times over in their heads while they wait.

In the next few weeks, though, some of the $152 billion the feds have invested in this program will find its way back into the economy, giving it a lift propelled by government borrowing and consumer spending.

When laid-off workers lose their savings and their homes, they become an economic drain. When foreclosures multiply, they pull down the value of every other home, with ripple effects that spread beyond that family's pain.

The checks will be popular whether or not they save the economy from recession, which is one reason why Congress is considering Stimulus II. House Speaker Nancy Pelosi is pushing for a second stimulus package, one that consists not of rebate checks, but a grab-bag of federal giveaways: Public works projects, new Medicaid funds for states, energy tax credits and whatever election-year goodies Congress members can hang on what could shape up as a classic Christmas tree appropriations bill.

Whatever arguments there are in favor of these initiatives, they should be made on their own, not propelled by a vague intention of stimulating the economy. But there are two areas directly connected to the current economic slowdown Congress can, and should, address:

• Extend unemployment benefits from 26 to 39 weeks. This is a modest benefit, one that has been offered in almost every recession in the last half-century, that responds to the simple fact that recessions make it harder for laid-off workers to find jobs. As Newsweek's Robert J. Samuelson argues, unemployment insurance only covers workers who lose jobs through no fault of their own and only covers about 36 percent of the unemployed. The benefits are not overly generous the cost of extending them is just $13 billion.

• Act to stem the foreclosure crisis that is at the heart of the current downturn. Legislation passed by the House last week would allow homeowners and holders of subprime mortgages to refinance to fixed rate mortgages through the Federal Housing Administration, with lenders and borrowers both taking a financial hit. It's far from a cure-all. The Congressional Budget Office estimates just 328,000 homeowners out of 2.8 million in danger of foreclosure would get relief through the program, at a cost to the taxpayers of $1.7 billion. Still, this modest program is facing opposition from Senate Republicans and a veto threat from President Bush.

Both these programs recognize that helping those hardest hit by recession is one way to keep the rest of the economy from being dragged further down. When laid-off workers lose their savings and their homes, they become an economic drain. When foreclosures multiply, they pull down the value of every other home, with ripple effects that spread beyond that family's pain.

We'll cash those stimulus checks, but further action on the economy should be limited in cost and targeted toward families and sectors where a little additional stimulus will go a long way.

Letter to the Editor

'Beyond the usual youthful follies'

To the editor:

To the residents of Linden Drive:

This is not an easy letter to write. Carol and I do not want to be seen as those crotchety old neighbors who complain about "kids." We raised three kids here – two of them boys. Their mother thought they would never do anything wrong – their father knew better.

But that's not what this is about. It isn't the childish pranks or mild but brainless vandalism ("I dare you" on Halloween).

This is much more serious.

Our house sits at the split of Linden Drive. To the right is a very large bush. We discovered a few months ago that there was a hollow inside the bush. In that hollow we found empty bottles of rum, vodka, mixes and numerous beer cans. We notified the police and hung a "No Trespassing Sign."

We hoped that would be enough, but today my wife spotted a Westin Hotel bag filled with vomit.

It is clear that there are some young people in this area whose actions go beyond the usual youthful follies and that are much more worrisome than the tramping of some bushes.

Heath Notes

Managing for the long run

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

I had a friend who bought an old Rolls Royce with hardening of the arteries. In the early Rolls' there was an oil tank that had a network of tubes running to lubrication points all over the car. After years of running, the small amount of moisture in the oil had circulated throughout the system and caused the lube lines to rust and plug up, progressively depriving various components of necessary lubrication and causing them to fail one by one. There are a few cars developed in the early history of driving that gained the reputation for longevity because of meticulous engineering. The Rolls, of course, Bugatti, Mercedes and a few others. They were made to "last forever". Each had features, like the oiling system in the Rolls, which ensured their smooth operation when new and which, if properly maintained, would give unusually long life.

A dedicated lubrication system was an early technique for ensuring good maintenance. It replaced reliance on either a manual or a very skilled craftsman who knew all the lubrication points of the car by heart. As the car got older, the manual was lost, and there was no one who still knew where, specifically, to put in the lubricating oil. Although, it could last forever, the Rolls without the knowledge of its attendants, would gradually wear out for lack of maintenance.

Other cars were famous for different characteristics such as élan. The Stearns Knight, Lagonda, Der Grossé, the big luxurious Mercedes. Many became rare simply because the maintenance was so arcane no one could be found to do it except a very expensive expert.

Other cars were utilitarian, easy to fix, cheap and available – but not necessarily comfortable, easy to drive or convenient. Such as the Jeep and the Model T.

But, as these cars got older, they all became more difficult to maintain, requiring more meticulous care and more skill and knowledge on the part of the maintainers.

It occurs to me that cars can represent a metaphor for life.

Each of us, with differing characteristics from our ancestors, our forebears or experiences, require differing methods of maintaining ourselves. Some need activity, some reflection, others emphasize learning or sports. For some, travel, novelty of experience is essential or desirable. At the start, we are given certain attributes that we embellish with experience. Circumstance and luck change our outlook, our aims and directions. At every point in our lives, we have to assess where we are and what we wish to be – and become.

We tend to emphasize those pursuits that give us pleasure, but we can't forget several items of maintenance as we grow, and grow older. Just as in a vehicle it's necessary to continue our maintenance activities. It isn't just going to the doctor periodically; it's reading, learning new things, seeking out different methods of exercise, continuing interaction with friends and other people. If one stops any of the elements important in our daily life, our horizons will shrink.

When changing circumstances such as job change or moving or varying a habitual routine, sometimes we may forget some of the important elements of personal maintenance necessary to sustain our overall physical and mental health. A listing of the maintenance activities for a healthy balanced existence could include:

• Read. At least an hour a day should be behind a book or paper.

• Take courses in a subject in which you are interested.

• Engage in some kind of exercise. A sport is generally more fun, but many different activity levels consistent with capability and age are available and should be utilized.

• Don't forget regular medical checkups. Even if it's just the town nurse. She should be able to tell you if she sees anything requiring attention.

•Get a hobby.

Finally, use all those attributes you wish to preserve. Otherwise they'll be lost to you. A daily schedule often helps. Lubricate the parts; otherwise they'll stop working.

Big changes in store for summer

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Bill Needle on the job

Greenbush Flash! – Any of us who are used to driving from Cohasset to North Scituate Village using Cohasset's South Main Street to Scituate's Country Way will experience some big changes this summer. Starting just after school is out for the summer, the MBTA will be closing Scituate's Country Way at Bound Brook for about two months. If you are not exactly sure where Bound Brook is, it is at the southern end of the North Scituate commuter rail parking lot. (It begins in Beechwood, flows from Lily Pond into Scituate, crosses Country Way and ends up passing through Hunter's Pond to the Gulf.) In fact, Bound Brook is the reason that the southern end of Scituate's Greenbush parking lot has never been completed. The MBTA was waiting to resolve Bound Brook issues with the environmental regulatory bodies. As a result of the final rulings, the MBTA will be building a bridge over Bound Brook to replace the culvert system currently under the road. The detour during bridge construction from Cohasset to North Scituate will be Beechwood Street to Route 3A to Henry Turner Bailey Road. They hope to have construction completed by the time school reconvenes.

An Interesting Bit of History — We mentioned several weeks ago about the fact that the road between the Town Parking Lot and the South Shore Art Center is actually called Depot Court, not Pleasant St. Of course, the reason the road was given this name is that it ran from Main Street to the railroad depot (Previously located where the SS Art Center is today). Also, located of the small Town park at the corner of Depot Court and Ripley Road was the site of the Tilden stable. This was a large two-story building. A stable at this location makes sense when you consider that the wealthy that came to visit their "summer cottages" on Jerusalem Rd. needed a way to get from the railroad to their property. Tilden's carriages from this stable were the taxi-cabs of the day.

Noise and Vibration Measurement — Last week we mentioned that the MBTA will be visiting Cohasset (and all the other Greenbush Towns) to evaluate the actual noise and vibration from the train so that it can be compared with their initial calculated values. The accompanying photograph shows one of the MBTA's consultants installing their noise measuring equipment on the walkway behind the South Shore Art Center. A calibrated microphone and sound measuring data logger were set up and measured the sound for a period of 24 hours. These numbers will then be compared with the predicted values that were developed by the MBTA's engineers before the project was constructed.

Faces of the Little Harbor Sewer / Water/ Drainage Project — Bill Needle is one of the resident engineers working for Coughlin Environmental Services, LLC, the principal engineering firm for this water/sewer/drainage project. You will usually find Bill out in the middle of a construction site keeping track of the amount and quality of the contractor's work. These data collected by the Resident Engineers during construction are also used to cross check the contractor's invoices to the Town. This is a very important function to assure that we are being charged only for the work actually done. In the normal course of the project Bill also handles interface with the residents in the construction areas for which he has responsibility. Bill is Cohasset's link to the project, since he resides in Cohasset with his wife and two children (actually young adults). He received his technical education from Wentworth Institute of Technology with a degree in Civil Engineering.

Like a lot of his fellow civil engineers Bill has a wide range of work experiences in large-scale projects over the past 23 years. These projects have taken him far from his home and family from time to time. For example he has worked on a Dulles Airport expansion outside of Washington, DC. More locally, he has worked on the new Terminal A project at Logan. Other jobs have been with the Central Artery and most recently, the new Boston Expo and Convention Center. This last project was very interesting in that it alone consumed about 25,000 tons of steel. To give you an idea of how much steel this is, imagine a 40-story building laid on its side. That's 25,000 tons of steel! According to Bill, one of the greatest things about this Cohasset job is his commute (or lack thereof).

The $$$ perils of eating out

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

I was having breakfast with a friend at Eddy's, my favorite haunt on East 48th Street in Manhattan, one morning when an item on the menu, Eggs Benedict, caught her eye.

"What," she asked, "can they do to an egg to make it worth $1.85?"

That was 45 years ago, give or take a year or two, and Eddy's has long since disappeared under a brand new skyscraper, the McGraw-Hill Building.

Eddy's was the place where the genial proprietor, Eddy Von Pabben, used to throw a Christmas party every year for needy kids from Harlem.

"You vill haff fun!" he used to order them. We used to call it, "Christmas with the German general staff."

But I digress.

I was having brunch the other day at Strawberry Faire in Norwell, roughly the updated equivalent of the old Eddy's in price range, and I happened to notice the price of Eggs Benedict. It was $11.

I had the monster pancake with blueberries, hold the sausage, for $7, and it was pretty good, if you're interested.

I think I'm only now coming to grips with the truth everyone else has long since mastered that the days of 10-cent beer and 20-cent gallon of gas — and paycheck to match — are gone, never to return.

When I was young and ice covered most of the earth I worked afternoons after school and Saturdays for Gus Wernstrom at the First National supermarket in Weymouth Landing and ate Saturday night's franks and beans at Andy's Diner by the big rock.

I think the price was 20 cents, which won't buy you one frankfort these days. Diners like Andy's are a thing of the past, too.

The businessman's lunch at the Howard Johnson's in the Granite Trust Building in Quincy was soup, baked sausage, mashed potatoes, green peas, coffee and Jello for 35 cents. I know because I looked it up.

Right now you'd be hard put the find a lunch like that for $6 or $7. Ho Jo is only a memory in these parts, the Granite Trust is a Bank of America and when I send out for coffee and a muffin in the morning I get coins in change for $4.

A couple of weeks ago I would have said that the chief villain in the piece is the price of food until I learned from Newsweek that the average consumer still devotes only 14.9 per cent of expenditures to food and beverage.

For instance, hamburger was only 23 cents a pound in the First National stores in the war year of 1942. I don't do the shopping in our house any more but I'm willing to bet that even hamburger currently has a $ sign and the figure 2 before the decimal point.

Forgive me for waxing nostalgic for the 10-cent beers I used to throw down at the long-gone Adele's Café on Pearl Street in South Braintree and the three cans of Lions ale I used to buy for 25 cents at Quincy Market, now a parking lot on Chestnut Street.

It's not easy being green

THE FAR SIDE OF PERFECT

DIANE K. DANIELSON

While I'm a little late to the party, it's time to finally go green. I tried this once back in the early 1990s. But, I never truly fulfilled my potential as an environmental attorney. I never hugged any trees. Instead, trapped in a recession, it was either kill more trees by sending out hundreds of resumes that would generate hundreds of rejections (we didn't apply online back in the dark ages), or take the only job available in the field of environmental law. And, that's how I ended up representing clients who really did want to pave paradise and put up a parking lot. I hit the low point when one of them even tried to pin a superfund site cleanup on the Girls Scouts of America.

Whatever the reason: environmental repentance, Girl Scout guilt, or the need to fulfill my end of the generational contract, I'm going to at least try to eradicate my carbon footprint. Unfortunately, I'm discovering that it's not so easy being green.

First, I tried to unsubscribe from all those catalogs that mysteriously multiply in my mailbox, starting with those menopause ones that began appearing on my 40th birthday. I collected a stack and made some calls. Some had easy options to do this. Others (e.g., a certain "hardware" store that doesn't sell hardware – restored or otherwise) kept disconnecting me whenever I pressed the option for "removal from mailing list." Argh. Then, when I was just about halfway through the stack, a very nice man at another catalog that sells neither crates nor barrels, informed me that at many companies, I not only had to ask to get off their own mailing list, but also the mailing list they sell to others. Well, that was news to me and explains why some of my initial efforts didn't have that much of an effect. Back to the stacks.

Next, I went through all the newspapers and magazines that I never get around to reading. I had no qualms about unsubscribing from many of them or simply letting subscriptions lapse, as I get most of my news online anyhow. But, there was an internal struggle with the handful for which I occasionally write. If I unsubscribe and everyone else does the same, aren't I sort of shooting myself in the foot? Yet, I opted to put the earth first (Papa Gore did say that it was going to be inconvenient) and hoped that no one in subscriptions was talking to the editorial staff.

After the paper purge, my focus was bottles. Thought I had this one solved by finally using all those water bottles I'd picked up at conferences where I'd spoken or attended. So, the other week as we were running out to baseball, I grabbed a bottle to fill it. My son took one look at it, saw it was pink and said "no way!" Then I found a red one, but it said "Girls Inc." on it (a fabulous charity, but clearly that wasn't going to fly either). Fortunately, I found a Framingham football booster club one. Still not sure where I picked it up, but it certainly did the trick.

Now, I'm struggling to remember to print on two sides of every piece of paper, bring my own bags to the supermarket, take shorter showers, and turn off the heated drying option on my dishwasher. We're also tracking green points, which can be earned by anyone in the house who turns off lights and appliances or comes up with other eco-friendly improvements. (Five green points can be cashed in at any time for an actual "green-back dollar.") I know this is all good for the environment, but it's still a bit more difficult than I expected.

Nevertheless, there are some rewards to looking at your life through lime-colored lenses. Like the fact that my 9-year-old VW and the 25 miles per gallon it gets is looking better and better every day. Sure, my SUV-driving neighbors could all still run me right over like a speed bump and barely notice; but, I can go three times as far on $50. Maybe when gas hits $5/gallon, I'll actually be cool. Although according to my son, it's going to take a whole lot more than that.

Diane K. Danielson is a Cohasset resident who remains a Mariner subscriber, as that was the only newspaper to be spared in the eco-purge; although she dutifully deducts a green point each and every Friday.

It's time to make these history

By Debbie Cook
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

It's taken years to get the message across that smoking is harmful to our health, but today it is universally acknowledged that it is time to make smoking history – even by those who are still hooked.

Now it may be time to make the little yellow pesticide and herbicide warning signs that ubiquitously sprout on our lawns history as well. We are learning more and more that there are better ways of achieving healthy, beautiful yards without exposing our children and pets to potentially harmful chemicals.

Studies have shown that pesticides and herbicides sprayed onto our lawns can be tracked into our homes by people and pets, where they can stay imbedded in our carpets and furniture, increasing their concentrations and our exposure to them. There are a litany of ailments associated with these chemicals, including learning disabilities and hyperactivity.

Besides the potential personal health aspects from direct exposure, many of these chemicals do not stay put. If it rains within a short time after application they can migrate into our groundwater and surface waters, possibly impacting the natural world and our drinking water.

In addition, the more products we apply on our lawns, the more our lawns seem to require. There is a logical reason for that. Chemically treated lawns require so much more effort (and so much more expense) because commercial lawn care programs are equivalent to feeding our lawns fast food. Like a fast food junkie, grass grows quickly, but it's not very healthy. That quick growth takes its toll in a weaker root system, which allows pests and weeds to gain a foothold, and the cycle of reliance on chemicals instead of Mother Nature continues.

The weaker root system also causes another problem. Since the roots are much less thick and deep, they can't hold water in the soil as well. Consequently, chemically-dependent lawns require much more water, upping your water bill substantially.

There are better ways to have a beautiful, healthy yard, and they really do work. It may take a while to wean our lawns off the chemical fast food fix, and give the root systems time to get healthy again, but the results are well worth the effort for so many reasons. You never have to keep your pets or kids off the grass; you have a healthy micro- ecological system; you don't need to water so much; and you have a yard that requires less care.

If you are wondering how to get started weaning your yard off its chemical dependency, check out our Web site www.greenscapes.org for more information. There are some simple practices that you can start right away, such as mowing your grass 3" high. This practice effectively crowds out many weeds. You can also leave your grass clippings on the lawn, where they quickly decompose giving you free fertilizer. You can water only when your lawn needs it by taking some simple tests, such as the shovel and walk tests, which you'll find explained on the Web site.

If you don't want to deal with yard care, and you'd rather hire a professional, look for someone who has been certified by NOFA (Northeast Organic Farming Association). You can find listings of professionals in your area on www.nofa.org. If you decide to go with other professionals, you can find a list of questions you can ask them to make sure they are using benign, healthy products on your lawn on the www.greenscapes.org website.

It really is time to make those pesky little yellow warning signs history.

Debbie Cook is Greenscapes Manager.

Bark-a-thon event at Wompatuck State Park

A walk in Wompatuck State Park to benefit the local animal shelter will take place from 9 a.m. to noon, on Sunday, May 18. The walk begins and ends in the parking lot outside the Visitors Center Common Room at the Wompatuck State Park entrance off Union Street in Hingham.

How can people help: Get one or more sponsors, collect a donation in any amount and bring one's dog – real or imagined – to Wompatuck State Park the morning of May 18 and take one of several trails through the park and meet back in the parking lot for prizes refreshments and fun.

How can companies help: Just make a donation in any amount or donate goods or services that can be given out as prizes or help in the care of the animals at the animal shelter. Company information will be posted during the event on the Wall of Fame.

The shelter serves the five towns of Scituate, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull and Norwell on an as-needed basis. It is a nonprofit, tax-exempt organization dedicated to the welfare of companion animals. The mission is to rescue abandoned, homeless animals and give them proper care, love and attention. The shelter is a no-kill facility.

The event organizer, William Hall, a junior at Hingham High School, is an avid animal lover. His dog, a 3-year-old terrier mix named Princes Leia, was adopted at the shelter, and he has a pet sitting business that he has operated for several years in his spare time. With the help of the local students his family and friends, he hopes to make "Bark a thon 2008" even more successful than the last two years.

For information, contact Hall by email at william@gailhall.com or call 781 749 4492. Donations can also be sent to Friends of Scituate Animal Shelter, P.O. Box 823, Scituate MA 02066. Note Bark-a-thon 2008 on checks.

Poster contest

Posters and signs will be collected to hang all over the South Shore for the Bark a thon 2008 Walk in Wompatuck all year. Motivational, colorful messages of encouragement to hang in the towns that use and need the no kill animal shelter are sought. The shelter suggests business or school groups to have a poster contest and select the best design, most colorful or just get people together and have a poster-making party. This is also a great way to get kids involved in a community service project and help animals.

This project is ongoing. Once posters are completed, schedule a time to bring them by the event or call Hall at 781-749-4492 to arrange a drop off or pick up.

STUDENTs community service hours

This is a new program developed to engage volunteers in community outreach and get students involved while allowing students to get community service hours and have fun. This nonprofit group event will count toward community service hours and forms will be filled out upon completion of the hours worked. Shelter workers will help students develop an outreach plan and represent the Walk in Wompatuck.

Event support

Volunteers are needed before the event, at the opening of the walk and along the walk during the event. Help out for a couple of hours or sign up for the day. Event volunteer forms are available online by emailing william@gailhall.com and before the event.

Relay For Life planned for June 13-14

Relay for Life is the signature fundraiser of the American Cancer Society. Participants raise money by personally collecting donations and organizing group fundraisers prior to or at the event. The money goes towards cancer research, patient services, advocacy and education. It also provides hope to those how have cancer and their family and friends that a cure is available, it provides hope that cancer can be detected in its early stages and it provides hope that cancer is eradicated in our life time. The Hingham/Hull/Cohasset and Scituate Relay will be held on June 13th and 14th organizations clubs, family, friends and co-workers form teams of at least 8-15people and gather at Cohasset High School on the 13th.

Members of the team take turns walking around the track for the duration of the event. An important part of Relay is honoring and remembering those people in our lives who have faced cancer. Each Relay invites cancer survivors in the community to walk a special Survivors Lap. Another focal point of each Relay is the Luminaria Ceremony, held after dark, where candles are sponsored and lit in honor and memory of our loved ones who have battled this disease. Part of what makes Relay for Life special is its atmosphere — the sense of community, camaraderie and hope that permeates the event from start to finish. Hope has become the catchword of Relay, because hope is what it's all about; the hope that one day we will be free from the fear of this terrible disease, that our children will grow up in a world where cancer is no longer fatal. Relay is a time to do something about a danger that seems so much bigger than us, and to know that we are actually making a difference. It is a time to reflect, to remember those who have been lost and those who can still be saved. And it is also a lot of fun to be there with friends and take part in the activities.

THE HOUSE AND SENATE. Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on four roll calls from the week of May 5-9. There were no roll calls in the House last week.

$472 MILLION TAX HIKE (S 2675)

Senate 31-6, approved a tax package that would raise $472 million in new tax revenues. A key provision imposes a $1 per pack increase in the state's cigarette tax. The measure would raise the current $1.51 per pack tax to $2.51. The package also includes provisions providing a mix of phased-in tax rate cuts for corporations and financial institutions and increased taxes on corporations by closing so-called loopholes; requiring businesses that resell hotel rooms to collect taxes on the difference between the retail price of the room paid by the consumer and the discounted price the reseller pays to acquire the room and allowing stores to lower the price of cigarettes to compensate for the $1 tax hike. The measure accomplishes that by repealing a current law that establishes the lowest price that stores are allowed to charge for cigarettes. Supporters said that the package is a fiscally responsible and necessary one that balances a corporate tax rate cut with the closing of unfair corporate tax loopholes. They argued that the state is facing a $1 billion deficit and noted that the $472 million would help balance the budget without raising broad-based taxes or making cuts in important programs. Opponents said that tax hikes are outrageous coming on the heels of the announcement that April tax revenues exceeded expectations by $333 million and that overall fiscal 2008 revenues now exceed expectations by more than $700 million. They said that the business tax hikes would hurt many small businesses, make it more difficult for the state to retain and attract companies and result in the loss of jobs. The argued that the cigarette tax hike would hurt many low-income individuals as well as small convenient stores that are already struggling in this rocky economy. The House has approved a lower $392 million tax hike and a conference committee will likely work out a compromise version. (A "Yes" vote is for the $472 million tax hike. A "No" vote is against it).

PERMANENT SALES TAX-FREE HOLIDAY IN AUGUST (S 2675)

Senate 5-33, rejected an amendment establishing a permanent annual two-day sales tax holiday in August. The amendment would require the Department of Revenue to choose the dates of the holiday and announce them by July 15 each year. Amendment supporters said that it is time to make this "win-win" holiday a permanent one and noted that similar tax-free holidays over the past four years have saved shoppers millions of dollars and resulted in a substantial increase in retail sales for the two days. They argued that the state's sales tax revenue loss would be offset by increased revenue from the meals and gas tax generated by shoppers. Some noted that a permanent holiday would give consumers the opportunity to plan purchases in advance and not have to sit around and see if the Legislature approves the holiday each year. Amendment opponents said that it is fiscally irresponsible to approve a permanent holiday without regard to the economic situation of the state during a specific year. They argued that the Legislature should look at the state's economy and revenues each year and decide one year at a time whether the state can afford a sales tax holiday. Some noted that a permanent holiday would hurt year-round retail sales because many consumers would hold off until August to make big purchases. (A "Yes" vote is for establishing a permanent annual two-day sales tax holiday in August. A "No" vote is against establishing it).

STRIKE AUDIT REQUIREMENT (S 2675)

Senate 9-29, rejected an amendment that would eliminate a provision in the tax bill that automatically disallows the election and triggers an automatic state audit when a corporation elects to use its federal consolidated group as the base for its combined report. The election would be disallowed only if it results in the company paying the state 20 percent less and at least $1 million less than if the company had not filed that way. Supporters of the provision said that allowance of the federal consolidated group election is what the business community asked for and noted that it would save businesses money and provide certainty when companies determine which corporations belong in their combined tax returns. They noted that the provision to disallow the election in certain cases is necessary as a saleguard to protect the state from being cheated out of tax dollars. Opponents of the provision said that the automatic audit is anti-business and unfair and would result in a prolonged audit and court process over which corporations belong in a company's combined tax return. They argued that the provision places too much power in the hands of the State Department of Revenue, produces uncertainty and unpredictability and makes these companies guilty until proven innocent. (A "Yes" vote is for striking the provision that disallows the election and therefore is against the provision. A "No" vote is against striking the election provision and therefore in favor of the provision).

IMPOSE NEW FIVE PERCENT SALES TAX ON LIQUOR STORE SALES (S 2675)

Senate 12-26, rejected an amendment imposing a five percent tax on alcoholic beverages, including liquor, wine and beer, purchased at package stores and other retailers. The amendment also earmarked these tax revenues for substance abuse treatment programs. Amendment supporters said that Massachusetts is a state with one of the most serious addiction problems in the nation and noted that there are an estimated 577,000 addicts who need treatment. They argued that the tax would raise an estimated $87 million that could be used to help save and improve many addicts' lives. Some amendment opponents said that they are sympathetic to the amendment but noted that the state is facing a $1 billion shortfall and should not be adding money to many programs. Others said that the proposal should not be filed as a budget amendment and argued that it should be offered as a separate piece of legislation that goes through the legislative process including public hearings. (A "Yes" vote is for the five percent tax on alcoholic beverages purchased at package stores and other retailers. A "No" vote is against the five percent tax).

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL

OTHER AMENDMENTS TO TAX BILL (S 2675) - Dozens of amendments were proposed to the Senate's $472 million tax package. Most of them were defeated on voice votes without a roll call. These include proposals to repeal the tax credits and other incentives that the state offers companies that film movies in Massachusetts; eliminate the proposed $1 per pack cigarette tax increase; exempt cities and towns' vehicle fuel purchases from the 21 cent per gallon gas tax and provide an additional one-time $100 million in local aid to cities and towns from the revenue that is raised in the tax package. The Tongue-in-cheek Amendment Award goes to the House Republicans who said that the tax package would hurt the state's economy. They proposed an amendment that would rename the proposal "An act to promote economic stimulus in New Hampshire, Rhode Island and other states in the Union." It failed on a voice vote.

Safety first for school bus drivers

Bus drivers have many skills beyond the ability to drive a 40-foot vehicle. They memorize the names of as many as 150 students each year (most of them know more), as well as their parents' names. They know which students are on their route and the bus stop for each of them. They administer first aid in the event of minor accidents. They play the role of police officer, enforcing the bus rules of no eating, drinking or talking loudly. They also enforce the rules of the school: Osgood students, for example, are not allowed to get off at any bus stop other than their own; and Deer Hill students can ride only their own buses.

Just like teachers, bus drivers have a certain affection for the kids who ride their buses. They watch the children grow and are sad if they change bus routes or move out of town.

They also have to play the role of disciplinarian, if the situation arises.

"We try to handle issues within the bus, but we have the support of the school," Dickson said.

"We always have to err on the side of caution … we don't want to put other kids in jeopardy."

On the road

Both Dow and Dickson say one of their biggest challenges is sharing the road with inattentive motorists. Drivers talking on cell phones don't notice the buses' stop signs; cars tailgate the bus, where the driver can't see.

Dickson's favorite tools are the seven mirrors that help the drivers see almost all the way around the bus. But the mirror can only show so much. Anywhere within ten feet of the bus is called the "danger zone," Dow said.

"If you can't see my mirrors, I can't see you," Dow noted. Mirrors need to be scanned constantly for children and traffic, whether moving or sitting still.

All the buses are have bumper stickers reminding other drivers to stay back 100 feet – approximately the length of two telephone poles.

Astonishingly, several times a week other drivers ignore the school buses' stop signs, which signal children are either entering or exiting the bus. The rule also applies cyclists, who can be traveling just as fast as a car.

"Sometimes I wish I could put a bumper sticker saying, 'Would you pass this bus if your child was on it?'" Dow said.

The bus drivers do what they can to be courteous to other drivers. All the bus routes have "pull over" points to allow the cars behind them to pass.

To become qualified to sit behind the wheel of a 40-foot bus, with 50 kids behind them, drivers undergo an involved training and screening process. First, they need pass a written test to obtain a commercial driver's license. Then they must complete a minimum of twenty hours of on-the-road training in a bus; pass a physical exam and drug/alcohol test; and undergo a mandatory criminal record check. At that point, the Department of Transportation administers a road test. Only the applicants who pass all these tests can drive a bus.

Daily routine

In the transportation world, safety is the priority. When the bus drivers arrive at work shortly after 6 a.m., they do a series of safety checks on their vehicles. They start their buses, check the safety lights, inspect the tires, and check under the bus for leaks.

"We get there early to make sure everything is properly functioning," said Dow, who has been behind the wheel of a school bus for the last 23 years, 16 of them in Cohasset.

(It was Dow who convinced Dickson to become a bus driver. Five years ago Dickson joined the Cohasset transportation team.)

Cohasset's seven school buses are 3 to 14 years old, so breakdowns do happen. The bus drivers know their buses intimately, so if they notice a strange noise or new leak, they get in touch with Marty Hale, their go-to guy for all repairs. Hale is also called to the scene if there is a problem or malfunction while the bus in en route. He is usually able to respond to a call within 15 minutes.

"Nine times out of ten, he's able to be resolve the problem on scene. He maintains the buses and makes sure they are safe, " Dickson said. "The worst thing that can happen is to have a bus grounded. We just don't have the fluff."

Hale has a background in heavy equipment repair and he takes his job of ensuring the safety of the buses with great care and dedication.

"There's no halfway for me," said Hale. "Dedication to safety is the number one rule and it's serious business from aircrafts to buses. I always say I won't sign off on equipment unless I am willing to put my grandmother in it."

He said he counts on the bus drivers' input and never discounts what they say, even if the problem can't be found on the first try, he follows through. "We have a good team right now. We communicate and all have the same goals."

Safety is a number one priority, with extending the life of the bus a close behind, he said.

In addition to the seven iconic school buses, there are two full time special education vans.

Each day the transportation team drops off and picks up 53 percent of the student population, approximately 805 of the 1495 students in Cohasset. Middle-High School students are the first to be picked up. The first bus heads out of the Cedar Street bus depot around 6:45 a.m. Because the Middle-High School is the largest route, housing seven grades, all six buses are utilized. Next are the Deer Hill pick-ups, followed by Osgood.

A bus route averages eight miles from school to school.

Dickson says the department tries to transport students on as many athletic and field trips as possible. For athletic trips, they travel as far as Weston or Orleans. The field trips may be long distance, to Providence or Springfield, or right around the corner to the South Shore Art Center.

Scheduling can be a challenge, but Dickson remains on her toes in the event of a sick driver or broken-down bus.

"You plan as best as you can and deal with the scheduling changes as they come," Dickson said.

Bus safety

- Respect a bus's stop sign, which means students are getting on or off the bus. This rule applies bikes as well as cars.
- Buses must stop at all railroad grade crossings. Even if a train just passed, school buses are required to stop, look and listen again.
- Stay 100 feet (about the length of two telephone poles) behind the bus. Never tailgate.
- Students should never run after a bus – the driver can't see the student.
- There is a 10-foot blind spot on the sides and rear of the buses.
- Always yield to a bus.

Skippers clinch at least a share of the SSL title

By Joel Racicot
JRACICOT@CNC.COM

Three huge matches were on the menu this week. The main course came first. In what surely would ultimately decide who would reign champion of the South Shore League in girls tennis, Cohasset took out Norwell 3-2, beating the Clippers for the second time this season.

The Skippers won 4-1 the first time these two teams met.

Follow up 5-0 sweeps of East Bridgewater and Carver all but secured at least a share of the SSL title, putting the girls at 12-1 overall and 10-0 in the league.

By all accounts the outright race for the league is in the bag. This week's dominating performances sealed things up quite nicely.

Cohasset 3, Norwell 2

Sally Meehan (6-0, 6-1) and Maddy Altholtz (6-0, 6-0) cruised at second and third singles for Cohasset. Susan Bitetti did what Susan Bitetti does, winning at first singles. Meg Anderson has the upper hand going into the majority of matches, but the Norwell star proves again and again she is quite the whiz on the clay court.

Second doubles team, Danielle Sookiasian and Laura Allen were clutch, winning 7-6 (8-6), 6-0. The match was tied 2-2 and their win decided was the decider.

"They looked at me and said, 'don't worry,'" Cohasset coach Gigi Meehan said.

First doubles team Maggie McGoldrick and Jean Thomae lost 6-4, 6-2.

Meehan attributed the second doubles team success to the state individual tournament that occurred the previous weekend. They got out of the first round at the tournament at Hingham High School, and after trailing 0-3 forced a tiebreaker in the second set against their

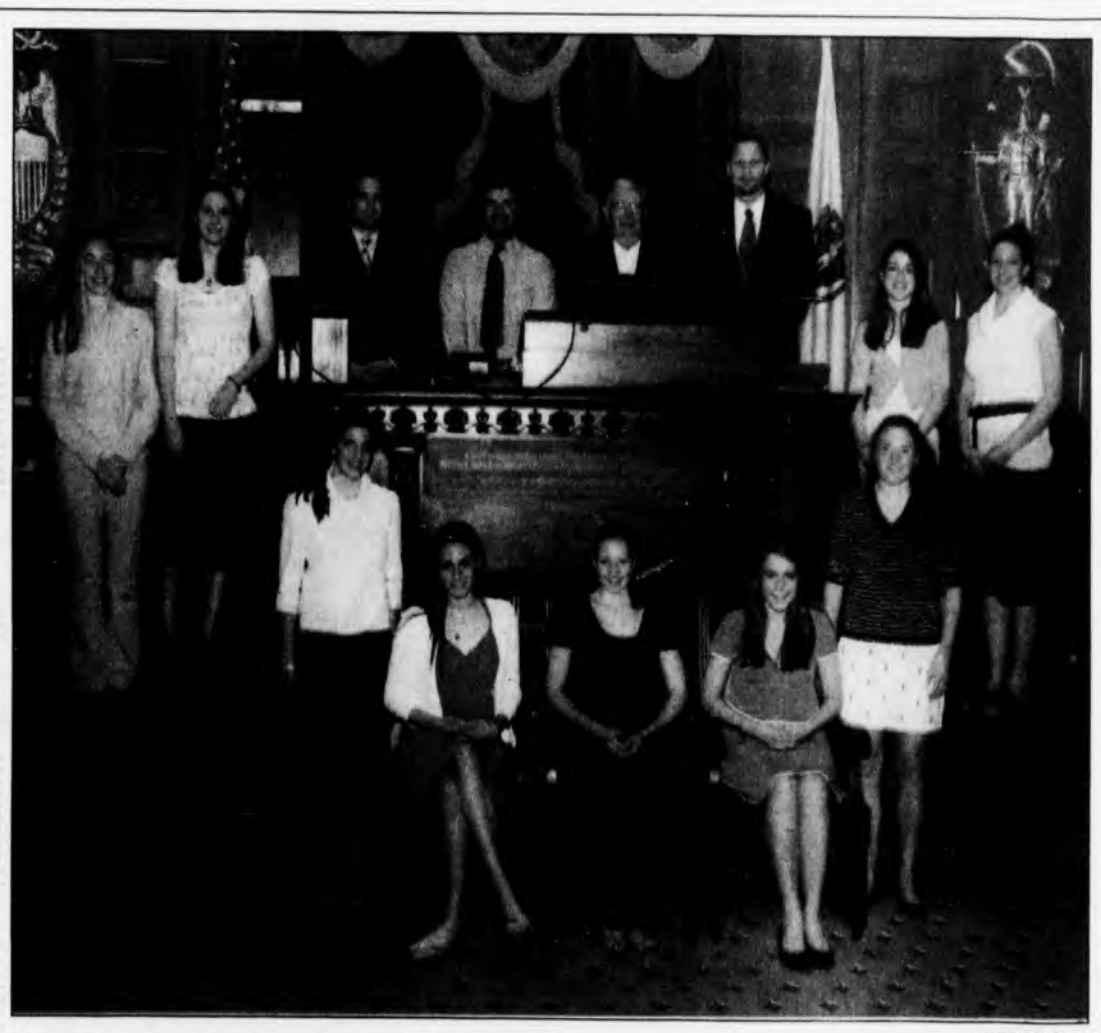
After once again splitting their two games of the week, the Cohasset High baseball team now sees the south sectional right in front of them. Just like every other season, the Skippers have hopes to make the playoffs this year.

After splitting their two games this week, a loss to Norwell and a win at East Bridgewater, the only question now is when these Skippers will get their next win to clinch a playoff berth.

The 8-1 loss to Norwell was no different than the past few weeks, as the Skippers hitting woes continued and their pitching struggled a bit. Cohasset only tallied five total hits, two of them coming from junior John Sturino. He finished with two singles and drove in the Skippers' lone run of the afternoon.

Senior pitcher Brian Hill was not his usual self in this game as he struggled with control problems that led to him walking eight Norwell batters. Hill allowed seven hits and three earned runs in 5 2/3 innings, as Cohasset made four errors on the day, which accounted for five of the eight Norwell runs.

"It was one of the few games we've played poorly defensively all year," said Cohasset coach Al Gallotta.



Up to that point, Cohasset

US Lacrosse has announced the four team rosters for the 2008 National Senior Showcase, to be played June 20-21 at Benedictine University in Chicago. The annual all-star game features outstanding senior boys high school players representing the North, South, West and East regions of the country.

"We are very pleased to have 96 of the best high school seniors from all over the country playing in the fifth annual NSS," said Jody Martin, men's division director at US Lacrosse. "We'd like to thank our High School Committee for their very diligent work in selecting these teams. COASTAL NISSAN salutes the South Shore Athlete of the Month

Braintree's ace hurler Liz DiMascio picked up from her stellar 2007 season with a no-hitter to start this year against Framingham, registering 10 strikeouts and one walk in the process. The senior tri-captain was once again stellar in her next start against Walpole, where she cruised to the victory by fanning 13 batters on three hits and no earned runs. DiMascio pitched her third straight shutout against Milton, giving up three hits on the Wamps' way to a 13-0 victory.

Coastal Nissan has donated $500 to the Braintree High School Athletic Fund in Liz DiMascio's name.

Meehan and Altholtz both made the second round at individuals before losing.

"We didn't go in their thinking we were going to be champs, but it was good they all got through a round," Meehan said.

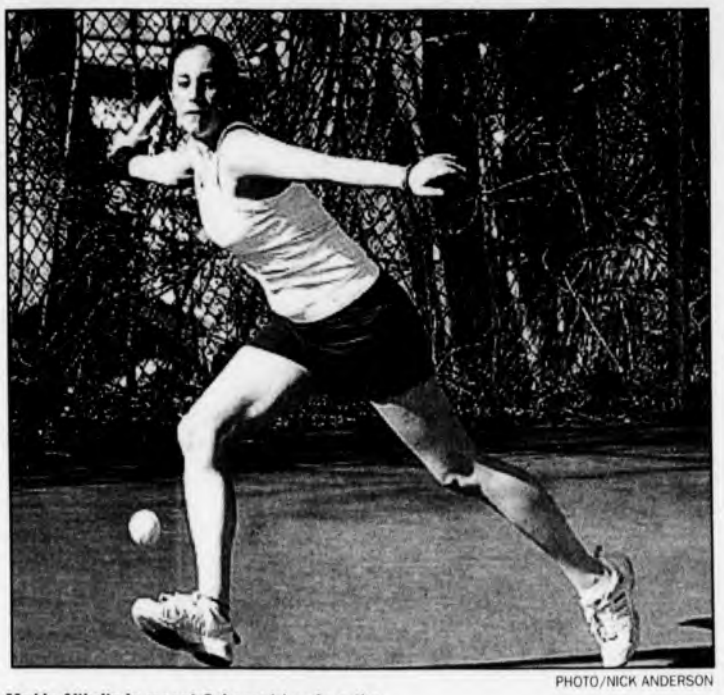
Anderson, Meehan and Altholtz all won at singles. McGoldrick and Tina D'Antonio won 6-1, 6-4 in a big win at first singles. Sookiasian and Jackie Cahill won 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 at second doubles.



East Bridgewater's second doubles team had only lost once to Norwell all season.

Cohasset 5, Carver 0

McGoldrick and Thomae won at first doubles. Sookiasian and Allen won at second.

"We are peaking at the right time," Meehan said. "We had the talent but I feel much more secure in our doubles pairings this year, they have had to get some really tough wins."

averaged a little over one error per game.

The one highlight of the game was the pitching performance of senior Dave Snowdale. After coming in on relief for Hill, Snowdale pitched 11/3 innings to end the game. He retired all four batters he faced.

The East Bridgewater game was completely different, as the team unleashed their bats. In an all out slugfest with the wind blowing out and very hard, Cohasset triumphed over, 15-14, as the two teams combined for 33 total hits. All 18 starters between the two teams had at least one hit in the game.

Sophomore Brendan Doonan hit a game winning home run in the top of the seventh inning that gave the Skippers their 15-14 lead and the eventual victory.

Doonan's homerun was one of five Cohasset round trippers for the day, all hit by different players. Brendan's brother, senior Pat Doonan, and Snowdale both had solo shots in the game, and senior Kyle Pinkus had a three-run blast as well.

These were all bested by senior Sam DeGiacomo's grand slam. Seniors Alex Goetz and Chris Rose also had good days at the plate as both had two hits. The majority of this offense came in the third inning when Cohasset really pulled ahead.

At this point Cohasset trailed by numerous runs and the game looked bleak for them, but the Skippers tallied 11 hits in the inning and had 12 men crossed the plate. At one point, 11 straight batters reached for Cohasset, all but one on a hit.

DeGiacomo started the game for Cohasset but struggled in the windy weather. It was Snowdale who once again came on in relief to close the game. Although he did allow three runs, Snowdale pitched the final three innings to pick up the win.

With this win Cohasset remained only a game behind first place in the South Shore League standings and faces maybe its toughest challenge yet next week. Cohasset has six games in five days next week, virtually unheard of, due to multiple rainouts earlier in the season.

"There's still a lot to be determined," stated Gallotta about his team's hopes for the remainder of the season. He did recognize that the team's confidence is higher than ever before.

Girls Youth Lacrosse Notes

On a gorgeous Mother's Day afternoon, girls youth lacrosse teams played on the road in Quincy and at home against Marshfield and the day came up roses for the moms and several of the teams alike.

At the 15-and-Under level (grades 7 and 8), the Blue and White teams were forced to combine and play two games together as one team because the holiday – plus a school trip to Quebec – meant that there were too few players for the individual Blue and White teams to make a go of it.

The loss of a majority of the eighth graders might have been trouble for most teams, but it never bothered the Cohasset girls, as they blew past Quincy 13-6 and came home to beat Marshfield 12-7.

In Quincy, the home team got on the ball first and kept things close at 3-2 midway through the first half, but then Cohasset went on a run and never looked back. Lauren Geary from Hull scored two of the team's seven first-half goals, with Kristen Alexander, Amanda Farren, Isabella Flibotte, Mariel Teague and Alison Whelan scoring solo goals. For Whelan, the goal was the 50th of her youth career, and was the start of a very big day.

The team added six scores in the second half, three of them from Whelan, another from Geary, and one each from Jenna Reece and Cassedy Gwynn. Sarah Evans stopped seven shots in the net, and Cohasset coasted to a 13-6 win.

At home against Marshfield, it was a game of runs, with Cohasset jumping out to a 4-1 lead, only to see Marshfield string together four goals to go to the break up 5-4. Whelan scored three goals, one assisted by Katherine Brown and another by Kristen Alexander, who scored the fourth Cohasset goal of the stanza. Sydney Blanchard – seeing her first-ever time in the net – stopped three Marshfield shots to keep the game close.

The second half opened with Marshfield putting a quick score past Nicole Farren, who – like Blanchard – was an emergency fill-in in the goal. But Farren's first save seemed to calm Cohasset down, and the team responded with a six-goal run of its own. During the outburst, Whelan scored her fourth of the game, Alexander scored twice to finish her hat trick, Jenna Reece scored two of her own, and Cassedy Gwynn stuck a high, hard one past the Marshfield goalie. Marshfield scored once and threatened to make it closer, but Farren came up with a big save, then started the offense by making a key breakout pass that Sarah Evans took virtually the length of the field to score. Whelan ended the day's scoring with her fifth goal of the game and her ninth score of the day; the 10-point day (nine goals, one assist) was enough to move Whelan into fifth place on the girls youth lacrosse all-time scoring list with 68 career points, one ahead of teammate Hope Kissick.

The 11-and-Under White team (grades 3 and 4) played its first home game of the season and played Marshfield to a 6-6 tie. Third-grade attacker Kaitlen McGovern started the scoring, sweeping around from the back of the net after making a nice catch from teammate Libby Mullaney. The ground crew was at it again scooping ground balls left and right. Kara Nelson, Julia Herzfelder, Olivia Gomez and Charlotte Morrison each were credited with multiple ground balls on the day. Madeline Littlejohn scored to give Cohasset a 2-1 lead at the half.

The teams traded scores in the second half. Marcella Flibotte scored first, freed to the goal on a nice assist by Bennet Tierney. A few minutes later, Flibotte returned the favor, assisting Tierney to tie the game up 4-4. Kyle Burke put Cohasset back on top, scoring her first goal of the year after switching from her defensive position to running on a midfield line and Cori Golden finished the scoring making a nice catch when Tierney spotted her wide open in the middle of the field, and firing one into the Marshfield net.

Attack players Madelyn Schwandt and Nonie Thomas earned special kudos on the day by volunteering to play for a Marshfield team that was short players.

The 13-and-Under Blue team (grades 5 and 6) played a Quincy squad that was short-handed on the day, and which made its roster by adding 15-and-Under players to field a team.

Cohasset rose to the challenge and started the scoring quickly, with Molly Fitzgerald rolling the crease and firing one into the bottom corner of the cage. Lexa Grasz followed with a score of her own before Quincy started getting aggressive and tied the game at 2. The Blue squad then turned up the intensity with Kathryn Dunn, Annie McElgunn and Grasz extending the lead to 5-2 at the break. Caty Gilman picked up an assist on Grasz's half-ending score.

Quincy was able to control possession for a large portion of the second half due to their size and speed advantage and tied the game at 5-5. It might have been worse but for the tenacious play of Victoria Bryan and the outstanding goaltending of Olivia Blackburn. Bryan picked up four ground balls and played great defense from her midfield position, while Blackburn made some incredible point-blank saves and finished with a season-high 11 stops.

After seeing its lead evaporate, the Blue squad finished the game strong with Grasz winning the draw with just over a minute left and racing down the field to plant the go-ahead score. The ensuing draw led to a ground ball scrum in the middle of the field and McElgunn smartly snuck in the backside of the pile, scooped the ground ball and ripped an insurance goal into the cage to make the final 7-5.

The 13-U White team battled hard with a depleted roster against an athletic Marshfield team, but fell at home by a final score of 9-6. Maddie Curley led the offensive charge with four goals and one assist and Peyton MacNaught found the mark for two goals and an assist. Mackenzie Axelson played a strong all-around game, with solid draw controls and passing, including one assist.

Goalie Taylor Frederick continued her quality play in net with seven saves and solid clearing. Hannah Cooper saw her first action of the season between the pipes in the second half, and showed strong potential with three saves.

Boys Youth Lacrosse Notes

The White U-13's have been on a role since their Pembroke game three weeks ago. They beat Whitman-Hanson handily, 10-5 on Sunday. Since Pembroke, the Cohasset squad has settled into their positions and is learning how to play as a team. Full-field team play requires players to rely on each other, to be where they belong on the field, so they can make a safe catch to advance the ball.

We have finally come to this in our clears from the goal line to our more coordinated offense.

The action started quickly with Henry Brown facing off. Although he lost possession initially to Whitman, Matt Froio recovered a ground ball and passed it to our attack. Jimmy Maher then recovered a ground ball and shot for our first goal. Maher was a force at attack with three goals and two assists.

Whitman struggled to keep the ball on their offense. Goalie Mats Nelson led our defense with a number of excellent saves. He coordinated quick clears to Mike Yerardi and Jack Hoffman. When the ball hit the ground it seemed that our lead defenseman Jack McElgunn was there to scoop and clear the ball to our half.

He ended the day with eight clears, eight ground balls and one assist after bringing the ball to the crease and feeding attackman Matt Arnold, who shot and scored.

Our midfielders were tenacious at faceoffs and ground balls. Henry Brown won a number of key faceoffs and ground balls, two great clears and two assists. Henry is a master at taking advantage of confusion on the field by knowing where to be at all times. Colin Whelan is another force as midfielder. He plays offense and defense with more confidence and hustle than any other player on the field. No one plays harder and it shows in his ground balls, won faceoffs against much larger players and assist and goals. He had two goals in the forth as an attackman and two assists.

Matt Arnold continues to advance his game as attackman. He had three goals, an assist and a few great feeds from behind the crease. Ross Erler and Chris Lydon both played well at attack with good feeds and on ground balls. Newcomers Max and Will Marsden were "in the thick of it" a few times at the midfield line.

Max made a great play by flipping the ball to Henry Brown, who then cleared the ball for a feed to the attack. Sam Morris also shined with three clears and one un-assisted goal after taking it to the crease from the midfield line.

Chandler Skolnick also had a goal after scooping a ground ball at the crease. We also gained from the efforts of Ryan McElhinney, who was great at ground balls, at the face-off and during clears. Patrick Holway also played a strong midfield game with two face-off wins and couple of excellent clears. The list of contributors to Sunday's game continues to grow because each player can now count upon his teammate to help link together winning plays.36"

Difficult stretch for Skippers

Losses to Marshfield and Barnstable start the week

By Joel Racicot
JRACICOT@CNC.COM

The Cohasset High boys lacrosse team had a tough start to the week losing 11-10 to Barnstable and 17-10 to Marshfield.

The Skippers are 11-5 overall, and at 6-0 have wrapped up their second straight South Shore League title.

Monday's home loss to the Rams wasn't caused by a lack of focus. It was, according to Cohasset coach Stew Curran, because Marshfield is greatly improved.

And the defense just didn't play well.

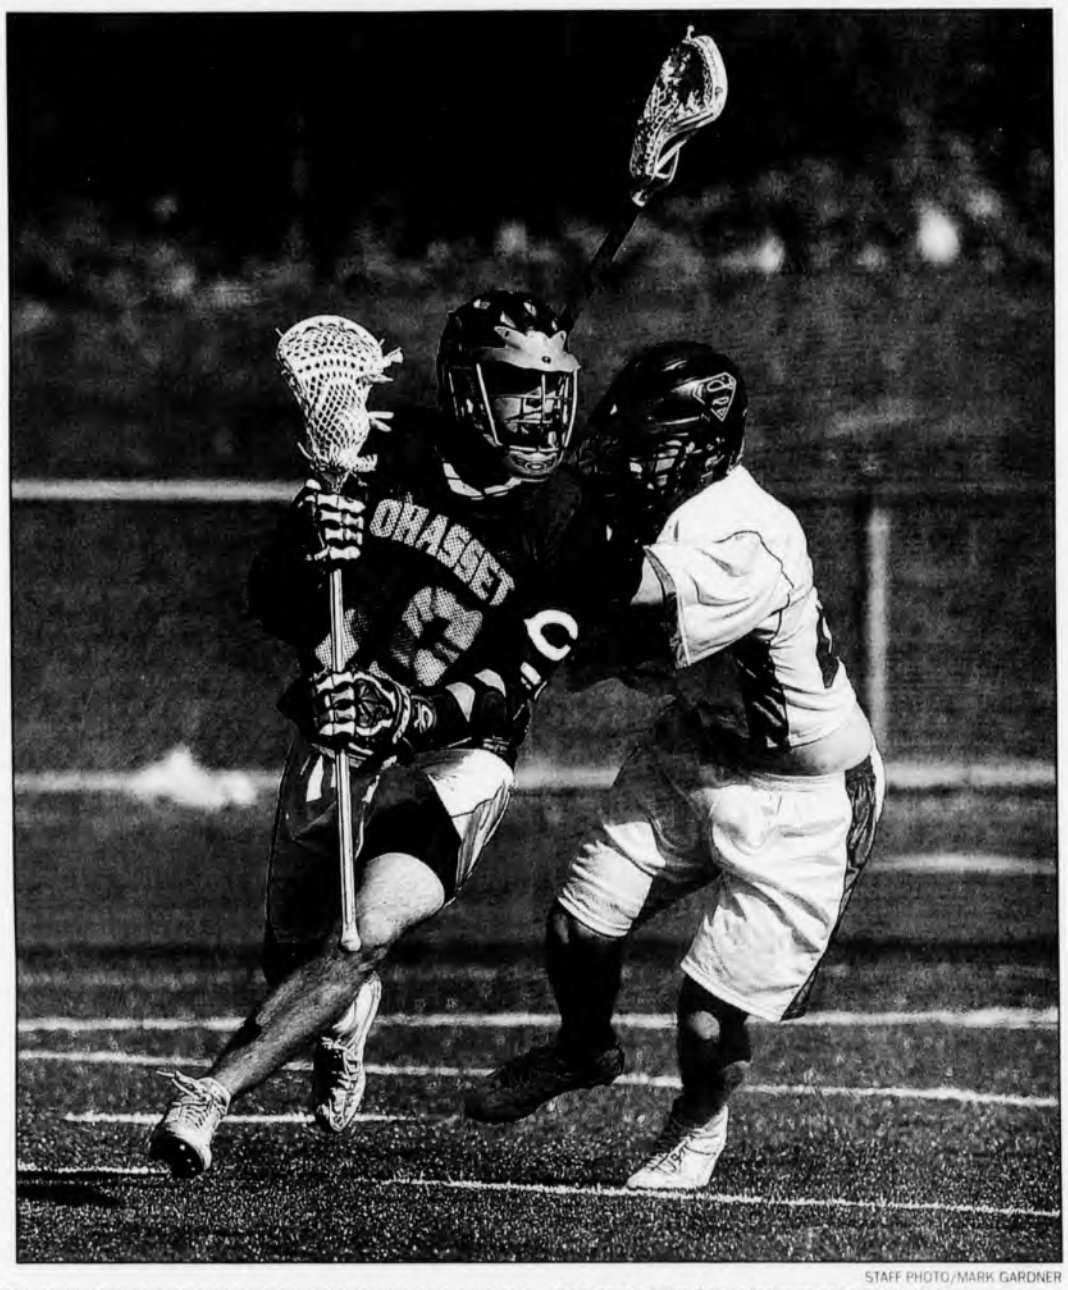
"We didn't have too many penalty situations," Curran said. "Our defense just played inconsistent."

Mike Grimm went down with an injury 30 seconds into the game. He won't be back until the end of next week. Curran expects to have Grimm at full health when the Div. 3 south sectionals roll around in a few weeks.

"He's out for at least a week," Curran said. "We had to sub for him against Marshfield and some of the guys weren't ready for primetime. All in all, Marshfield just clicked on all cylinders."

Mark Flibotte finished with three goals in the game.

"According to Rick Peterson (Marshfield coach) that was the best they had played all year," Curran said.



The loss to the Red Raiders could have gone either way. Cohasset trailed 11-8 in the last two minutes until Flibotte scored a pair to bring the Skippers within one.

Mark Flibotte (3 goals), Will Wise (2 goals), PJ McCaw (1 goal) and Chaz Czerkawski (1 goal) paced the attack.

Cohasset played at Hingham, Thursday after Mariner press time. They will play at home against Nantucket Monday and again at home Thursday against Tabor Academy to end the regular season.

Is Town Hall haunted?

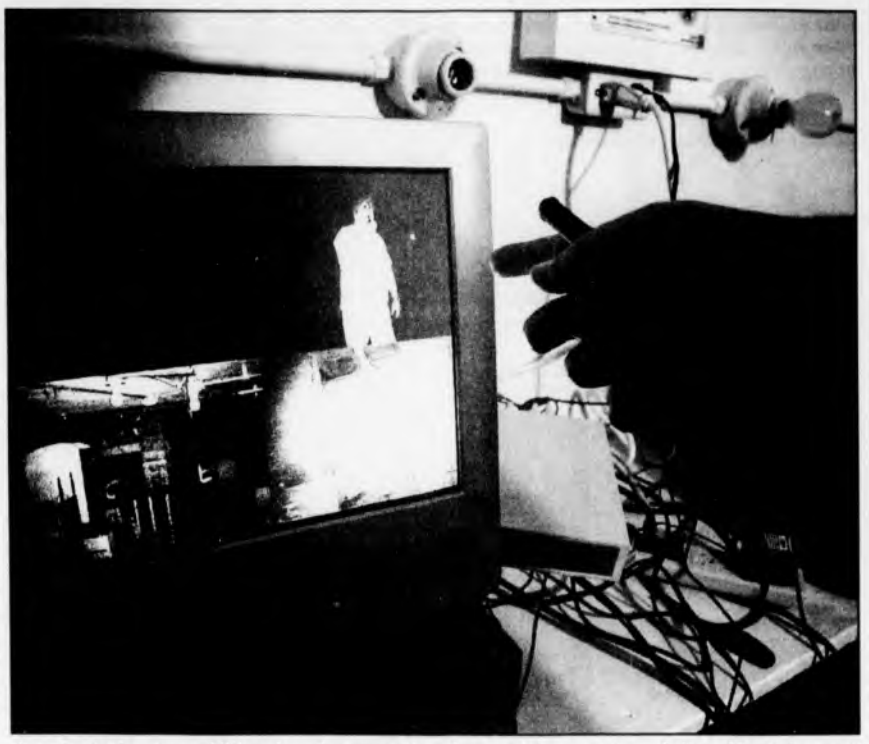
"We're trying to figure out if something is here," Mass Paranormal co-founder and vice president Tom Ventosi said. In late January, the Enfield Paranormal Society declared the Town Hall haunted after a weekend-long investigation.

But Ventosi and Mass Paranormal weren't convinced by his evidence and wanted to check out the historic building themselves.



They take a methodical approach to each of their investigations and, if possible, come back multiple times to ensure a thorough job.

"We do ghost investigations," Ventosi said, as opposed to a ghost hunt. An investigation, he said, entails more research and a procedural, data-collecting approach. All evidence is thoroughly reviewed, and the multiple nights of investigation allow any evidence to be debunked. "We (investigate) until we are satisfied," Vertosi said.

His crew did an initial investigation April 12, when they focused on the large auditorium.

This past weekend, on Mother's Day, they returned. A crew of seven set up their equipment, which included infrared cameras with a live link to the command center, digital cameras, hand-held video cameras and plenty of batteries. Joining Mass Paranormal was psychic/medium Serenity Moore and spiritual advisor Michael Robinson, who were visiting from California, to offer their unique perspectives on the building.

Initially, the group planned to focus their second night of investigation on the basement, where there are three jail cells and plenty of creepy noises even during daylight hours. However, both Robinson and Moore felt more energy while they were in the auditorium.

As a result, an additional infrared camera was installed there. Three infrared cameras were placed in the basement.

Around 9:30 p.m., Moore said she felt there was some sort of presence in the auditorium. She was taking photos on the stage when her camera batteries, charged earlier that day, went dead.

"I am getting the feeling the presence likes to be on stage. I feel like he is happiest on stage," Moore said. She felt the presence was definitely male.

Robinson, too, was feeling some light energy in the auditorium, "nothing negative or heavy yet," he said.

With Moore's batteries replenished, she continued to focus on the auditorium. She wasn't the only investigator to lose power in her digital camera; several of the other investigators kept losing power in their batteries.

"I'm draining batteries like you wouldn't believe," Moore said. By 10 p.m., eight sets of camera batteries had been sucked dry. Ventosi said he had been charging them since the late morning hours.

"The theory is when something is trying to manifest itself they take any energy they can get," including from batteries. Then he cautioned, "It could be anything."

By 10 p.m., the group had gone through eight sets of fresh batteries.

Despite the battery trouble, Ventosi said the group was able to gather several photographs that may indicate some sort of paranormal activity.

The investigators also experienced several other so far unexplainable incidents. While Moore and lead investigator Julie Ventosi were upstairs in meeting room 2B (near the Board of Health office), they attempted to communicate with a spirit using an K2 electromagnetic field (EMF) detector. When the K2 meter is on, an investigator can question the spirits, asking them to respond with a flash once for no, twice for yes, Ventosi explained.

They meter moved after each question, said Ventosi said.

All night long, Ventosi, who mans the technology end of the investigation, had trouble with the walkie-talkies. They would beep, but none of the investigators were speaking. At one point, Julie Ventosi heard her own voice come over the walkie-talkie – and she wasn't speaking. Although they are unsure whether any digital recorders picked it up, shortly after leaving the meeting room the investigators heard unexplained footsteps in the upstairs hall.

Then, at the end of the night, Ventosi, who calls himself a skeptic, was winding up wires in the basement. He found one of the wires was stuck on something. He gave it a quick pull; the wire pulled back. He followed the wire and looked up to see the wire hanging from the ceiling – in mid-air. He tugged the wire again and it came down.

He later confirmed with the tech assistant that they had set up all the wires on the floor earlier that night.

"It felt like someone let go during tug-of-war," Ventosi said in a phone interview. His skepticism immediately kicked in. "I tried to de-bunk it," he said , but he wasn't able to find a reason why the wire endied up near the ceiling.

Mass Paranormal will review the evidence collected in the next few weeks and plans to make a formal presentation to the Town Manager's administrative assistant Jennifer Oram.

Mass Paranormal is not ready to say whether the Town Hall is haunted or even if there is a paranormal presence in the building.

"It could be something passing through. We need more evidence to make a determination," Ventosi said, adding that, of al his group's investigations, only one building has been declared a true haunting.

"For us, we need real proof to back up what we're saying."

Mass Paranormal defines a haunting as "disturbances of a paranormal character, attributed to the spirits of the dead. Traditionally there are two main factors in a haunting: a specific location and a restless spirit. The manifestations vary greatly from haunting to haunting and can include strange noises, displaced objects, apparitions, lights, climate changes, and a myriad of other unnatural phenomena."

Heavenly Honduras

Janine S. Pouliot
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

ROATAN, Honduras -

On those days when you fantasize about escaping to a movie-set-perfect tropical island, Roatan, Honduras, fits the fantasy nicely.

So I learned on a brilliantly sunny day, when the color of the seawater resembled a swimming pool - except one was teaming with brilliant tropical fish - and I found myself sitting in a thatch-roofed restaurant shack supported on stilts above the water in the funky town of West End. I was plenty hot and that crystalline water looked awfully good.

I had forgotten my bathing suit at the inn where I was staying, but fully clothed, I padded down the wooden stairs and dropped into the tranquil sea. Nobody seemed to notice or care.

Eventually, I padded back up the steps and, dripping seawater on the wood floor, headed out onto the one-lane dirt road to a pastel-colored hut selling T-shirts and shorts. Within minutes, I was re-outfitted in dry clothes for $15 and ready for a lunch of just-caught steamed red snapper, rice and beans and fried plantains for $5. An icy cold bottle of beer cost me 50 cents.

Still largely undeveloped for tourism, Roatan - located about 30 miles off the coast of Honduras, and one of three islands making up the Bay of Islands - is a laidback, breathtaking speck of Earth.

Some 33 miles long and 4 miles wide, the place attracts backpackers, divers and snorkelers - just off shore is one of the largest reefs in the world - and is being increasingly discovered by mainstream American tourists.

My suggestion: Get there before it changes.

For now, accommodations are mostly in privately owned small beachfront inns with mosquito netting suspended over the bed, ceiling fans languidly distributing the balmy air and the pristine, aquamarine Caribbean Sea just feet away.

Many inns and dive shops offer dive excursions and lessons. Deep-sea fishing charters are among the activities available.

Despite its lack of commercialism, Roatan is surprisingly accessible from the United States - you can fly here from Atlanta or Houston in roughly three hours.

But it is a world away from anything you'll find in the more traditional Caribbean destinations. What you don't get is a lineup of high-rise hotels, casinos, chain restaurants and fancy shops. Here you interact with the residents, many of whom speak English (the British controlled the area for a time), and who wave to everyone, neighbor and visitor alike.

Families will enjoy Gumbalimba Park, a lush attraction with tropical birds and monkeys that roam freely. The park also has a zip line through the jungle canopy, a nice beach and water sports. Dolphin shows and encounters are available at Anthony's Key Resort (www.anthonyskey.com, 1-800-227-3483). That's about as touristy as Roatan gets.

An easy 10-minute water taxi ride from West End is the neighboring town of West Bay. Here I found the most beautiful beach I've ever seen and, as a travel writer for 20 years specializing in the Caribbean and Mexico, I've seen plenty.

I met up with Oscar Escobar, a tour operator who runs day outings to the mostly deserted outer islands and signed up for a tour. We headed to open ocean in an eight-person motorboat pointed to Cayos Cochinos, two densely palm-and-fern covered islands with 13 cays that have been declared a biological reserve. After snorkeling and swimming, we had lunch on a blip of land inhabited by the Garifuna people.

A completely separate ethnicity from the Latin population of Honduras, the Garifuna derive from Africa, where they were captured as slaves intended for the New World in 1635. Their ship wrecked on the reefs near the Caribbean island of St. Vincent. Survivors fled and mixed with local Carib Indians, creating a new culture and language. Generations later they were forced off St. Vincent and relocated in and around Roatan.

Lunch provided by the Garifuna consisted of a whole lobster just plucked from the ocean for each visitor and several side dishes served on wooden tables at the edge of the water. The meal ran about $6. The setting was pristine.

Roatan is surely paradise found.

IF YOU go...

Getting There: Delta Airlines provides direct service to Roatan from Atlanta. Continental Airlines flies direct from Houston. A connection is required from Boston.

Staying there: Turquoise Bay Dive and Beach Resort (www.turquoisebayresort.com) is located on the northern coast of Roatan, and is a secluded collection of small buildings on a rolling green lawn that tapers down to a nearly oval calm bay. It is for lovers of peace and quiet. Romantics will be charmed by a private dinner served on individual guestroom terraces, complete with flicker candles and a serenading guitar player beneath. Rates start at $104 for two, nightly. Crystal Bay Cabins (www.crystal-beachroatan.com) in Roatan's funky West End is made up of nicely spaced freestanding cabins on stilts with spacious decks over a sand/grassy area and gardens, a half-block from the action (if you can call it that) and a stone's throw from the water. Cabins start at $50 per night.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MAY 12, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Taking advice isn't always easy for self-assured Rams and Ewes who think they know what's best. But it wouldn't hurt to listen to what close colleagues have to say.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You know how to balance life's practical aspects with the poetic. This gives you a special edge this week in both your professional endeavors and your personal life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Focus on keeping a balance between your home-related activities and your workplace responsibilities. Be mindful of both without obsessing over one or the other.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change in plans is likely as you discover more facts about a possible commitment. Continue to ask questions and, if you're not sure about the answers, demand proof.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Be careful not to let that Leonine pride keep you from seeking wise, experienced counsel before making an important decision. A family member once again seeks your help.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That surge of Virgo energy drives you to take on more work assignments. Be careful you don't overdo it, or you might find yourself overdone: i.e., burned out.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your decision to be upfront with colleagues on a touchy matter causes some consternation at first. But in the end, your honesty wins their trust and admiration.

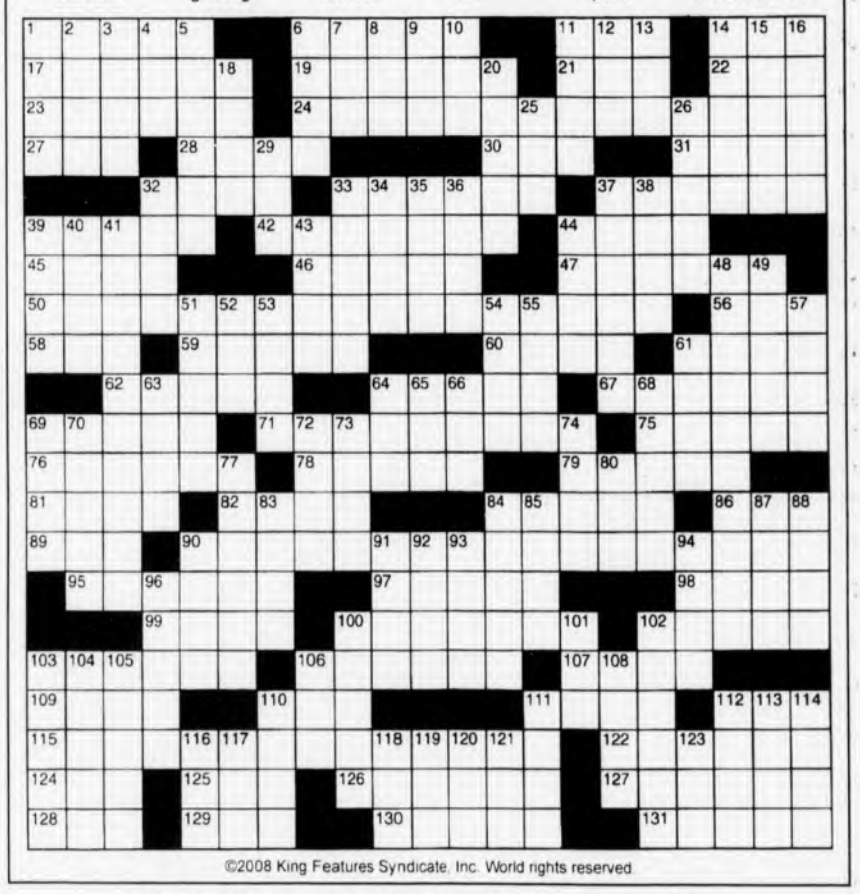
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) As in the past, someone again wants to share a secret with you, knowing it will be safe. But do you really want to be this person's confidante? Think about it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) As one of nature's straight shooters, you seek to correct misconceptions about a project. Do so, of course, but without giving away too much too soon.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Creative pursuits continue to be strong in the gifted Goat's aspect. New friendships can come from sharing these experiences with like-minded art aficionados.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Resolve lingering grumblings over your way of doing things by keeping your mind open to suggestions while continuing to show how your plans will work.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The perceptive Piscean might find that changing course in midstream isn't as workable as it would seem. Explore this option carefully before making a decision.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your willingness to share your love of life's good things brings joy to many, including, of course, yourself.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MAY 12, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Taking advice isn't always easy for self-assured Rams and Ewes who think they know what's best. But it wouldn't hurt to listen to what close colleagues have to say.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You know how to balance life's practical aspects with the poetic. This gives you a special edge this week in both your professional endeavors and your personal life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Focus on keeping a balance between your home-related activities and your workplace responsibilities. Be mindful of both without obsessing over one or the other.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A change in plans is likely as you discover more facts about a possible commitment. Continue to ask questions and, if you're not sure about the answers, demand proof.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Be careful not to let that Leonine pride keep you from seeking wise, experienced counsel before making an important decision. A family member once again seeks your help.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) That surge of Virgo energy drives you to take on more work assignments. Be careful you don't overdo it, or you might find yourself overdone: i.e., burned out.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Your decision to be upfront with colleagues on a touchy matter causes some consternation at first. But in the end, your honesty wins their trust and admiration.

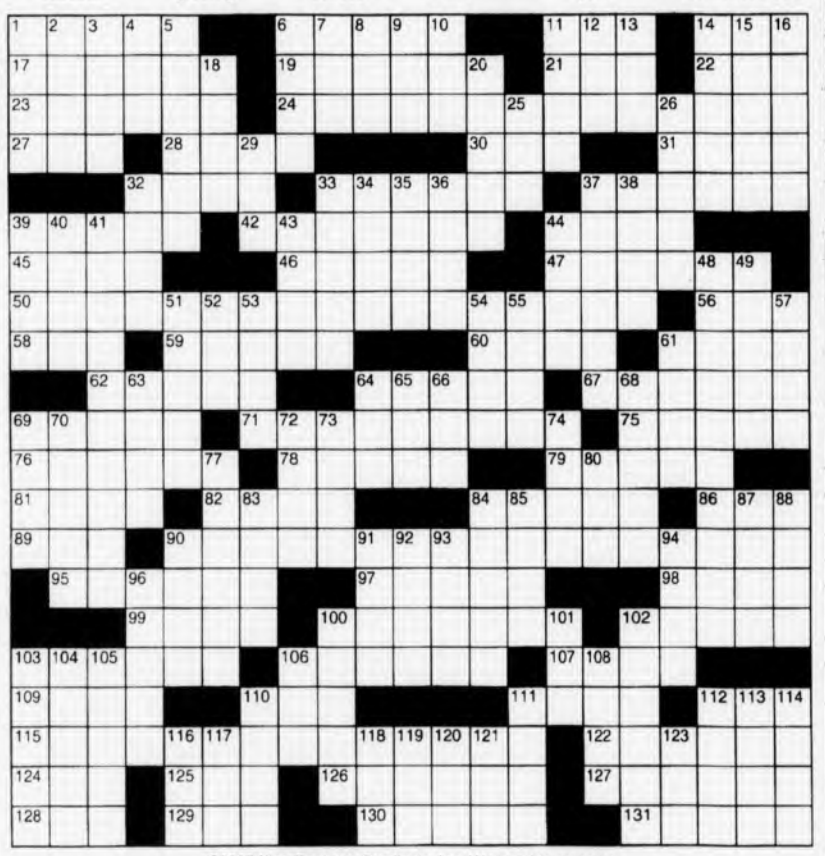
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) As in the past, someone again wants to share a secret with you, knowing it will be safe. But do you really want to be this person's confidante? Think about it.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) As one of nature's straight shooters, you seek to correct misconceptions about a project. Do so, of course, but without giving away too much too soon.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Creative pursuits continue to be strong in the gifted Goat's aspect. New friendships can come from sharing these experiences with like-minded art aficionados.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Resolve lingering grumblings over your way of doing things by keeping your mind open to suggestions while continuing to show how your plans will work.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The perceptive Piscean might find that changing course in midstream isn't as workable as it would seem. Explore this option carefully before making a decision.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your willingness to share your love of life's good things brings joy to many, including, of course, yourself.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Movie review

Kutcher and Diaz play cards in 'Vegas'

What Happens in Vegas (C+)

Film Review
AL ALEXANDER

It's hard to get excited about a film that draws inspiration from an ad slogan, but then those meager expectations just might be why "What Happens in Vegas" seems so much better than it is.

Ditto for Ashton Kutcher and Cameron Diaz, a coupling that sounds like trouble but actually ignites some sparks. They sizzle even when the script by Dana Fox fizzles.

Overindulging in a jumbled mix of battle-of-the-sexes clichés, phony uplift and painful contrivances, Fox spends the first half of the movie making a convincing argument that men and women aren't meant to coexist, then uses the back nine to counter that stance.

Never, though, is sex an issue. Apparently Diaz's joyless Joy McNally and Kutcher's rambling Jack Fuller only indulge in the nasty on their wedding night, which in the film's most glaring machination, transpires only hours after they've met. Yes, an alcoholic binge leads to a wedding chapel, a la Britney Spears and Jason Alexander.

At least the pop tart and her childhood pal knew each other. Joy and Jack are complete strangers.

So imagine how they both feel when they wake up the next morning to the sobering realization that they're man and wife. And imagine how much more sticky the situation gets when Jack wins $3 million later that morning at a slot using Joy's quarter.

Jack (Ashton Kutcher) celebrates a big win.

Can a movie get any more contrived? You bet. The stuff that happens in Vegas seems almost plausible compared to what happens when the newlyweds return to New York (yes, they live in the same city, imagine that) with their respective BFFs (Lake Bell and Weymouth's Rob Corddry) in tow.

They want an annulment, but Joy also wants half of Jack's winnings, leading to an impasse that Dennis Miller, as the unfortunately named Judge Whopper, intends to solve by forcing the couple to serve six months of "hard marriage" to prove they really don't belong together.

Sounds like a sitcom plot, doesn't it? And it plays like it, too, especially early on, as Fox and director Tom Vaughan ("Starter for 10") draw inspiration from "The Break-Up" and "The War of the Roses" in finding not-so-inventive ways for Jack and Joy to wage a war in which no toilet seat is left standing.

It's grating and ridiculous, but Kutcher and Diaz seldom fail to sell it with a combination of quick-witted charm and combustible chemistry that helps distract from the film's rampant predictability.

Vaughn's solid direction also helps, as does a strong supporting cast that includes Treat Williams as Jack's tough-love father, Dennis Farina as Joy's surly Wall Street boss, Queen Latifah as a knowing marriage counselor and Jason Sudeikis as Joy's prissy ex-fiancé.

Most endearing, though, is Corddry as Jack's curmudgeonly pal Hater, a guy so resolutely and unapologetically chauvinistic that you'd probably despise him if the former "Daily Show" regular didn't turn him into such a teddy bear. The actor clearly has unlocked the secret to charming loutishness.

But even he is unable to meet the challenge of wringing laughs out of an unfunny script.

What the movie lacks in humor, though, is offset by its unbridled heart, which it wears on its sleeve. It may miss a few beats and hedge a few bets, but Kutcher and Diaz provide just enough spark to make "Vegas" worth the gamble.

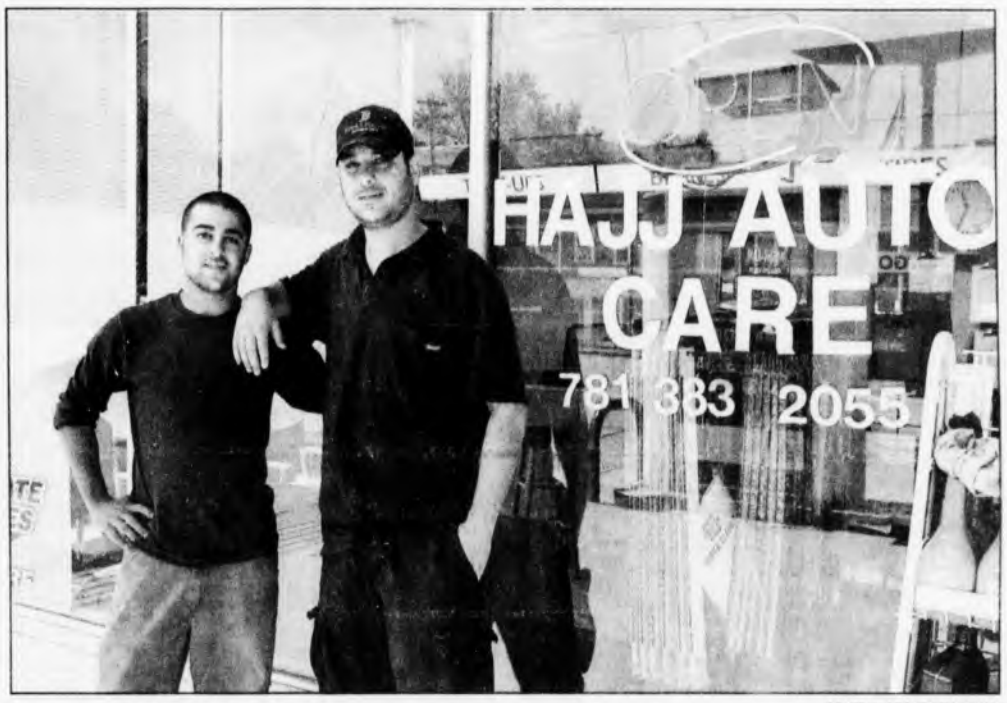
MBTA pays $1.95M for land

Eminent domain case settled last week

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In one of the largest eminent domain verdicts in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts this year, the MBTA will pay $1.95 million for nearly nine acres of land off Route 3A. The amount is over three times what the MBTA had determined as the fair market value for the property, which included over three acres of buildable land.

After almost four years of waiting, property owners Judith Salvaggi and Vicky Williams got their resolution from a jury at Norfolk Superior court last week (May 13). The sisters were the owners of an 8.9-acre parcel on Route 3A behind JJ's and the former 3A Carpet.



In June 1, 2004, the MBTA took the acreage by eminent domain for the purpose of wetland replication. The restoration of the Greenbush railroad and the building of the Cohasset rail station/parking lot required the disturbance of multiple acres of wetland, which the MBTA had to find some way to replicate. The government has the right to take private land by eminent domain for public use, and there is usually compensation awarded to the owner in return.

By law in an eminent domain case, a land appraisal has to be done. The property was appraised at $620,000 and that amount was paid to the Salvaggi-William families.

"The sisters were horrified at that amount," said the sisters' attorney Peter E.

Hajj family takes over Village station

By Nancy White

Cohasset is halfway around the world from Lebanon, but the Hajj family feels right at home in Cohasset. On Feb. 1, the Hajj family took over the village gas station and service shop.

The family-owned and operated business now called Hajj Auto Care Foreign and Domestic Auto Repair has all the charm, friendliness and courtesy of a service station of days gone by.

Wearing a t-shirt emblazoned with "USA" and a Boston Red Sox hat, it's clear Ali H. Zaidan, the eldest son of the Hajj family, has adopted the U.S. and Boston as his home.

"This is my hometown, this is my country," he said Monday afternoon with a big smile on his face. Along with the help of his father and brother, Ali has big plans for the newly acquired business, but he's going at it one step at a time.

A day to remember

Healing Field dedication Saturday at 2p.m.

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

In Cohasset, Memorial Day weekend is steeped in tradition and full of meaningful tributes to those who have served our country bravely. Rain or shine hundreds of local citizens will gather at Veterans Memorial Park on Monday for Cohasset's annual Memorial Day observances.

For the second year, the "Healing Field," has been placed at the intersection of Border Street and Summer Street across from Veterans Memorial Park. The striking visual of over 400 waving American flags is meant to honor all service men and women who have served, continue to serve and those who have paid the ultimate price to keep America free.

"The Town of Cohasset really takes the time to remember the veterans who made the supreme sacrifice," said Sons Of The American Legion Commander Tom Wigmore, from the Healing Field to visiting the cemeteries to the red, white and blue decorations throughout town.

The Healing Field will be officially dedicated in a ceremony on Saturday at 2p.m., and will continue to be on display until Saturday, May 31. Lt. Governor Tim Murray and John P. "Jake" Comer will both

Fire Dept. doing more with less

Chief gives Selectmen big picture

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Cohasset Fire Department has changed over the years. In the 1980s, before Proposition 2-1/2, Cohasset Fire had three stations (Elm Street, Beechwood and West Corner), 29 firefighters and 35 to 40 men on call. Response times were four minutes or less and the budget was 8 percent of the town-wide budget.

In 2008, there are 23 firefighters, less than 10 call firefighters and response time to the end of Beechwood or West Corner on a "blue sky day" is between eight and nine minutes (not including possible impacts of the train). The fire department budget is below 5 percent of the town-wide budget.

"We are doing more with less," said Fire Chief Robert Silvia at Monday night's Board of Selectmen meeting. The Selectmen are meeting each department head over the next two months to report on the trends, major challenges, grant opportunities and generally give a "big picture" perspective of their department.

The Fire Department has four shifts with between four and six firefighters on at any one time.

Silvia said the fire department is dealing with fewer fires in 2008, thanks to increased awareness of fire prevention, but still struggle to keep up with the calls for medical assistance or transport.

The biggest challenge at this point is lengthy response times, said Silvia. With increased development on Route 3A, Silvia said the fire department is doing more medical work at Sunrise Assisted Living, the medical building on 3A and with future 3A development on the horizon — Scituate Hill, a new shopping plaza and Avalon.

The ideal solution, Silvia said, would be another fire station located on 3A (on the other side of the tracks), an idea that was bounced around in the late 1970s.

"We're relying more and more on mutual aid with shrinking resources," said Silvia. While Cohasset Fire used to be able to handle smaller room and contents fires on its own, it typically has to pull the second alarm to call in mutual aid.

Sharing resources and increasing regional communication is vital to the success of the department. When possible, Silvia teams up with other area fire departments for training programs and to share equipment.

Right now, one of the difficulties Silvia is facing is finding employees who live close to Cohasset. Right now, there are employees coming from as far as New Bedford and Marion. In the event of a major emergency, it takes time for those firefighters to make it back to Cohasset.

"We try to hire as close to home as possible," said Silvia, adding in order to be promoted the employee has to live within 15 miles of Cohasset.

Currently, the Fire Department has 14 paramedics on staff and all new employees coming on have the certification.

Aging equipment — and how to pay for new equipment — was also a main concern for Silvia. For the last few Town Meeting cycles he has requested a new Advanced Life Support ambulance to replace a 2001 model with over 132,000 miles on it. It is the Fire Department's only ambulance. Typically, Silvia said, a first-line unit has a life of seven years then continues to be used as a back-up unit for several more years. In the event of two medical emergencies at the same time, the Fire Department has to request mutual aid from nearby community.

One of the goals of the department is to get additional equipment to its lead pumping engines to enable it to be a paramedic engine and provide ALS service even when the ambulance is on a call. The department would like to retire a 1987 pumping engine and replace it with a new pumping engine. The newest is a 2001 model and the oldest a 1987 model.

The Fire Department also wants to create more student awareness of fire safety at all grade levels. In the coming year, Silvia hopes to have presentations at all four schools and introduce a special program for the graduating seniors heading off to college and living on their own.

New traffic signs are pilot program

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The traffic signs, which have become a familiar site from Monday to Friday over the past two weeks in the village and other areas of Cohasset could become a regular feature.

The signs, which were paid for through a grant, alert motorists to slow down.

Chief James Hussey said the signs have been placed where police get continual complaints about speeding. For example, there is one in front of the community center on North Main Street, and another in the crosswalk on Depot Court from the Town Parking Lot to the community center nursery school entrance.

"We are getting good feedback," Hussey said. "People are slowing down when they approach these crosswalks."

Hussey said if the positive feedback continues, police will try to make the portable signs a regular feature and will try to obtain grant money to purchase more.

He said the signs have also been used along Lamberts Lane, a winding road where speeding is a problem.

Police have not ruled out asking merchants or residents to "adopt a sign" meaning they would be responsible for taking it in and putting it out each day.

The town has tried temporary pedestrian-warning signs before but they quickly became damaged by vehicles. These signs appear to be more substantial.

Fireworks

A concerned citizen turned over some "jumping jacks" fireworks to police last week. Chief Hussey said the citizen found them on the ground at the Beechwood Ballpark.

According to the Internet, Jumping Jacks are a classic pyrotechnic device that looks like a firecracker, but actually produces wildly spinning assorted color ground effects that go in all directions.

The sale, possession or use of fireworks is illegal in Massachusetts.

Hussey said police were happy the concerned citizen turned the fireworks in.

Erratic operation

A police officer counseled a motorist who had been reported by a concerned caller as driving erratically last Thursday (May 15) along Border Street. The driver of the black pickup told police that he had taken his eyes off the road while talking on his cell phone. The officer stressed that going forward, he should pull over before making a call.

Cars tagged

Police tagged several cars and had another towed from an area near the reservoir on Aaron River Road. A call came into dispatch about a large party and the end of Beechwood Street at 10:48 p.m. on Wed. (May 14). Police found several vehicles with no one inside and could hear the sounds of young people running. Police did not find the youths.

"There was also a little campfire going which the fire department extinguished," Chief Hussey said. The cars were registered to residents of Scituate and Bridgewater. One of the cars was parked in such a way that it had to be towed. Police contacted the vehicle owner.

Pocketbook stolen

Another woman's pocketbook was stolen out of her unlocked car, police said. The woman, who reported the incident at 11:24 a.m. on Thursday (May 15), had parked at CVS and went into the store for just a couple of minutes. When she returned to her vehicle her pocketbook was gone. There have been a rash of similar thefts in Cohasset and other towns. Police urge women to lock their pocketbook in the trunk or take it with them.

A walk-in to the station last week returned a purse that her son had found on Beechwood Street near Hillside Drive. This was not the same purse stolen from the CVS lot. The officer called the owner and the woman said she believed her purse had been taken from her shopping cart at Shaw's earlier that day (May 15). Missing was $60 in cash and a credit card.

Chief James Hussey says police have been receiving positive feedback about the new portable traffic signs.

Laptop, jacket

Police have custody of a laptop and jacket found floating in the water off the rocks near Elm and Margin streets last Friday (May 16). Police ran the serial number of the laptop through a database that tracks stolen items and it had not been reported as stolen.

Warrant

Police arrested a 32-year-old Quincy man on a warrant after responding to a call about a man who appeared to be intoxicated walking around in a N. Main Street driveway last Friday (May 16) at about 10:40 a.m.

Police identified the man and determined that he was "very much intoxicated". Further investigation revealed he was wanted on a warrant for a 290A (restraining order) violation.

The man was later transported to the Dedham House of Correction where he was held over the weekend.

Traffic stop

While conducting radar patrol last Friday at 2:15 p.m. on Pond Street, police stopped a gray Toyota Solara for speeding. Further investigation revealed the registration had been revoked due to cancellation of insurance. The operator, a 28-year-old Hingham woman, was given a ride to a nearby friend's house and is being summonsed to court on the charges of operating a motor vehicle with revoked registration, operating an uninsured vehicle and speeding. The car was towed.

Vandalism

Police are investigating vehicle vandalism – including a punctured tire and scratch on the passenger side door – that was reported Saturday (May 17). Chief Hussey said the vandalism was done purposely and police are working with the victim to see if they can identify the individual responsible.

Speeding

A 50-year-old Marshfield man is being summonsed on the charges of operating with a suspended license, operating an unregistered and uninsured vehicle, attaching plates and speeding following a traffic stop for speeding at 6:13 p.m. on Saturday (May 17) at 3A and Beechwood Street.

Expired sticker

An officer traveling behind a car with an expired registration sticker on its license plate pulled the vehicle over last Thursday (May 15) at S. Main and Summer streets. The vehicle had to be towed because unregistered vehicles are not allowed in a public way. Tickets for operating with an expired registration are $100. Registration can now be done online.

MBTA pays $1.95 million in eminent domain case

Flynn of Saugus. They waited for a year for the MBTA to correct the situation. Then, with no response, they filed the lawsuit requesting damages with the Norfolk County Superior Court in 2005.

Flynn began negotiating with the MBTA to avoid a trial, but a settlement was never offered with authority, Flynn said. After waiting months for a trial date, the complaint was heard by a jury last week.

"My clients are very pleased with the outcome, but certainly they wish it had come sooner," said Flynn, adding they would have accepted a lesser amount to reach a settlement a year ago. "While the process of eminent domain was legal, it is a very upsetting and disconcerting situation to be in. There is a pall of uncertainty."

Flynn said the settlement price would have been considerable less than the trial verdict.

"In the end, the process benefited (my clients) and they were made whole in a long, drawn out process," said Flynn.

After being presented over 30 pieces of evidence, the jury deliberated and came back with the $1.95 million verdict in less than an hour.

"They were pretty confident in what they were doing," said Flynn in a phone interview. The fact there was over 3.67 acres of buildable land most suitable for retail space was an important factor in the determination of the fair market value of the property.

MBTA spokesman Joseph Pesaturo has said in order to build the Greenbush line, the MBTA has taken roughly 90 pieces of property by eminent domain throughout the entire 17-mile Greenbush corridor. The Greenbush line became operational in October 2007.

According to Flynn, there remains one unresolved eminent domain case with the MBTA in conjunction with the Greenbush line. The Davenport property, which abuts the former Salvaggi-Williams property, was partially taken by eminent domain.

Committee appointments

The Economic Development Committee and the Board of Elder Affairs got new members on Monday night. Village shop owner and lifelong Cohasset resident Darilynn Evans was appointed to the Economic Development Committee. The Selectmen said a business owner was a missing piece of the committee. Evans is also a part of the Cohasset Chamber of Commerce and has been a leader in putting together village events like the Holiday Stroll and Night out on Main Street.

Karen Oronte of Boundbrook Lane was appointed to the Board of Elder Affairs. A long-time volunteer at the senior center, Oronte also serves on the board of the Friends of Cohasset Elder Affairs.

Both appointments were unanimous.

Flooding workshops

As the flood control master plan process enters its final stages, the town has scheduled public hearings to allow residents to hear from engineers and contribute their own information.

On Thursday, May 22 a workshop was held focusing on the Jacobs Meadow/James Brook watershed. On Monday, June 16 the discussion at the Town Hall auditorium will revolve around Atlantic Ave./Treat's Pond. All residents (in and outside the area of interest) are encouraged to attend and participate.

A third night, date to be determined, will be held to hear ongoing flooding issues in other areas of town.

If a resident's property is suffering from flooding issues, Town Manager Bill Griffin encouraged interested citizens to check out the "Flood Control Master Plan Map" linked off the homepage of the town website (www.townofcohasset.org) to see if their neighborhood is highlighted as a flood prone area.

No clear evidence of drinking

The Police Department has followed up on a resident's allegation workers from the Little Harbor water and sewer project have been drinking on the job and found "no clear and convincing evidence."

Paula Becker and James Mahar of 185 Jerusalem Road told the Selectmen at a meeting April 14 she had been picking up an increasing amount of alcohol nip bottles along Nichols Road. Becker presented the Selectmen with a bag of litter, including the bottles, as evidence.

The Board of Selectmen asked Police Chief James Hussey to look into the matter.

On April 17, Hussey met with project supervisors William Needle of Coughlin Environmental Services and Paul Cappelletti, on-site manager from LM Holdings regarding the allegations.

"Both gentlemen understand the seriousness of the allegations and stated they have never seen any indication of alcohol consumption taking place on this project," stated Hussey in a letter to the Selectmen. On April 15, they held a special meeting regarding the use of alcohol and trash pick-up with all employees of the project.

Lieutenant William Quigley met with Becker and Mahar later that week. He reported they had not witnessed any alcohol consumption nor did she have any first hand knowledge of construction workers discarding nip bottles.

"There is no clear and convincing evidence at this time to pursue a criminal investigation," stated Hussey. "The project managers and their supervisors are well aware of the allegations and have stated they will closely monitor the situation."

Hussey said police personnel have been notified of the allegations and will look for any evidence of alcohol consumption on the project.

Facility stickers available June 16

The expiration date of the beach and Recycling Transfer Facility permits is June 30. Stickers will be on sale starting Monday, June 16, during normal business hours at Town Hall, and at the DPW garage on weekends from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and Monday through Friday, from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Sticker prices will remain the same as last year – $50 for residents younger than age 60, and $15 for seniors.

This sticker will allow access to the Recycling Transfer Facility and Sandy Beach, as well as parking at all areas in town that require a sticker. In addition, residents will be required to purchase special bags in which to dispose of all trash that cannot be recycled. These bags will be offered at the Department of Public Works building and various locations throughout the town.

All commercial contractors and vehicles registered in a business name should pick up stickers at the Department of Public Works. The DPW encourages contractors to purchase stickers through the mail by providing the appropriate fee, a copy of the current registration and a self-addressed return envelope.

Aquarion seeks 24.8 percent water rate increase

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

Aquarion Water Company has filed a several-inch-thick application with the state Department of Public Utilities for a $3.1 million, or an overall 24.8 percent, increase in water service revenues.

Aquarion is also proposing implementing a one-time $2,500 service connection fee to be paid for new hook-ups as well as higher rates for customers who exceed a certain usage threshold, as a water conservation measure.

This means that the average residential customer, (who would experience a 21.4 percent increase) in North Cohasset, Hingham and Hull would pay about 36 cents more a day for water. Businesses pay a higher rate for water than residents do, which accounts for the difference in the requested increase percentages.

"While we recognize that no one is happy when prices increase, to put things into some perspective, a 20-ounce bottle of water at local convenience stores costs between $1.09 and $1.59," said Larry Bingaman, Aquarion senior vice president. He further noted that the proposed increase is in line with the rate of inflation and is requested in part to cover $21.4 million-worth of improvements made within the water system over the past several years, — $7.7 million in Hingham and $500,000 in North Cohasset.

"We will continue our prudent capital investment program and remain committed to operating efficiently to mitigate rate increases," he said. Aquarion services approximately 300 customers in North Cohasset.

At Monday night's Selectmen meeting, Town Manager Bill Griffin informed the board Aquarion was petitioning for a rate increase. In talking with Hingham and Hull town officials, they all agreed the issue needed to be looked at closely.

Griffin said the last time North Cohasset's rates were raised in 2001 a private consultant was hired to look at the proposal. With the consultant's help the towns were able to roughly lower a proposed 20 percent increase to 16 percent.

"We are not simply going to let something like this happen without a detailed analysis," said Griffin.

Filing a formal application is just the beginning of the process, which will involve an extensive DPU review and public hearings that could begin in June or July during which customers will have an opportunity to make comments and ask questions. "This is a very open, transparent process," Bingaman said.

A final ruling is expected by March 2009 at the latest. The new rates would be effective the date approval is granted.

However, "Aquarion is hopeful that the case will be approved and that the new rates will become effective before the end of 2008," said Bingaman. "The rate case is driven primarily by the approximate $21.4 million in system and plant improvements; improved water supplies (working to improve existing well-production capacity); the replacement of aging and undersized transmission and distribution mains; and other needed enhancements made since the last rate increase in 2001." These improvements were geared toward improved service reliability and quality and increased water supply, he noted.

Realizing that such an increase could be burdensome for low-income customers, Aquarion is also proposing the implementation of a pilot customer assistance program. Those who meet the program criteria would be eligible for an annual $50 credit on their water bills.

It was noted that in 2001, the time of the last requested increase, issues and concerns were resolved through negotiation between Massachusetts American Water Company, who owned the plant at that time, and Hingham, Cohasset, and Hull town officials. This resulted in a lower than requested increase. Aquarion acquired the plant in 2002.

Aquarion is taking a "growth paying for growth" approach in seeking approval to implement a new one-time $2,500 system development charge. This fee would be paid by new customers to help cover future capital expenditures linked to finding additional water sources and increasing the size of water mains as needed, in part to accommodate new development. "Charges such as these are common in many town-owned water systems and help mitigate future rate increases on existing customers," Bingaman said.

Aquarion is also seeking approval to implement inclining block rates – a higher rate for customers who exceed a certain threshold of usage – to encourage water conservation. This is consistent with the intent of new conservation standards set forth in 2006 by the Massachusetts Executive Office of Energy and Environmental Affairs and the Water Resources Commission.

"We're proposing that the first 36,000 gallons of water used per customer (or household in the case of families) per year would be paid at one rate and that a higher rate would apply for the next 36,000 gallons or more," Bingaman said.

Aquarion is also proposing a 13.4 percent increase in the fire service protection charges paid by towns served by Aquarion. This charge, which is determined by an independent consultant, covers the cost of increasing the size of the water system's supply, pumps, tanks, and mains by about 25 percent to enable fire departments to use up to 5,500 gallons per minute to "instantly fight a fire," Bingaman said. Under Aquarion's current rate structure, these towns are allowed to use as much water as needed to fight fires rather than paying a fee based on volume. This means that the total annual fire service charge for Hingham would increase by about $38,000.

Between 2001 and 2007, Aquarion made more than $21 million-worth of system improvements in the towns it serves (Hingham, North Cohasset, Hull, Norwell, Oxford, and Millbury). Aquarion is requesting the rate increase in part to cover these expenditures, as well as to recover an additional $900,000 spent on developing additional water supply.

"The case is also necessitated by cost increases that Aquarion has experienced, such as fuel, electricity, and chemicals," Bingaman said. "We've aggressively sought to control operating, maintenance, and other expenses and as a result have been able to avoid a request for increased rates for about seven years."

The DPU will ultimately determine whether to grant the rate increase based on its review of Aquarion's application, investments, operating expenses, and other considerations. "The DPU will either agree or disagree with Aquarion, but I believe we have a solid case," Bingaman said.

Aquarion serves 12,500 homes and businesses in Hingham, North Cohasset, Hull, and Norwell and 6,000 in Millbury and Oxford.

For further information about Aquarion or the rate case, visit www.aquarion.com and click on the "Massachusetts" link under "Aquarion Water Companies."

Staff reporter Nancy White also contributed to this report.

Water rate hike put into perspective

If Aquarion's proposed 21.4 percent increase for residential customers is approved, the average Hingham, Hull, and North Cohasset customer (based on a family of four using about 175 gals. of water per day, or 64,000 gallons per year) would pay 36 cents more a day for water. This figure includes surcharges that are in place for the Hingham/Hull District Water Treatment Facility.

The average customer currently pays $1.67 per day for water. That figure would increase to $2.03 per day if the new rates are approved.

The average family's annual water bill based on 175 gallons a day is $611. The cost would increase to $742 a year with the increase in place.

For the past several years, Aquarion customers enjoyed $97 a year in surcharge relief, thanks to efforts by local legislators, including Sen. Robert Hedlund. However, that relief measure expired last January. "We're still working on getting that renewed with the help of Senator Hedlund and Rep. Garrett Bradley, but that's a legislative issue separate from the rate case," Aquarion Senior Vice President Larry Bingaman said.

In Jan. 2006, water rates were reduced by 4 percent as a result of Aquarion reducing the debt on its Hingham water treatment plant.

Even with the proposed increase, "the daily cost of Aquarion's water compares favorably with other common daily household expenses in the company's service area," Bingaman said. "$2.03 per day provides water to cover drinking, cooking, bathing, showering, dish-washing, and laundering needs."

The following chart, compiled by Aquarion, shows the daily household average cost for various utilities:

COURTESY PHOTO

Jefferson Barrett recently participated in a Providence College community service project.

Jefferson Barrett, a resident of Cohasset, and a member of the class of 2009 at Providence College, recently participated in the PC community service project, "Friars United for Service In Our Neighborhood," or FUSION, at the historic Esek Hopkins Homestead located on Admiral Street in Providence, R.I. Jefferson was one of more than 50 Providence College alumni and students who joined forces with the City of Providence's Parks Department to continue work on the ambitious restoration project. The unique partnership with city officials – developed by the College's President's Council – began last year and is designed to facilitate networking and service opportunities among students, alumni, College neighbors, and members of the greater Providence community. This year's project focused on the restoration of the homestead's adjacent soccer field for use by multiple neighborhood sports leagues. Working with City employees, the volunteers laid sod and completed related tasks. Built in 1754, the house was the residence of Esek Hopkins, first Admiral of the United States Navy and the only naval officer to hold the title of Commander-in-Chief. In addition to its historical significance, the property has the potential to be widely used by the community. Future plans include establishing a research center and museum.

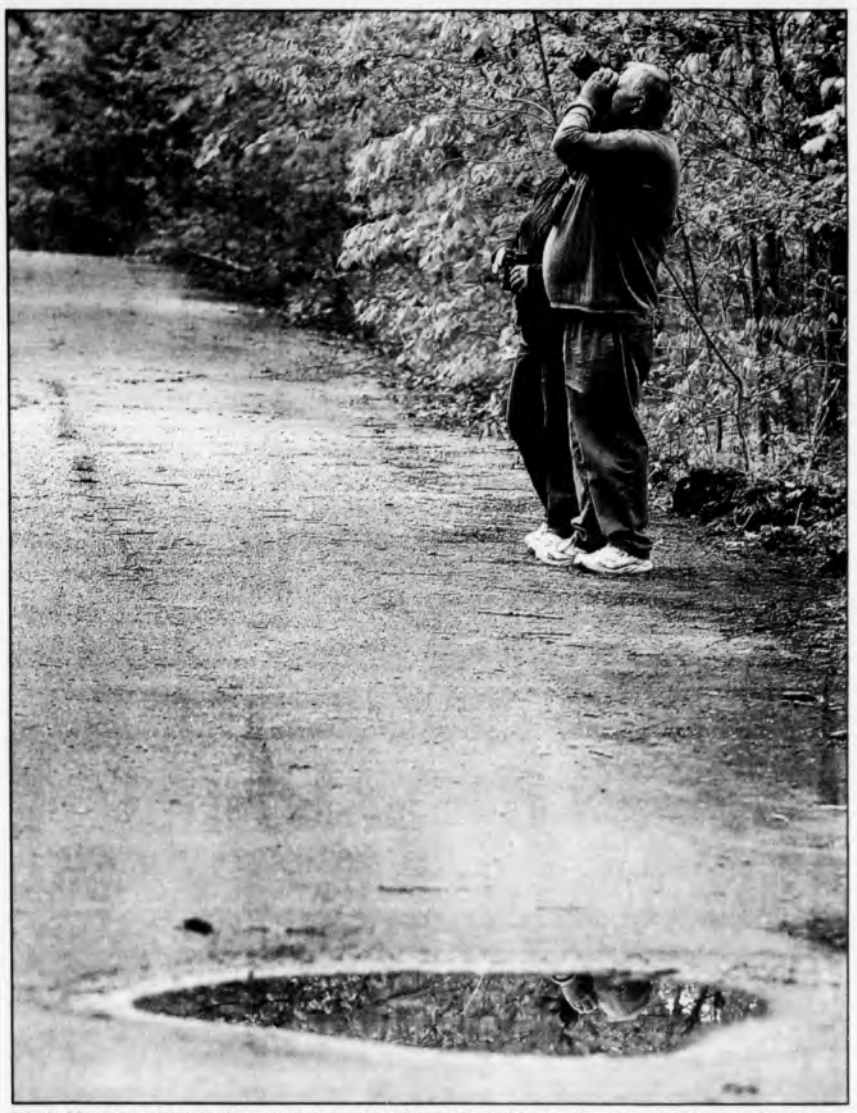
John Galluzzo of the Mass Audubon society peers through his binoculars while looking for birds during the birdathon on Saturday morning at the Daniel Webster Wildlife Sanctuary.

Bird is the word

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

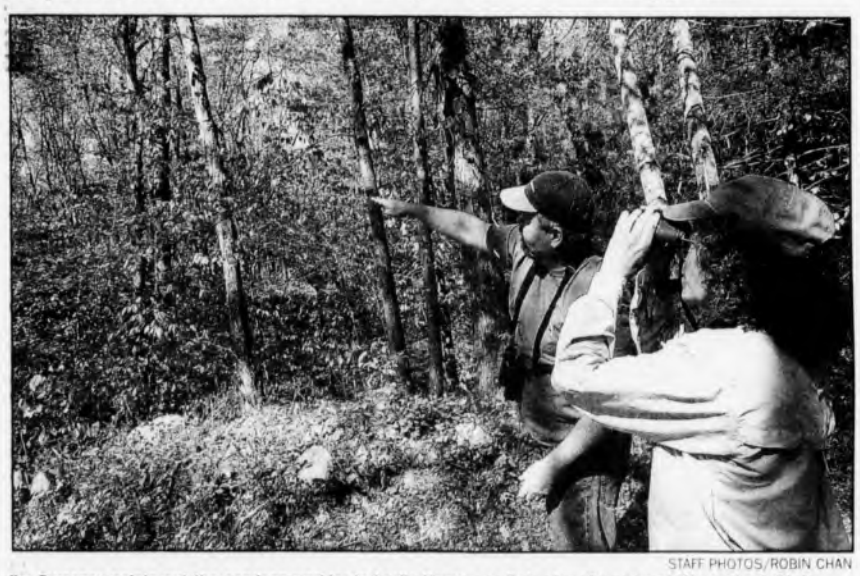
As the saying goes, the early bird gets the worm.

On last Saturday morning, some residents took the saying to heart and fanned out across Massachusetts in search of the state's finest feathered residents and visitors. Their efforts were a part of the Mass Audubon Society's 25th Bird-a-thon, a 24-hour hunt to find the most bird species, that took place this past Friday and Saturday.



Cohasset resident Sally Avery took part in the event for the third time and her team was able to locate 123 different species of bird in four different bird habitats despite the rainy weather.

"The object is to get as many birds as you can," said Avery. Each team of 'birders' raises money for the Mass Audubon Society.



Right now is one of the best times of year for birding because many bird species are migrating across the state starting in late April through May, said Avery.

The competition begins at 6p.m. on Friday and continues to 6p.m. Saturday. While some teams took advantage of the dusk and dawn hours staying out as late as 9p.m. and going out as early as 4a.m., Avery waited until 6a.m. Saturday to begin her hunt.

Spending time in different habitats — wooded, coastal, thickets and grassland — optimizes the amount of species one can see. Avery headed to Wompatuck State Park first and she said they ran into at least 10 different birding teams while there. Then it was on to Third Cliff in Scituate, Marshfield's Ferry Hill thicket and Daniel Webster Wildlife Sanctuary grasslands.

Bernie Macauley photographs a hooded warbler while birding with his wife, Judy, on Saturday afternoon at Wompatuck State Park. Though they weren't participating in the birdathon, they were enjoying the sights and sounds that birds had to offer at the park.

STAFF PHOTOS/ROBIN CHAN

Jim Sweeney points out the cerulean warbler to Leslie Kramer on Saturday afternoon at Wompatuck State Park. Jim has been participating in the birdathon for the past five years. He is part of the IBA team that raises money for the Important Bird Areas program at Mass Audubon. The cerulean warbler is out of its normal southernly range so it is rare to find in southeastern Massachusetts. It was a lifebird for Leslie, which meant that it was the first time Leslie, has ever seen the cerulean warbler.

They were especially on the lookout for migrating warblers of which there are several different species — hooded warbler and the worm-eating warbler, to name a couple. The four-inch birds are hard to locate, but have a distinct call.

The teams keep track of the birds they see on a piece of paper, using either different codes for a certain bird species or checking them off a master list. Although Avery said there have been nearly 490 different species sighted in Massachusetts, the regular visitors and residents hovers around 300.

"I know all the Massachusetts birds by sight, but that doesn't mean they aren't difficult to find on a rainy day" Avery said. Binoculars can fog up, underside and tail patterns can be hard to see and identify, "it can be tricky."

The spring Bird-a-thon is not the only bird counting event Mass Audubon puts on. Every season there is a different counting event. Each one gives Mass Audubon a snapshot of the bird population in Massachusetts and New England. Avery said the efforts are called "citizen science"— not exact, but offers a general sense of the changing bird population. For over 100 years, they have sponsored the Christmas Count where birders look for different species and count the number of each species they see.

According to its website, www.massaudubon.org, since its founding in 1896, Mass Audubon has been a leader of the bird conservation movement. They are dedicated to helping pass bird protection legislation, reducing practices that harm birds, and saving important wildlife habitat.

Avery considers herself a birder, not a bird watcher. It may be a semantic difference to some, but Avery says a birder someone who loves the sport and actively participates. As an example, she says she spent six hours one morning this week looking for birds in the Arnold Arboretum. Bird watchers might look out the window at the bird feeder.

With the height of the spring migrating season coming to a close, mid-June and mid-July is the off-season for avid birders. But, Avery and birders like her have found other pursuits.

"We look for butterflies," she says.

A spiral staircase is just one of the unique aspects of the Arts and Crafts style Bellarmine House. The Cohasset Historical Society will be hosting tours of the historical mansion with an incredible view of Cohasset Harbor on June 20 and 21.

Bellarmine House is one of a kind

Unique home has rich history

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Up high on a hill overlooking picturesque Cohasset Harbor is a property and home rich in history, architecturally unique and offers a breathtaking, but rarely seen, view. Next month, the Cohasset Historical Society will host a two-day event at the Bellamine House on Howard Gleason Road.

The normally very private property owned by the Jesuits of Boston College has been used as a retreat home for over 75 years. The Historical Society will put on a wine reception on Friday, June 20 and offer tours of the home on Saturday, June 21 to raise money for the group's year-round efforts.

The estate, which sits on 8.5 acres of nearly unspoiled land, overlooks Cohasset Harbor to Whitehead Island, the Glades, Minot Light is discernable in the distance and then the open sea beyond.

For architectural buffs, the view inside the home might be as good as the view outside of the home. Designed by one of the foremost architects at the turn of the century, Henry Hobson Richardson created a mansion in the Arts and Crafts style he helped develop. Richardson was also the architect for the Trinity Church in Boston, the Crane Library in Quincy and Sever Hall at Harvard University.

"This event could draw from people from all over interested in architecture. Richardson was one of the most famous architects in US in his time," says co-chair of the event, John Connell. With the Bellamine House being one of his not often seen accomplishments, Connell is hoping to draw a good crowd of both Cohasset residents and beyond.

Richardson was commissioned to build the home by Dr. John Bryant and his wife Charlotte on his inherited property on the Cohasset shore. He called the property "Hominy Point."

Bryant came from a long line of Cohasset summer residents. Historical Society President Kathy O'Malley said he was of the fifth generation devoted to Cohasset. His mother and family spent all their summers in Cohasset. When his mother passed away, he inherited the Cohasset property. A yachtsman and a sportsman, Bryant enjoyed the waterfront Hominy Point property immensely. He was one of the founders of the Boston Athletic Association, which began the Boston Marathon, and he enjoyed racing small boats.

The Bellarmine House is a prime example of the Arts and Crafts era in architecture, where architects brought together artists and artisans to work collaboratively to create a truly unique home. The home was built between 1880 and 1881. The interior of the house includes many details associated with the Arts and Crafts movement — exposed oak ceiling beams, raised oak paneling and leaded glass windows.

The house is a large shingled building, with the service wing at the rear projecting at an angle over an arched stone bridge. According to Jeffrey Karl Ochsner's "H.H. Richardson: Complete Architectural Works," the main block of the house is two rooms deep, and the stair hall is separated from the living hall by the central fireplace. All the interior rooms open into each other through large sliding doors. Originally, the profile was varied and some of the exterior trim and decorative detail have been minimized over the years.

Another piece of historical significance is Bryant's father-in-law, Frederick Law Olmsted, a pioneer in landscape architecture, designed the grounds of the property. Olmsted was the mastermind behind the Emerald Necklace in Boston, which begins at the Boston Common and Public Gardens and ends at the Arnold Arboretum.

Bryant leased his home to Thomas Lawson, a sailing friend of his, for several years while Lawson built his Dreamwold estate in Scituate. Lawson built several small houses for the help and a barn, which were later lost to a fire. In the early 1900s, the home was owned by Lewis Crossett, a shoe manufacturer, and then, Adelaide Moors Brown Pratt. Pratt sold the home to the Jesuits of Boston College in 1932.

Bellarmine House is named for a 17th century Italian cardinal, Saint Roberto Bellarmino, who was canonized a saint in 1930, just before the property was purchased by the Jesuits in 1932. The estate is now used as a retreat for Jesuit priests and students of the Jesuit colleges, as well as a conference site for members of the Boston College faculty.

The last time the Bellarmine House was opened to the public was 18 years ago at another Cohasset Historical Society event.

"We are very grateful to the Jesuits for opening their home to us. It should be a memorable event for all who attend," said O'Malley.

The event serves as a fundraiser to support all the Historical Society does year-round to preserve Cohasset's rich history. The Society has an extensive collection of textiles from wedding dresses to uniforms to hats. They maintain three buildings, the village museums — the Captain John Wilson House and the Maritime Museum — and the Historical Society Headquarters at the Paul Pratt Building. They put on several exhibits of their collections throughout the year.

The tour will feature a few of the rooms in the mansion. The public will have the rare opportunity afforded by the paralleled vistas of Cohasset's harbor and the shore as well as the beautiful walks and terraces on the eight-acre grounds.

The wine reception in the evening on Friday, June 20 from 6 to 9p.m. The Cohasset High School Jazz ensemble will provide musical ambiance for the event. A silent auction will round out the event. Items donated from the community include a sailing yacht cruise around Boston Harbor, a kayak trip in World's End, a day of thoroughbred racing at Suffolk Downs, original paintings from local artists and themed gift baskets. Tickets are $30 for historical society members and $35 for non-members.

The next day, Saturday, June 21, the public is invited to view the house and enjoy the grounds from 10a.m. to 2p.m. Tickets are $10 for society members, $12 for non-members. During both times, tours of the house and its substantial grounds will be offered. Call the Cohasset Historical Society 781-383-1434 to make reservations.

Exposed oak ceiling beams and leaded glass windows, like the ones in the living room of the Bellarmine House, are hallmarks of the Arts and Crafts architectural style movement. The house is a rarely seen example of architect H.H. Richardson's work. Through the generosity of the Jesuits of Boston College, the Bellarmine House will be open for tours June 20 and 21 for two fundraising events for the Cohasset Historical Society.

The interior of the Bellarmine House includes many details associated with the Arts and Crafts movement — exposed oak ceiling beams, raised oak paneling, leaded glass windows and fine woodwork like the banister of the spiral staircase.

When the house was built between 1880 and 1881, Frederick Law Olmsted, a pioneer in landscape architecture, designed the grounds of the property. While few of the original plantings remain, the peaceful paths and rarely seen outlooks of the eight-acre property do.

"We are very grateful to the Jesuits for opening their home to us. It should be a memorable event for all who attend."

Sacred words of memorial

When Abraham Lincoln gave his famed Gettysburg Address, he asked how we can possibly honor the brave men and women whose lives in service of our country personify honor itself.

Words and tributes fall terribly short of measuring up to the courage and sacrifice of our military personnel who gave their lives fighting for our freedom.

Yet words and tributes and tears and wreaths are all we have.

All we have to offer are love and prayers and heartfelt gratitude.

We offer our hearts on Memorial Day.

What family has not been touched by the aching loss of a loved one on the battlefield?

On Memorial Day, that love wells up.

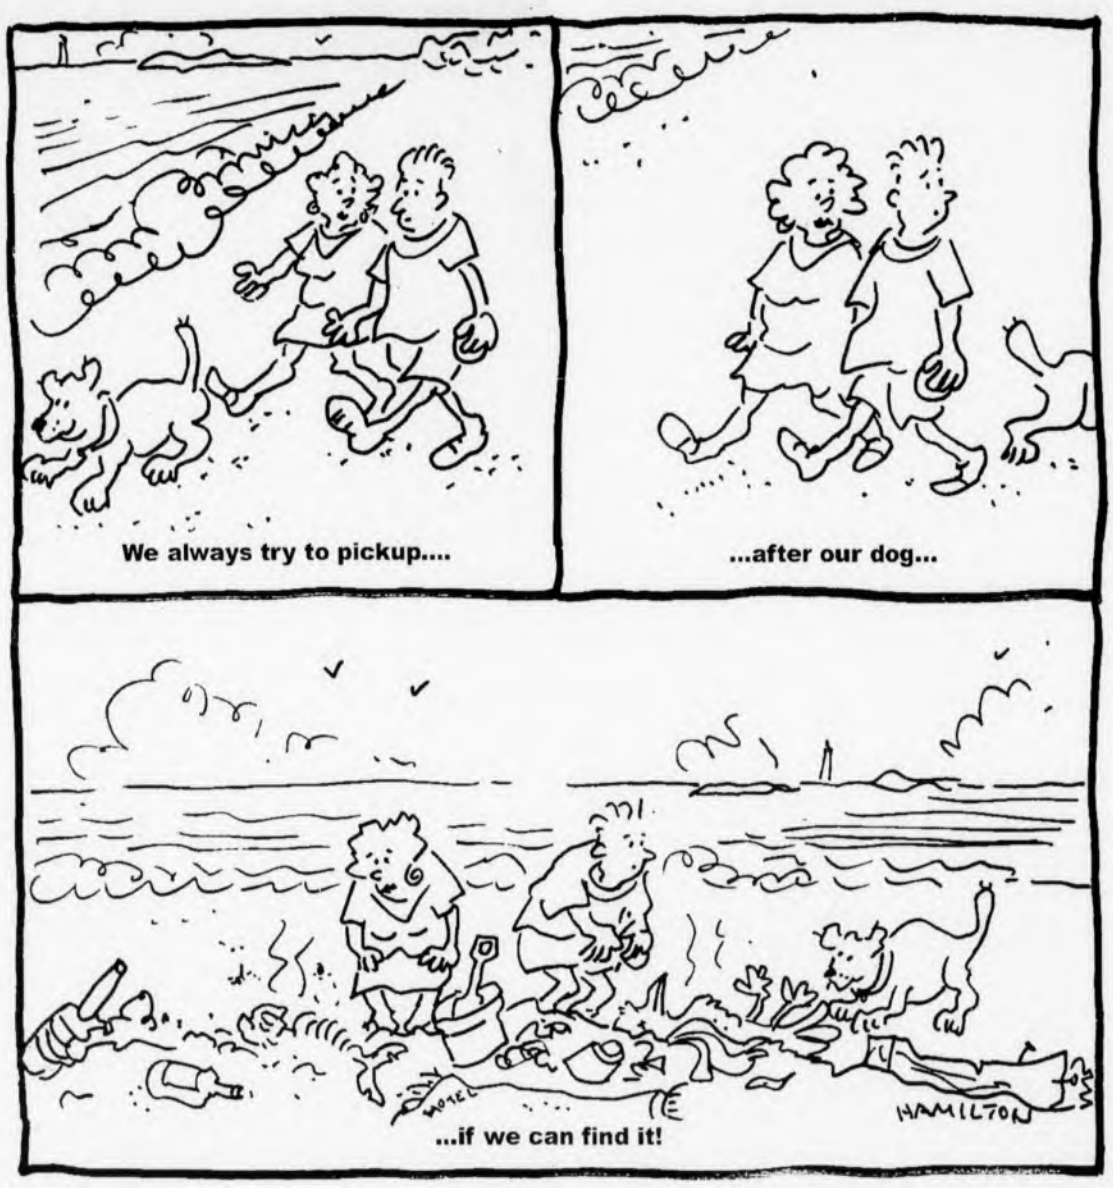
Originally Memorial Day, also known as Decoration Day, honored military personnel who died during the Civil War.

The town of Waterloo is credited with being the first to commemorate Memorial Day with observances on May 5, 1866, honoring soldiers killed in the American Civil War.

History recorded that businesses closed and people decorated soldiers' graves and flew flags at half-mast.

A tribute such as Memorial Day was too beautiful and sacred to be limited to one town.

Memorial Day spread across the nation like a rainbow, and that day now honors all Americans who gave their lives for our country.



Cohasset will honor all our deceased members of our armed forces on Monday (May 26).

At Veterans Memorial Park at the Harbor, US Navy Lt. Michael L. Fichtner, who grew up in Cohasset graduating from Cohasset High School in 1978 and has served in the US Navy as a pilot on active and reserve duty, is the featured speaker.

At 2 p.m. on Saturday, the Healing Field on the island at Summer and Border streets will be officially dedicated.

The Healing Field dedication; Monday's parade, which makes several stops along the way, and the Memorial Day service at the harbor will be inspiring and beautiful, as they always are.

We hope residents will attend and offer their thanks and prayers to the men and women who have given so much to us.

Land purchase protects Lily Pond

COMMENTARY

JIM HAMILTON

Thursday, May 22, the last parcels of Brass Kettle Conservation Area were purchased by the Town of Cohasset, which completed four years of land purchases that now comprises 120 acres of Lily Pond watershed protection.

At the spring 2004 Town Meeting, the Water Department received voter approval to purchase private woodlands in the watershed of the town's primary drinking water reservoir Lily Pond. Funding initially came from Water Department revenues, state grants, the Cohasset Preservation Commission, and the Cohasset Conservation Trust.

Key pieces of property were purchased along King Street, which essentially locked up the frontage that would prevent potential developers' access to the properties within the Brass Kettle Conservation Area. Many of the properties were landlocked woodland parcels inherited by their owners or purchased as a part of a land swap.

By purchasing the last two pieces of property, the town has permanently set aside significant acreage that serves multiple purposes — a protected watershed, a wildlife refuge, wild flowers and ferns, vernal pools, historic stonewalls, and a recreational trail network that is connected to Wompatuck State Park and Whitney-Thayer Woods. The Trustees of Reservations will hold the conservation restriction on this land and an adjacent seventy acres owned by the Water Department and will be responsible for maintaining the trail system throughout the conservation area.

The final purchases this week were made possible by a unique partnership of public and private contributors all working together to achieve a common goal. $500,000 came from the Executive Office of Environmental Affairs, the Cohasset Preservation Commission, the Water Department, the Cohasset Conservation Commission, the Trustees of Reservations, the Bates Family Trust, and the Cohasset Conservation Trust.

The final purchases this week were made possible by a unique partnership of public and private contributors all working together to achieve a common goal.

Altogether, $2,500,000 was raised over the four years it took to complete the purchases involving negotiations with the various landowners.

Along with thanks to the major contributors, recognition should go to the Water Department Chairman Glenn Pratt who was the primary negotiator with the landowners and was personally involved in the land transactions from the beginning. He was also responsible for creating the parking lot on King Street that allows access into Great Lot Lane, the historic cart path that dates back to colonial times.

Cohasset, known for its rocky seacoast vistas and picturesque harbors, can also claim the distinction of preserving one of the largest percentages of municipal green space of any South Shore town.

Punch list progress on Greenbush

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Greenbush – The contractor, Cashman, Balfour, Beatty (CBB), has really made progress cleaning up the punch list of items to be completed on the Greenbush project. Some of the things that have been done or are underway are:

- Completion of the hammerhead turn-around at Spring Street.
- Completion of the turn-around at Lincoln Lane
- Work on adding eight new parking spaces in the Town Parking Lot adjacent to the Teen Center.
- Fix the curbing and step from the Town Parking Lot to the Fix-It Shop, and rework the curbing adjacent to the Fix-It Shop.
- Add a new section of sidewalk at the entrance to the Town Parking Lot on Depot Court across from the South shore Art Center. (This will serve to better define the exit road from the lot and make pedestrian passage substantially safer along Depot Court.)
- Clean up the construction area at the N. Main St. / Forest Ave. / Lower King Street intersection.

CBB has been very helpful and flexible in working with our office in the completion of these smaller lingering tasks.

Important Greenbush safety – This week we had a report of a possible malfunction of a Greenbush crossing warning light at North Main Street. Unfortunately, we did not hear of the report until long after the fact. It is really important, that if you see what you think is a malfunction of any kind, call either 911 or the 800 number posted at each signal bungalow as soon as you possibly can. Notifying the MBTA promptly is really important to get any problems resolved.

Greenbush traffic islands – Some time ago, we mentioned that the Board of Selectmen were looking for volunteers to plant and maintain the traffic islands associated with the Greenbush project at the crossings. In the spirit of Cohasset volunteerism, a number of people and organizations have stepped forward and volunteered to plant and maintain most of the islands. We had to wait until the MBTA released them to us before the volunteers could get to work.

In casual conversation this past week a representative from the MBTA mentioned to us that it is OK for us to begin planting in the medians at each crossing. In Cohasset this process is controlled by the Selectmen's office.

In casual conversation this past week a representative from the MBTA mentioned to us that it is OK for us to begin planting in the medians at each crossing. In Cohasset this process is controlled by the Selectmen's office. If you or an organization you represent is interested in taking over the planting and maintenance of a median island, please call the Selectmen's office at 781-383-4105 and sign up for one of the remaining areas. Median areas that are currently available are at the Pond Street and Sohier Street railroad crossings. Here's your big chance to help us continue to make Cohasset a show place and to help soften the visual impact of the crossings.

Greenbush sork in Scituate – You may have noticed that Henry Turner Bailey Road is currently closed between Route 3A and Country Way. As a part of the Greenbush project, the MBTA is reconfiguring the intersection of Henry Turner Bailey Rd. and Route 3A. Rather than the current sweeping turn configuration it will be redone into more of a "T" intersection with a median in Henry Turner Bailey Road at the intersection. There will also be an overhead blinking light (red on Henry Turner Bailey Road, amber on Route 3A). The closure of Country Way for the construction of a new bridge over Bound Brook at the N. Scituate Station will not start until Henry Turner Bailey Road is reopened.

Washington Story Part 3: The girl who cried Rolf

DRIVING WHILE TYPING

JOHN LENGYEL

I'll try to be discrete here. A member of my family — a junior membe r— a girl, let's say — is a picky eater. When I say picky I mean aside from junk food there are only three items you can find in a grocery store that she will eat. Yes, it's a pain, and I would complain about it in the strongest terms, but then my mother would remind everyone that for two full years I lived on nothing but Honeycomb cereal and cranberry juice. And I wasn't faking it. Short of child abuse there was nothing my parents could have done to force an expansion of my diet.

That happened on its own in my mid-teens and now I eat everything, with two notable exceptions. I don't eat seafood, because I literally can't smell the difference between fresh cod and the dumpster behind Anthony's Pier 4, crustaceans are basically giant underwater insects, and mollusks are self-explanatory. The other thing I don't eat is dried coconut, because I'm against foods you can never fully swallow. You can wash down a Mounds bar with a quart of cranberry juice and I guarantee you'll still be chewing coconut an hour later. Even a Waterpik is powerless against it.

One of the three things my daughter will eat is Gerber pears, which is fortunate, because it's the only thing standing between her and a complete lower GI shutdown. A few days without the pears and we're looking at a 12-hour ordeal negotiating the release of the hostages, as we say. Typical vacation food, whose roughage content is so low it actually sucks fiber from your stomach lining, makes the pears that much more crucial. So when a heavily armed man at the Capitol building in Washington DC ordered me to drop the pears or face the consequences, you can understand why I hesitated.

So when a heavily armed man at the Capitol building in Washington DC ordered me to drop the pears or face the consequences, you can understand why I hesitated.

As I recounted in Part 2 of this story, choosing the pears over a tour of the Capitol building meant I got separated from my family for several hours. Ordinarily this would be a boon, but there's something about getting left behind in an unfamiliar city that can make a grown man feel like a kid lost at Six Flags. A cast member walked by who looked exactly like Christopher Dodd, and I considered asking him to help me find my family, because if there was no hope I knew he'd tell it to me straight, with no flimflammery, no dealing from the bottom of the deck. But instead I decided to attempt the impossible and call my wife on her cell phone.

If you've ever tried to reach my wife on her cell phone you know how desperate the situation had become. This is a phone that is never charged, let alone on, yet still somehow costs 40 bucks a month. She's more likely to use it as a projectile weapon against an attacker than as a communication device. But it was my last hope, so I ran down Capitol Hill and across Maryland Ave to the Botanical Gardens, which supposedly housed the closest public phone along with the world's largest collection of Eurasian Ghost Orchids or pumpkins or some such garbage.

Every minute I spent away from the Capitol building was a minute in which my family might emerge, glance around halfheartedly and decide to move to California without me. So placing the futile call and returning quickly to the scene was top priority. What I hadn't banked on was the jungle labyrinth design of the building and the number of idiots fascinated by ferns. I was climbing over children, trampling rare and endangered ficus plants, endangering not-so-rare old matrons from every garden club in the country... Eventually I made it to the phone, left a message for my wife, slashed and burned my way back to the entrance and ran up the hill to find her waiting for me near the Capitol steps.

As you would expect we had a happy reunion, assigned blame for the mishap, and then Emily threw up on a tour bus. Actually she threw up on me, the bus, and everyone else unlucky enough to be touring in the vicinity that day.

She had told me several times that she was going to throw up, but I ignored her. You have to understand that Emily is always warning she's about to throw up, and only delivers the goods about once a year. She's like a dormant volcano that rumbles harmlessly for decades, so you build your mud hut on the mountainside and refuse to evacuate every time you see a little smoke. You tell everyone it's all part of the Mount Emily lifestyle. Then you find yourself in a taxi with chunks of pasta in your ear and all the windows rolled down.

When we spilled out of the cab in front of our hotel I tipped the driver $5. Where I come from that means you're eternally grateful, but I'm not sure it helped. The windows stayed down as he sped off toward the Potomac River.

John Lengyel lives in Cohasset, where you may notice there are no Gerber pears left in stores on Tuesday afternoons.

HEALTH NOTES

Barbecuing, ticks and mosquitoes

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Spring is a pentecost of sorts. The world is filled with spirit of new life: buds, baby birds, bothersome insects, deer tick nymphs. And, of course humans, swatting, swearing and sweltering at barbecues. So, it's time to dust off the listing of precautions necessary to survive intact during the change of seasons.

It's cookout and barbecue time. Prepare food safely.

Make the most of the fun by making sure your food remains safe. The following steps are easy, and they'll help protect you and those around you from harmful food borne bacteria.

- Cook: Cook meat, poultry and eggs thoroughly.
- Separate: Don't cross-contaminate one food with another.
- Chill: Refrigerate leftovers promptly.
- Clean: Wash produce and hands.
- Report: Report suspected food borne illnesses to your local public health department.

Outside? Watch out for Ticks — To investigate specifically what human behavior increases the risk of tick exposure, researchers from the University of California at Berkeley took to the woods. They found that sitting on a log carried with it the greatest risk of picking up a tick. If you sit on a log (at least in Northern California) for only five minutes, you have a 30 percent chance of getting a tick on you! Gathering wood was also cited as a risky activity as well as leaning up against a tree.

Tick Secrets revealed — The reason ticks are hard to remove is that they often secrete "cementum" to more firmly anchor mouthparts and head to the host. Ticks may secrete or regurgitate small amounts of saliva that contain neurotoxins. These nerve poisons cleverly prevent you from feeling the pain and irritation of the bite. You may never notice the tick feeding on you. The saliva may contain a blood thinner to make it easier for the tick to get its blood meal.

Consider keeping it in a tightly closed jar or taped to a piece of paper. You may need to show the tick to the doctor if you become ill from the tick bite.

How to remove a tick — Use a small pair of curved forceps or tweezers. If possible, wear some sort of hand protection such as gloves so you don't spread bacteria from the tick to your hands. Grasp the tick firmly with the tweezers as close to the skin as possible. Apply gentle pulling until the tick comes free. Twisting or turning the tick doesn't seem to help because the mouthparts are barbed.

Once removed, don't crush the tick because you may transmit disease. Rinse it down a sink or flush it down a toilet. Consider keeping it in a tightly closed jar or taped to a piece of paper. You may need to show the tick to the doctor if you become ill from the tick bite. The area of the bite should leave a small crater or indentation where the head and mouthparts were embedded. If significant portions of the head or mouthparts remain, they may need to be removed by a doctor.

Thoroughly cleanse the bite area with soap and water or a mild disinfectant. Observe the area for several days for development of a reaction to the bite, such as a rash or signs of infection. Apply antibiotic cream to the area. Application of an antibiotic to the area may help prevent a local infection but does not affect the diseases transmitted by the tick.

Remember to wash your hands thoroughly after handling any tick or instruments that touched a tick. Clean and disinfect any instruments that were used.

Mosquitoes — Human, bird and equine infections have already been reported to CDC in 2008. Listen for news from your local health department about additional WNV infections. As Spring continues, WNV activity will become more widespread, so protect yourself and your family from mosquito bites. The virus can cause serious, life-altering and even fatal disease.

Use Mosquito Repellent — Of the active ingredients registered with the EPA, the CDC believes that two: DEET (N,N-diethyl-m-toluamide) and Picaridin (KBR 3023) have demonstrated a higher degree of efficacy in the peer-reviewed, scientific literature. Products containing these active ingredients typically provide longer-lasting protection than others:

Additional measures to reduce the probability of infection from mosquitoes are:

- Eliminate Mosquito Breeding Sites
- Install or Repair Window and Door Screens
- Support Community-Based Mosquito Control Programs

On the trail of Kennedys

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

It was difficult in the second half of the 20th century to toil in the business of collecting news around Boston and not cross paths with a Kennedy or two.

It seemed like they were always running for office (and winning 10 times out of 10), driving off bridges, surviving plane crashes or dating beautiful women.

I first met Jack, the president, up front and personal in a Springfield hotel when he was running for reelection against some obscure Republican in 1958.

I was working out of New York at the time and, since I was from Boston, I was considered to be just the expert to write about his preparations to run for president in 1960.

I first met Ted, the president's brother, when he was running for the Senate against George Lodge in 1962

I'll never forget his first words to me in that Springfield hotel. "Larry and Kenny are in the bar," he said. Boy, is that personal contact or what!

I first met Ted, the president's brother, when he was running for the Senate against George Lodge in 1962 to fill Jack's old seat, which was once held by George's father, Henry Cabot.

I spent a couple of weeks with the two of them, trailing Ted through the cities and towns of southeastern Massachusetts and George around the suburbs of Boston.

All I remember of George is that he ran a relaxed ship that included a bus with a bed in it and I was once in a car so crowded that the daughter of Robert Choate, publisher of the Herald, had to sit on my lap, a first for my lap.

There were four of us on the trail in Ted's car — Ted, Ed Moss, his chief campaign aide, Doug Wayland, the driver, and me. The campaign was Ted's first and much was expected of him so there was an air of tension around us.

I learned early, while at lunch in a restaurant on the Plymouth waterfront, that a Kennedy never pays. It was Ed Moss who settled up all checks. Ed later died in the 1964 plane crash in which Ted broke his back.

The highlight of the day came around supper time at the Brockton home of State Senator Blackie Burke when we played touch football in the backyard while Blackie's wife, Angela, cooked us a spaghetti dinner.

Much later, sometime in the early '80s, I was working at a weekly paper, the Quincy Sun, when Ted came by on a tour of the boondocks to promote some pet bill. He was preceded by a bevy of Secret Service men.

A few weeks before, I had just finished up a never-ending series on the drug culture in Quincy schools and one of the cops, Don Pearson, had given me as a souvenir a brass pot pipe confiscated from a junior high school dope fiend.

The Secret Service man was going through my desk in search of a bomb or some other infernal device when he came across the pipe. He took it out, stared at it for a moment, looked quizzically at me, shrugged, and put it back.

I got rid of the pipe quickly lest the Secret Service rat me out to the DEA. How do you explain to your friends that Ted Kennedy got you busted for smoking weed?

Memorial Day, Healing Field observances planned

Deidre Wigmore, American Legion Auxiliary President, said the Healing Field has brought out families and townspeople to remember, honor and heal over the two-week exhibit, not just on Memorial Day.

"The town really comes together for this week," she said.

On Monday, the annual parade down North Main Street to the Common and onto Elm Street and the harbor is always a draw in this small town that has lost more than of its share of soldiers, sailors and airmen over the years.

The Veterans Memorial stone monument provides the backdrop for the ceremony that will include featured speaker US Navy Lt. Michael L. Fichtner. Fichtner grew up in Cohasset graduating from Cohasset High School in 1978 and has served in the US Navy as a pilot on active and reserve duty. He flew logistics support for combat operations during Operation Desert Storm in 1991.

The parade arrives at the harbor at about 11:45 a.m. but the day's events actually begin the night before. From 8 p.m. Sunday to 6 a.m. Monday, a Legion member will keep vigil at Veterans Park. At 7 a.m. the George H. Mealy American Legion Post 118 on Summer Street hosts the annual veterans' breakfast. From the Legion veterans march up to the old Paul Pratt Library building (now the headquarters of the Cohasset Historical Society) where they board buses for the North Cohasset Cemetery and honor roll.

STAFF PHOTO/ROBIN CHAN

About 428 American flags are display at the harbor. The Healing Field will be dedicated at 2 p.m., Saturday.

The striking visual of over 400 waving American flags is meant to honor all service men and women who have served, continue to serve and those who have paid the ultimate price to keep America free.

The buses arrive at Woodside at about 9:30 a.m. that includes visiting the Gold Star Mothers Memorial. Then it's on to Beechwood Cemetery. The veterans join the parade that includes local bands, scouts, a contingent from the Daughters of the American Revolution, and veterans at the Music Circus parking lot at about 10:30 a.m. From 10:40 to 11:10a.m. the Cohasset Carillon at St. Stephen's plays patriotic and American folk and show tunes before the parade makes its way to the village. The parade marches to Central Cemetery at Joy Place, then down North Main Street to the Common, the POW/MIA Memorial, and onto Elm Street and the harbor, arriving at about 11:45 a.m.

Deidre Wigmore said her favorite moment of the Memorial Day is when the parade makes its appearance near the common. A slight hill obscures the parade from view and then all of a sudden you see it. "I love that part."

Tom Wigmore may be biased, but he touts Cohasset's Memorial Day events as "the best in the country by far."

Memorial Day schedule

- 7 a.m., veterans breakfast at the Legion
- 8:15 a.m., buses leave old Paul Pratt Library for North Cohasset
- 9:30 a.m., buses arrive at Woodside Cemetery, then on to Beechwood Cemetery

THE HOUSE AND SENATE: Beacon Hill Roll Call records local senators' votes on two roll calls from the week of May 12-16. There were no roll calls in the House last week.

FOOD ALLERGIES AND RESTAURANTS (S 2701)

Senate 36-3, approved and sent to the House legislation requiring all restaurants to prominently display a poster about food allergy awareness in the staff area and to include on all menus a notice of the customer's obligation to inform the server about any food allergies. Another provision requires the Department of Public Health (DPH) to develop a voluntary program that allows restaurants to be designated as "Food Allergy Friendly" by the DPH and posted on the agency's website. The guidelines that restaurants would have to meet for the designation would be developed by the DPH and would include a requirement that a restaurant maintain on the premises a master list of all the ingredients used in the preparation of each food item on the menu. Supporters said that an estimated 11 million Americans suffer from food allergies that result in more than 30,000 emergency room visits and 200 deaths each year. They argued that the bill is a common sense one that would save lives and reduce illnesses. Opponents said that they support doing something about food allergies but argued that the bill would hurt small take out venues that post their food choices on a board and do not have menus. They noted that the measure would require that these mom and pop operations change their operation and incur the costs of printing menus. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill establishing requirements. A "No" vote is against the requirements).

OCEAN MANAGEMENT (S 2690)

Senate 39-0, approved a conference committee version of a bill requiring the state to develop and implement an ocean management plan. The compromise was reached after the House and Senate passed different versions of the bill. The new measure does not include a section from the original House version that critics said would destroy the state's ocean sanctuaries law and allow Jay Cashman, a friend of House Speaker Salvatore DiMasi, to build up to 120 wind turbines in Buzzards Bay. Supporters of the bill said that this landmark legislation would ensure that the state has a statewide and comprehensive plan to balance the commercial and recreational uses of oceans and the protection of their environmental value. They noted that proposals for liquefied natural gas (LNG) terminals, gas pipelines, telecommunications cables and wind energy facilities must be carefully considered along with the need to preserve the oceans and the environment. Some noted that it is long past the time to eliminate the current system that spreads out this important responsibility among several government agencies in a piecemeal, confusing and inconsistent manner. The bill needs additional approval by both branches prior to going to the governor. (A "Yes" vote is for the bill).

ALSO UP ON BEACON HILL:

ABOLISH INCOME TAX AND DECRIMINALIZE MARIJUANA - Supporters of two possible November 2008 ballot questions are hitting the streets again to gather signatures. The Legislature did not act by last week's deadline on initiative petitions abolishing the state's 5.3 percent income tax and replacing the criminal penalties for possession of one ounce or less of marijuana with a new system of civil penalties. The groups in December had cleared the first hurdle by collecting the 66,593 required signatures to bring the proposals to the Legislature. The House and Senate's inaction on the measures means that supporters need another 11,099 signatures by June 18 in order to get their questions on the 2008 ballot for voter consideration.

Supporters of decriminalizing marijuana say that under current law, offenders can face excessive and unnecessary penalties including up to six months in jail and a fine of up to $500. They argue that states which have approved similar decriminalization law have not seen an increase in marijuana use and noted that the bill would save millions of dollars in law enforcement and court costs. Opponents say that decriminalization sends the wrong message and would increase marijuana use. They also argue that marijuana is a gateway drug that would lead to the use of more dangerous drugs.

Supporters of abolishing the income tax say that abolition would save taxpayers an average of $3,600 per year and force politicians to downsize the budget and eliminate waste and pork. Opponents say that the abolition would cost the state $11 billion and force deep cuts in many essential programs.

PROPERTY TAX REVENUE FROM VERIZON - The Department of Revenue (DOR) released figures indicating how much money local communities would receive if a March 3 Appellate Tax Board ruling holds up. The board ruled that Verizon was required to pay property taxes on its poles and wires on public ways in cities and towns. Verizon is appealing the decision. Under current law, Verizon and other telecommunication companies' poles and wires are exempt from local property taxes while electric companies and wireless companies are required to pay property taxes on poles and wires. According to the DOR, the board's ruling required the state to issue by May 15 the valuation of the poles and wires and an estimate of how much each of the state's 351 communities would receive in new property tax revenue. The total valuation is $1.6 billion and the 351 communities would receive a combined total of $26.1 million. This estimate does not include up to an estimated $50 million in new tax revenue on telephone company machinery including switches.

Mohamed, who is Ali Hajj Zaidan's brother, wipes down a car after cleaning it on Wednesday. It is another service that they offer at the gas station besides doing inspections and other auto repairs.

Hajj family is pumped up about business

tion. But, he is not going at it alone--"united we stand" is the family's motto for the business. He learned car repair from his father, an auto mechanic.

"I know I couldn't do this without their help...between all of us we figure it out," he explained.

At 27, he is the oldest of nine children and the youngest is 11. While several of his siblings are already here in America, he's working to bring his entire family to the US.

"We want our family to be a part of the community."
— Ali H. Zaidan

"Whatever is in their mind, I want (my brothers and sisters) to have it," said Ali, adding the education and opportunities here are more than they could have in Lebanon.

His sister has aspirations of being a pharmacist, while his brother is adept at computers, even helping him set up spreadsheets for the business.

Although he currently resides in Hull, he spends most of his time in Cohasset where he's found the community welcoming.

"Cohasset is different. Here it is like a family, I love it. They are all like neighbors," he said.

Customers in the morning often bring him coffee or offer to get him something to eat at French Memories or Atlantic Bagel, he said.

In turn, he and his family try to offer the best service they can. When they took over they made the station open seven-day a week with daily hours of operation from 6a.m. to 8p.m. He plans to be open even more during the summer months — 5a.m. to 10p.m. The longer hours may require him to take a day off, he said with a smile. But, he believes the hard work he is putting in now will pay off in the end.

"In the first year of business I think you have to work hard — get to know the people, the community and the business," Ali said. "We want our family to be a part of the community."

Little things like going out to give a jump for a woman with a dead battery for no charge or repairing something minor for free, he and his family do without a second thought. "We like to help."

Ali Hajj Zaidan fills out an inspection sticker report at Hajj Auto Care.

When Ali arrived in the US in 2004, he said he started working hard, going to school for computers and saving as much money as he could. To learn English, he read the newspaper everyday and circled any words he didn't know. Then, he would ask friends to explain what the word meant.

When the opportunity to become a business owner came up, he thought this would be the way to establish himself in the area.

"If you never try, you never know," said Ali. "I put the goal in my mind and follow it through."

For the village gas station, he is looking to make improvements to the station. He is currently looking at prices for a canopy and new pumps to allow both full service and self-service amenities.

John Steinmetz of 175 Sohier St. has had several positive experiences with the Hajj family car service .

"Instead of dreading having to go to the gas stations as used to be the case, I now actually enjoy going. The members of the Hajj family are all extremely friendly, and go out of their way to be helpful," said Steinmetz. As the father of four children under the age of three and the new dad of six-month old twins, he said he was way behind on car maintenance, inspections and the replacement of a dented bumper up until a few months ago. With the Hajj's extended hours, he was able to bring in the cars late on the weekend and get them inspected and serviced.

"I don't know of any other gas station that offers these hours of operation, and I know that the many other people in town with schedules like mine will greatly appreciated these extended hours," said Steinmetz.

With gas prices on the rise nearly everyday, Ali said it's a struggle for him as well as the customer. This week when he filled his tanks, it cost him $3.70 per gallon. He was charging $3.79. If a customer pays by credit card, it cuts into his profit.

"It affects me a lot, but we always try to stay competitive (with other area gas stations)," said Ali.

Along with his family, Ali has put himself heart and soul into the business and doesn't have much time for anything else.

"I call it my wife," he quipped.

Cape Yachts names Tierney general manager

Cape Yachts announced recently it has appointment William "Bill" Tierney of Cohasset general manager of its Cape Cod operations based in Harwich Port.

"Bill returns to us bringing a perspective of our working history and appreciation of our Cape Cod service operation along with a successful track record in sales and management," said Dave Nolan, president of Cape Yachts. Prior to joining Cape Yachts, Tierney enjoyed a 15-year career in the financial services community after beginning his working career with Cape Yachts while attending college.

Tierney's initial efforts will be to complete Cape Yacht's transition of its Cape Cod operation from its 22-year history of large yacht sales and service that included smaller outboard boats, into a full-service dealership that specializes in the smaller outboard market featuring Robalo Boats powered by Yamaha engines. The Harwich Port location will continue to serve the Cape as Cape Yacht's beach head site for its fine yacht builders. Last summer, Cape Yachts expanded its operation with the addition of a full-service waterfront yacht yard and marina at South Wharf in Padanaram.

Cape Yachts is a full-service dealer and New England distributor for Robalo Boats, True North Power Boats, Alerion Express, Beneteau Yachts, Sabre and Hallberg Rassy Sailboats.

Collection to benefit service personnel

Members of First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church in Cohasset have recently learned that military personnel seriously injured in Iraq are airlifted to the Balad Air Base Hospital where they are triaged and stabilized before being sent to Germany and then eventually home. These men and women are picked up from the field without any personal items or civilian clothing. Flight doctors say these soldiers really want to travel and arrive home wearing their own clothing, not military fatigues or hospital pajamas. Church members have been asked if they could supply clothes and personal items that would be distributed to these men and women, injured in the service to the country. Help from the community is being asked to collect clothing to help meet these needs.

The list, for both men and women, include: underwear, bras, socks, flip-flops, shirts, pants, belts, toothbrushes, toothpaste and deodorant.

The clothing should be new, basic and comfortable, and in all sizes. Think loose, cargo-style pants and polo-type shirts. Both winter and summer clothes are needed.

There will be a collection center in the Parish House of First Parish in Cohasset, 23 North Main St., for any items people might want to drop off to help with this effort.

Checks to help with shipping would also be appreciated. Make checks out to First Parish in Cohasset and note Balad Hospital.

"The Ocean Around Us," a photography exhibition by Cohasset photographer Martin G. Grassie, will be shown at Thomas Crane Library in Quincy during the month of June. An opening reception will take place from 2 to 4 p.m., on June 1, at the library.

Grassie said, " I am drawn to the ocean and the beaches with my camera. I have tried to capture living and non-living segments of the atmosphere that surround all of us 'ocean creatures' that inhabit the coastal communities. When I walk along our beautiful shore I feel one with nature and hope to learn to capture this spirit through my photographs."

Grassie is a former elementary school principal and teacher. After 40 years in the public schools he is retired and enjoying capturing the world through his eyes and camera.

Part of the exhibit features Lucy the harp seal. In February 2008 a harp seal came ashore on the Sandy Beach in Cohasset. Grassie said, "I came across the scene of a large Labrador retriever barking at the seal and many children and their parents gathered around. Many of those that had interacted with the harp seal felt a connection and some communication with Lucy. The children on the beach named the harp seal Lucy. I have tried to convey the stress felt by the seal and some of the communication felt by the bystanders."

Lucy, the harp seal, who came ashore in February.

Grassie has photographed as part of his job for years, building Web sites both for his classroom and school. He taught science and math to elementary students using the ocean as a lesson or example for many years. He was given a Kodak camera by his sister, Liz, for Christmas when he was 10-years-old. Part of the thrill of photography is honoring her spirit and love of life through his photographs.

Tennis benefit for Children's Hospital

Save the date for Cohasset's longest-running tennis tradition, which swings into action again this summer to benefit Children's Hospital Boston beginning Friday, July 18th through Sunday, July 20th. The popular weekend tennis tournament dates back to the 1950's, when Cohasset's legendary philanthropist Jesse Cox gathered family and friends for a charitable game of tennis to benefit some of the neediest children and their families at Children's Hospital.

The event was a tremendous success and soon became an annual summer tradition. In the past 10 years alone, more than $100,000 has been raised to benefit patients and their families at the hospital, earning the Cohasset Tennis Benefit a commemorative plaque in the Children's lobby. This year all proceeds will help fund the Pediatric Trauma Program, with 100 percent of the proceeds paying for transportation, lodging and personal care packages for families of trauma patients.

This summer's benefit kicks off with an evening reception on Friday, July 18th at the Lightkeeper's Residence on Cohasset Harbor. On Saturday, July 19, tennis players of all abilities, from beginners to advanced, are evenly matched and play on some of the most spectacular private courts throughout Cohasset. Finals for three levels of play (social, intermediate and advanced) take place on Sunday, July 20th on the grounds of the Roy estate, formerly the home of Cohasset Tennis Benefit founder Jesse Cox.

Skippers lock up tournament berth

Now look for South Shore League title

By Eric MacCarthy
CORRESPONDENT

After numerous years of not fulfilling high expectations set at the start of the season, the Cohasset High baseball team has finally fulfilled their long awaited expectation of the making the state tournament.

With a 3-2 win over Carver last Thursday, the Skippers clinched a playoff spot in the tournament for the first time in nine seasons. Cohasset has only kept the ball rolling from there, as its two following wins against Hull and Mashpee have moved them that much closer to a South Shore League title.

In order to clinch a playoff spot, Cohasset turned to a new starting pitcher, sophomore Brendan Doonan, to try and get the job done.

Doonan did just that.

While pitching the first seven innings of this extra inning game, Doonan struck out six Carver batters, allowed only four hits, and did not allow any earned runs. Senior Dave Snowdale pitched the eighth inning for the save.

Cohasset's offense did little to help the young starter, as they were only able to muster two runs for the regular game before scoring a run with some help in the eighth.

Senior Kyle Pinkus scored the run. That gave the Skippers a 3-2 lead to win the game. After hitting a single, Pinkus stole both second and third base, but while the catcher was attempting to throw Pinkus out at third, the ball went by the third baseman allowing the game-winning run to cross the plate.

Senior's Chris Rose and Sam DeGiacomo had the first two RBI's of the game for Cohasset.

Cohasset insured a spot in the state tournament with the win and could now focus its attention on the league title.

"It was good for the kids, especially for the seniors who have been on the team so long and are very experienced," said Cohasset head coach Al Gallotta. "The senior leadership has been very good."

The Skippers started the week off positive with their 10-2 victory over rival Hull. DeGiacomo bounced back from his tough outing last week and pitched six very strong innings. He allowed only four hits in those six innings and had eight strikeouts.

DeGiacomo also helped himself out with three hits of his own, driving in a run.

The rest of Cohasset's offense bounced back after its poor outing versus Carver. Pinkus once again contributed with a two run single in the game, while both senior Alex Goetz and junior John Sturino also drove in two runs. Both of them had triples in the game, but it was Goetz who had the biggest day adding a round tripper to his awesome day. Senior Pat Doonan also had a good day with three hits and an RBI as well.

With the win over Hull, Cohasset knew that they were now in a virtual tie for first

Win over Hingham excites club before tourney opener

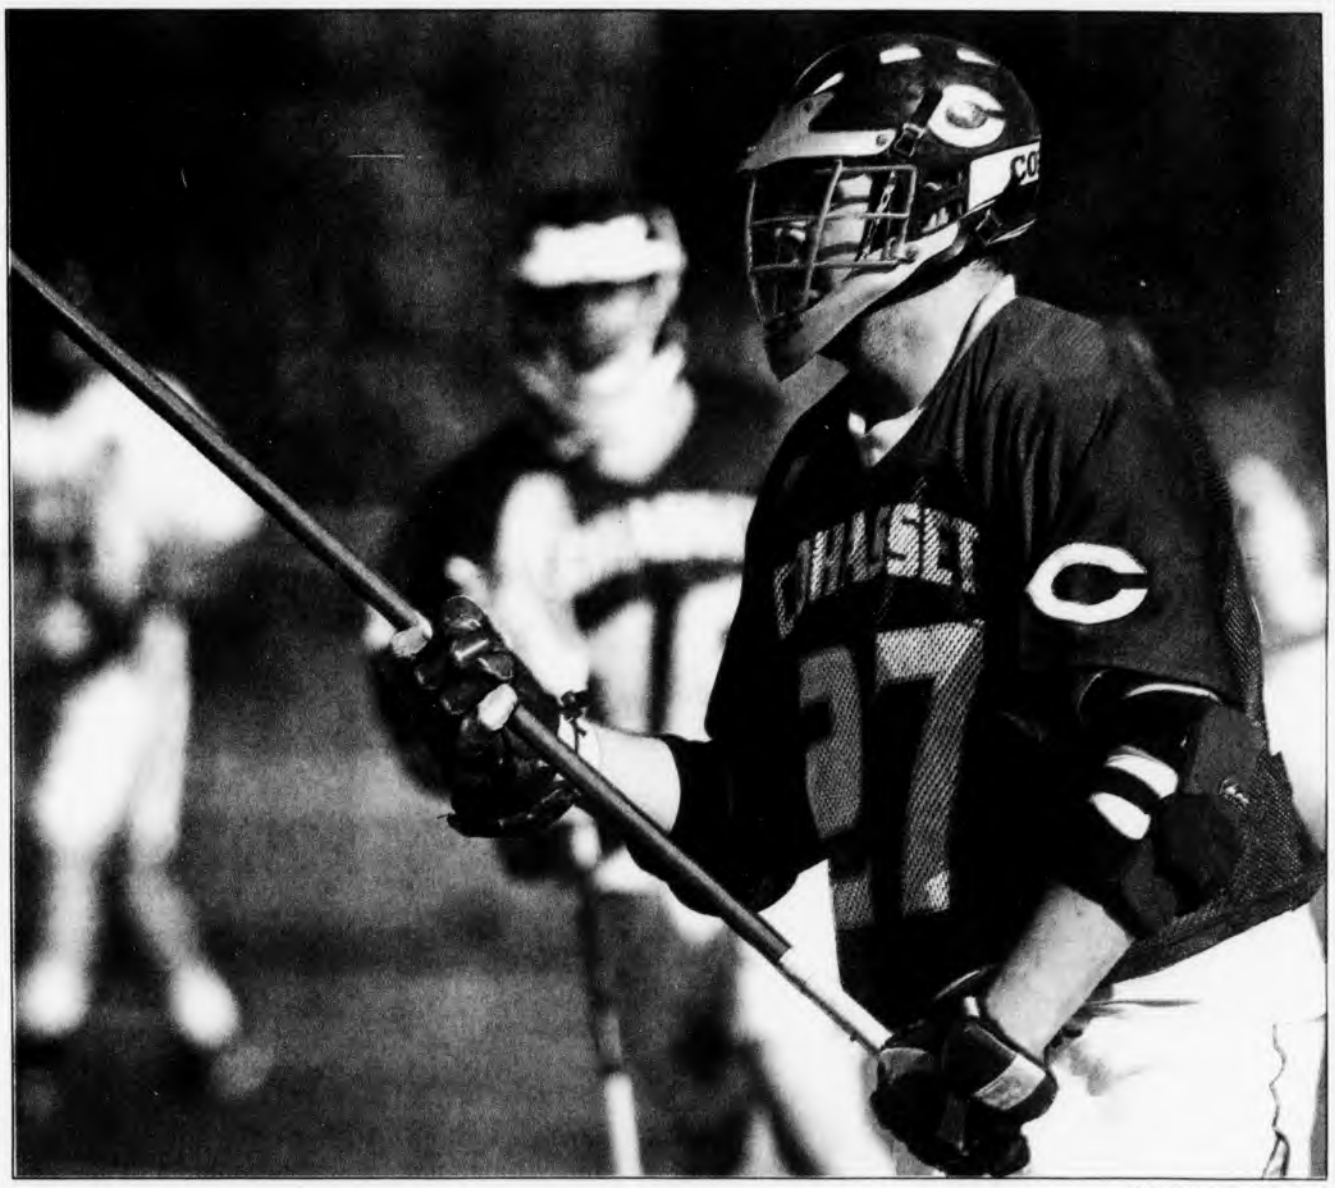
By Joel Racicot
JRACICOT@CNC.COM

The Cohasset High boys lacrosse team was "reeling a bit," according to coach Stew Curran, heading into last Thursday's game against Hingham. After losing to Marshfield and Barnstable, two excellent teams, the Skippers needed a reminder, a refresher of sorts, about who they are.

They got it with an 8-7, overtime win against the Harbormen. It has been a long time since Cohasset beat Hingham on its own turf. The Skippers beat Hingham last year, 13-9 at home.

"It was an outstanding win," Curran said. "Hingham is having a difficult season."

The Harbormen have lost six one goal games and two in overtime including the Cohasset game.



"They have a very talented team, a lot of returnees, but in crunch time they haven't beaten anybody."

Cohasset trailed 3-0 after one period and 5-2 at the half. They kept chipping away. Nate Porter was given a rest in net for Jack Murphy in the second half, and the substitution proved to be a good one.

"He is a good athlete, a hard working kid," Curran said. "We made the change in net. It wasn't so much that Nate is struggling, but the team is in front of him. Jack just went in and played spectacular."

With two minutes to go, Cohasset trailed by one. Murphy made a save

Boys clinch berth; girls finish unbeaten in league

By Joel Racicot
JRACICOT@CNC.COM

A 5-0 win over Mashpee Tuesday, earned the Cohasset High boys tennis team a second place finish in the South Shore League, and qualified them for the south sectional.

Ryan Crough (6-0, 6-0), Dan Brady (6-0, 6-0) and Garrett Canney (4-6, 6-4, 6-2) won at first, second and third singles.

First doubles team of Mike Filby and Luke Brewer won 6-2, 6-0, and second doubles team of Will Choi and Travis Craven won 6-2, 6-1.

The boys lost to Harwich, 4-1, Wednesday and Duxbury, 3-2, Monday. Mike Filby and Ivan Sceery won 7-5, 6-0 at doubles against the Rough Ryders.

Victor Hartman (6-4, 6-3) and Dan Brady (6-4, 6-4) both won at singles against the Green Dragons.

"We'll just stick with the regular lineup," he said. "We should do well, but it all depends on the draw. We've been representative in all of our tough matches but Hingham."

The Lady Skippers continued their torrid place through the SSL, and every other league, winning three matches this week: Duxbury 3-2, Monday, Mashpee 4-1, Tuesday, and Rockland 5-0, Wednesday.

The girls finished the regular season as the undefeated (12-0)

Max Montgomery played defense in the second half and showed how effective the long pole can be with several great checks and beautiful clears. Jack Stangelli, Jack Leffel and Dylan Bomeisler shut down the Pembroke offensive charge. Cohasset U13 continues to show great athletic ability and good sportsmanship. Five games, and five wins for Cohasset.

The U11 White squad broke through to a higher level of team play to win against Plymouth at their home field, 12-1. The first goal of the game was made by up and comer Jack Speer from a ground ball at the top of the box. Jack showed speed and confidence throughout the game.

After a faceoff win by Graham Blackburn, Cohasset brought it to Plymouth's defense again, and Drew Skolnick fed Conor and, 'like Brady to Moss," hit Charlie Czerkawski 60 yards on a break, who then sent the game into overtime with a goal.

Czerkawski won the initial faceoff in OT and did a great job against Hingham's Austin Driscoll all game. Czerkawski hit PJ McCaw on a set play. He then shot the ball of the bar. Hingham got the ball back but the Cohasset defense held strong.

On an ensuing possession, Mark Flibotte beat his man one-on-one for the game winner. He finished the game with 5 goals and 2 assists.

The senior tri-captain was once again stellar in her next start against Walpole, where she cruised to the victory by fanning 13 batters on three hits and no earned runs. place in the South Shore League with two other teams, but they also knew that they had keep winning if they wanted to maintain a spot at the top of the league.

And that's exactly what they did.

Cohasset's offense was once again on a tear as they tallied seven runs against Mashpee behind a great pitching performance by senior Brian Hill. Hill pitched a complete game, three-hitter, and also struck out five Mashpee batters.

Brendan Doonan went 4-for-4, with three singles and a triple. He also had three RBI's. Chris Rose had two more RBI's for the Skippers with his two-run double. Another run was scored on two sacrifices that Pat Doonan hit in the game, one a sacrifice fly and the other a sacrifice bunt.

Pat Doonan also had a walk, a single, a stolen base, and two-runs scored in the game. Goetz was another leading hitter on the day, with two hits of his own.

Cohasset was once again on fire as they beat Harwich 9-1.

"Everything's really all coming together for us," said Gallotta. "We have lots of confidence and believe we are going to win every game we go into."

In order to insure that the Skippers are at least a co-champion of the league, they will have to run the table with three games left in two days.

The team currently stands at 13-4 on the season, with a 10-3 record in the South Shore League.

Naughton for a goal. Blackburn ended the game with two assists and a goal.

Dan Axelson took another faceoff, taking it right to the crease for a shot and score. Dan has been a major force this year, showing skill and making plays at every corner of the field.

Graham Schwandt is another strong all field player, who followed Dan's example, winning the next faceoff and taking it right to Plymouth for another score.

Plymouth slipped one by Cohasset's rock-hard defense in the second quarter, but we dominated right into halftime. Defensemen, Will Lucier, Jackson Dutton and Jack Osten were too tough for Plymouth, allowing no crease penetration.

Jack Coffman made a number of great saves as goalie throughout the game and he has been showing great skill in and out of the goal all year long.

The second half started with a goal from Sam Arnold, after a ground ball in the crease and a "blue bird" shot to a confused goal tender.

Sam was a force at ground balls throughout the game. The team really settled into a pace of passing across the field to the open teammate, for the first time all year.

Attackmen Chris Norton and Drew Skolnick worked their magic for another goal by Drew from a great feed from Chris. Charlie DeVries had a breakout game of his own as attackman. He made two goals after passes from fast breaking middies, one where he was "mano-o-mano" with the goal tender.

The midfield lines were the backbone of the team all day long. Alex Fusco connected on a number of won ground balls for fast breaks to the attack. He has become a fast, aggressive addition to the midfield line-up.

Like Alex, Gavin Dunkelberger is also stretching his wings and showed confidence ands speed with the ball for a number of great plays across the midfield line.

This was not the team's first win, and even with a closer score, this was the team's best game this season.

Kathy was explaining her art program to Danna as they share ideas.

Cohasset's Lily McCarthy, 10 left, and her sister May, 18 center, reads the program for the "Art Forum" next to their brother Morgan, 13, who has a piece displayed at the South Shore Arts Center. They are sitting on a bench underneath work from the Inly School in Scituate.

Art Joseph of Norwell points to a mixed media piece called "Adrift at Sea" by Laura Kardok, an eighth grader at the Norwell Middle School. Each picture had to have 5 objects, a foreground, a middleground, and a background.

Multiple images can be scene in this piece made by Lizzy Doherty, a seventh grader at the Gates Middle School in Scituate. The exhibit runs through May 25.

Sue Saunders of Scituate photographs work from the East Middle School in Braintree as she wants to incorporate ideas from other schools for her own class. She was a co-teacher at Norwell Middle School while getting her master's degree at Bridgewater State College.

Beyond the beach in Puerto Rico

LA PARGUERA, Puerto Rico -

My co-paddler and I were in one of eight kayaks moving through a narrow mangrove lagoon outside the fishing village of La Parguera in southern Puerto Rico. Our destination was the famous bioluminescent bay, a natural phenomenon created by tiny organisms that glow as a protective mechanism -- the better for predators to see other game.

It was so dark on this evening, we kayakers could hardly see our hands holding the oars. A scuffling in the dense bushes startled us. We heard a snort (a wild pig?) and brushed up against something hanging from a tree (a python?). A fish jumped in the water (a piranha?). And then a big crash as we butted up against a fellow kayaker -- who was not amused as we laughed uncontrollably from relief, fear and exhaustion.

We were approaching La Parguera Bay. We could tell by the glowing water that was beginning to dance off our oars.

We were encouraged to play with the water, letting it drip in sparkly puddles in our kayaks and over our bodies.

This was not the Puerto Rico that I knew, the island where I have in the past explored my inner beach gal with windsurfing, snorkeling, sailing, sunning and sipping tropical drinks. But then on this trip, I wanted to see more.

There are 365 beaches in Puerto Rico, or as they say here, one for each day of the year. These are complemented by near perfect weather that swings between 70 and 80 degrees year-round. So the place is a perfect beach destination.

The island also has some of the hottest surfing spots in the Caribbean (particularly in Rincon, site of many world-class surfing competitions). And there are stunning ocean-front golf courses -- including in Dorado.

But the landscape actually ranges from beaches and coral reefs to canyons, caverns, rivers and rain forest. Among the places outdoor types will want to visit is El Yunque, the only tropical rain forest in the United States, located about 45 minutes by car from San Juan. The preserve is protected by the U.S. Forest Service and has 24 miles of hiking trails with waterfalls, birds including parrots and hundreds of species of ferns, trees and flowers.

Puerto Rico is also a history-lover's delight. Old San Juan, surrounded by San Juan Bay on one side, the Atlantic Ocean on the other, is one of the oldest cities in the Caribbean. The walled city has narrow cobblestone streets filled with colorful 16th- and 17th-century buildings and shaded squares, surrounded by four fortresses from the Spanish colonial era.

Outdoor enthusiasts will enjoy kayaking in Puerto Rico.

I headed to the must-see spot, Fort San Felipe del Morro -- also known as El Morro -- which dates to 1539 (it was completed in 1783) and was part of a large defense system constructed by the Spaniards. The structure survived countless attacks including from Sir Francis Drake in 1595 and the Dutch fleet in 1625, and it was fired on by American ships in 1898 during the Spanish-American War.

The fort is the real deal, and exploring you can imagine voices coming out of the dungeon-like rooms. Even on the hottest day, the stone fortress feels chilly.

History buffs will also want to take a guided tour of the El Capitolio de Puerto Rico (the Capitol Building), located just outside the walls of Old San Juan. Built in 1929, the three-story domed building houses the original draft of the constitution of Puerto Rico, and the building's neoclassical architecture and art is luscious. The interior is ringed with pink marble columns and staircases, ceiling frescoes, Venetian mosaics and historical paintings by Puerto Rican artists. (Tours are by appointment only; call 787-724-7171.)

Popular nighttime activities in Puerto Rico include gambling. In fact, Puerto Rico's casinos are highly rated among Caribbean gaming destinations.

My companions and I checked out the San Juan Marriott Resort & Stellaris Casino. It was crowded on a weekday night.

The Marriott's big, nonsmoking casino has 470 slot machines, 26 table games, the largest progressive jackpot in Puerto Rican history (over $1.2 million) and the widest variety of penny slot machines on the island.

The casino has a buzz of the good kind. I broke even here and treated myself to a dress at a surprisingly hip boutique, Piada, across the street from the hotel.

In my new duds, like the organisms in La Parguera, I felt luminescent.

Food, Nightlife and Shopping

Old San Juan serves up history side by side with trendy shops, bistros, nightclubs and funky restaurants. You can tuck into a local place for beans and rice or check out some of the hipper dining venues like the Parrot Club (Calle Fortaleza 363) for new interpretations of Latin Caribbean dishes including ceviche (marinated raw fish) in various forms; the place also serves good martinis. Across the street, Aquaviva (Calle Fortaleza 364) and Dragonfly (which shares the same address) are also both stylish spots serving Nuevo Latin cuisine.

Get into the late-night spirit in San Juan -- and nights here are long -- at places like Club Brava, a popular dance club in the El San Juan Hotel & Casino (Castillo del Mar).

IF YOU go...

Staying there: The San Juan Marriott Resort & Stellaris Casino (800-866-7827; www.marriott.com) is located on Condado Beach, set apart from the crowd of beachfront hotels in a quieter, more low-key area. The newly renovated 525-room resort has indulgences for everyone including two pools, three restaurants, the 24-hour casino, a fitness center and spa. The lobby lounge is a favorite with locals with its live entertainment, dancing and lively bar scene. Summer rates from $219 per night.

LIFE AT CHS

CHRISTINE KENT

If people haven't had the beloved English teacher and soon to be retired Mrs. Berman, then this oh so prominent word for getting choked up or emotional is not as entertaining!

Next Wednesday is the final day of high school for the seniors.... which means no more pencils, no more books, no more teacher's dirty looks. Actually, that phrase does not apply at all, as most of the graduates will be moving on to greener pastures as they start from the bottom once again as freshman in college. Too bad, I was just getting used to being a "top dog." Living up to their status, the seniors dominated the clothing drive that recently ended, thus winning an always-delicious Atlantic Bagel Breakfast.

Actually, the true top dogs are the state qualifying teams like the Girls Tennis team, who consistently make the grade. However, the most impressive victories this season belong to the batting boys in blue. Yes, that's right the varsity baseball team. For 45 years, the league title has escaped them but this time the team's chances are looking good, having already made tournament for the first time in 9 years! The Doonan brothers lead the hitting while pitchers Brian Hill, Dave Snowdale, and Sam DeGiacomo successfully take the mound. Good Luck guys!

I have kept my readers on the edge of their seats long enough! The mysterious future Life at CHS writer will now finally be unveiled.... DRUM ROLL PLEASE. Next year's senior replacement will be none other than musician and songbird, Lauren Mack. No doubt, her sweet sound and originality will be prevalent in her writing. With a knack for creative writing (she even writes her own songs), it's safe to say that the readers of this column will be in excellent hands. So, prepare to be entertained and well informed about Life at CHS.

Now for this week's top stories:

- Monday: The last Monday for the graduates of '08!
- Tuesday: The Girls Varsity and JV lacrosse players took the long journey to Bishop Feehan where they dominated the field!
- Wednesday: The MCAS Math Test for Grades 6,7,8, and 10.
- Thursday: Who needed the art museum when there was the Cohasset High School Arts Night? The arrays of interesting and stylish pieces were far more intriguing than any Monet.
- Friday: The Big Playoff game for the Boys Baseball team. Support the guys on their home field as they play against Carver in a playoff game at 3:30. Hopefully, most people will have read this before the exciting competition commences!

With everything else said, I would like to thank everyone who supported me in writing this column and appreciated the thought that was put in weekly.... I would also like to thank the academy! Totally bad joke, but it was just too tempting. On a serious note, thank you Mary Ford, Mrs. Berman, and my mom and dad for their guidance. This was an awesome opportunity and a great learning experience as I move on to university to major in communications. All right, I guess it's time I put away my pencil and move on; it was fun while it lasted! Good luck Lauren, you will do an amazing job. Kids, remember to make good choices and drink chocolate milk! Take care everyone.

Bible Study series continues on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. on Practical Christianity. Some Christians commonly view the Old Testament as a storybook-full of fascinating tales, yet ancient and irrelevant to modern reality. This exceptional 10-week study from Insight For Living with Chuck Swindoll will help you blow the dust off these timeworn chronicles and discover enduring truths that relate directly to you, while translating into reliable patterns for godly living. Experience familiar passages as never before, and find fresh inspiration in the memorable scenes revisited. Follow the examples of faithful Old Testament heroes such as Abraham, Joseph, David, and many others as you learn to apply timeless biblical principles to your everyday life. Please join us.

Our mission statement is: "Equipping God's people for living out the Good News to be the hands, feet, voice and heart of Christ in our community and in the world." How should we accomplish this? Come hear sermons to find out.

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
MAY 19, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Although you might prefer moving forward at a steady pace, it might be a good idea to stop and reassess your plans. You could find a good reason to make a change at this time.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Just when you thought you had everything planned to the smallest detail, you get some news that could unsettle things. But a timely explanation helps put it all back on track.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Home and work continue to compete for your attention. But you handle it well by giving each its proper due. Someone you trust offers valuable advice. Listen to it.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Unsettling news creates a difficult but not impossible situation. Continue to follow your planned routine, but keep your mind open to a possible change down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Lick your wounded pride if you like, but it's a better idea to find out why your suggestions were rejected. What you learn could help you deal with an upcoming situation.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Feeling a bit listless? No wonder. You might be pushing too hard to finish everything on your to-do list. Cutting it down could help get your energy levels up.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Taking time out of your busy schedule might be the best way to handle that sensitive private matter. It will help reassure everyone involved about your priorities.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Insist on full disclosure by all parties before agreeing to be part of a "great deal." What you learn should help you decide whether to go with it or not.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your decision to protect the secret that was entrusted to you might irk some people. But it also wins you the admiration of those who value trust and loyalty.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Creative activities take on a practical approach as you realize you might be able to market your work. Ask for advice from someone experienced in this area.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) If you're suddenly a bit unsure about your decision, ask trusted colleagues and/or friends or family members for suggestions that could help resolve your doubts.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A workplace situation could get stormy. But stay on course until there's a solution that meets with everyone's approval, and things can finally calm down.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

'The History Boys' comes to Boston

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Jared Craig had to look no further than his own history in Middleboro for help understanding Scripps, the high-school boy he is playing in the current SpeakEasy Stage Company mounting of "The History Boys," the Alan Bennett comedy-drama about the struggle for young minds between two teachers at a British high school in 1984.

"In a way, I can really relate to this story," explained Craig, a 2003 graduate of Middleboro High School by cell phone from a bench along Boston's Newbury Street last week. "I had an acting teacher, Timothy Sullivan, at BurtWood School of Performing Arts in Middleboro, who taught me a great deal and made the whole idea of theater as a profession seem real to me. Before I started taking classes with Tim, I didn't even know you could get a degree in it. And it was Tim who helped me apply to college. Tim made it all seem possible."

In the 2006 Tony Award winner for Best Play – which was made into a feature film with the original Broadway cast that same year – being directed in Boston by Elliot Norton Award-winner Scott Edmiston, two teachers take differing approaches with a class of eight boys. The more senior lecturer, Hector, uses unorthodox but often-effective teaching methods. Hector also regularly takes his young charges for rides on his motorcycle during which he engages in unwelcome groping. Irwin's teaching-to-the-test tack also gets the students' attention, however, especially when it earns them admittance to Oxford and Cambridge Universities.

Middleboro native Jared Craig.

"This play takes place at an important turning point in these boys' lives. They'll look back on these events as having made them who they are. And the people behind these events are teachers. The fact that their relationship with one teacher goes beyond what's acceptable speaks to the respect they have for him, and the almost hypnotic power he has over them."

Since he developed his own interest in theater, Craig – a 2007 graduate of Boston University, with a Bachelor of Fine Arts in acting, who also spent a semester abroad at the London Academy of Music and Dramatic Arts – has closely followed the work of one particular Tony- and two-time Academy Award-winning actor with whom he once took a Master Class.

"My favorite actor, without question, is Kevin Spacey. I have been following his career since I was a freshman in high school. In our Advanced Performance class at BurtWood when we were asked to write about our favorite actors, I wrote about Kevin Spacey," Craig recalled. "When he was in Boston shooting the film '21' last spring, the production company couldn't get access to a lot of buildings at MIT, where the story takes place. The producers were in a bind so they contacted BU and were given access to certain buildings and facilities in exchange for Spacey's agreeing to teach an acting class. It was literally one of the coolest experiences of my life. We had about two hours with him during which he talked about his career and then let us do monologues for him. I did one from 'Uncle Vanya.' Spacey took a seat in the front row and jotted down notes while I performed which he later read in front of the entire class. I will never forget hearing Kevin Spacey tell me I had done 'great work.' By that point, I had spent nine years of my life watching this man act and here he was in the same room with me watching me act. And he thought my acting was good. It was a mind-blowing experience to have the person I emulate on so many levels pay me that kind of compliment about work that I care very deeply about. The experience was quite literally a dream come true, and I told him so."

Craig's budding acting career has included roles with the area's two regional theaters. For his role as Lucius, a young deaf boy, in an American Repertory Theatre production of "Julius Caesar," Craig studied sign language with his mother, Theresa Craig, who serves as curriculum coordinator for the Middleboro Public School System. Craig was also an understudy in the recent Huntington Theatre Company productions of "The Cherry Orchard," starring Kate Burton and directed by Nicholas Martin, and "Streamers," directed by Scott Ellis. Currently, Craig is the Faye Stone Artistic Intern at the Huntington. Although he now lives in Brighton, Craig will be closer to home this summer when he spends his sixth straight year as a proctor at Bridgewater State College's Project Contemporary Competitiveness, an advanced studies program for high school freshmen and sophomores.

"It is an amazing program that really transforms the students' lives in the course of just six weeks. For me, it is the best job in the world and I'm very proud to be back again this year," said the 23-year-old, who acknowledges that his current acting role has allowed him to see the merit in varying teaching styles. "Five minutes from now, I may change my mind, but I have to say I would probably ascribe to Irwin's theory in 'The History Boys.' What is the point of having all this education if it doesn't lead somewhere?"

The SpeakEasy Stage Company production of "The History Boys" will be at the Nancy & Edward Roberts Studio Theatre in the Stanford Calderwood Pavilion at the Boston Center for the Arts, 527 Tremont Street, Boston, through June 7. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 617-933-8600 or go online at SpeakEasyStage.com.

Cohasset's Memorial Day Parade led by Cmdr. Michael Fichtner (USN, retired), who grew up in town, makes its way along North Main Street on Monday.

Memorial Day brings families together

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Family.

In a word, that sums up Cohasset's traditional Memorial Day Observances.

From the keynote speaker, Cmdr. Michael Fichtner (USN, retired), who recalled marching in the parade as a boy with his Dad – to Gold Star Mother, June Simeone, who was assisted by Airman Joanna Hamilton, in placing a wreath on the war memorial at the harbor, Cohasset's observance displayed what makes the town so unique.

A "small town" in the true Norman Rockwell-sense, Cohasset brings families together each May to honor and reflect on the sacrifice that so many of the town's young people have made over the generations serving in the nation's wars.

Simeone's son, Craig M. Simeone, was one of eight Cohasset men killed in Vietnam.

Hamilton's father, Joe Hamilton, who annually reads the WWI poem "In Flanders Field," talked about his pride in marching in the parade over the years first with sons, Sgt. Ed Hamilton and Cpt. Andrew Hamilton – and now, with daughter Joanna, an Airman First Class.

Fichtner said his earliest memories of the parade are of his father marching in his Navy uniform, the bands playing and people waving the flag.

No discharge zone granted

Boats will have to be pumped shore-side

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Memorial Day is the unofficial start of summer and the boating season. Fittingly enough, just as the harbor begins to fill with boats, Cohasset Harbor and its outer waters have been officially declared a no discharge area. That means all overboard discharge of all boat sewage, even if treated, is prohibited. In a no discharge area, vessel sewage must be discharged to a shore-side or mobile pumpout facility.

Last Friday, May 23, the federal Environmental Protection Agency published the waters off Cohasset, Marshfield and Scituate as a no discharge area, or NDA.

This result is after a year and a half process that began with the Harbor Health Committee in December 2006. The committee teamed up with similar organizations in Marshfield and Scituate to instate a regional No Discharge Zone for the body of water off the town's shores and the tidal waters of the North and South Rivers.

The Cohasset-Scituate-Marshfield NDA joins a growing number of Massachusetts's coastal waters with the designation. The coastal waters off Plymouth, Kingston, Duxbury, Nantucket Sound as well as all of Buzzards Bay already have the federal NDA designation.

"As exciting as receiving the NDA designation for Cohasset is, it is truly exciting to be a part of the growing commitment by Massachusetts communities to the protection of our coastal waters."
— Karen Quigley

Other communities, from Hull to Cape Ann, are pursuing an NDA designation. The Coastal Zone Management has an aggressive goal to have all Massachusetts water declared an NDA by 2009. Boston Harbor, Cape Cod Bay and Salem Sound have proposed NDA designations for their waters.

Last week, an application for a NDA in Cape Cod Bay was submitted to the EPA. If accepted, the 600-square mile region from Provincetown to

Flood of solutions

Workshop focused on Jacob's Meadow

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Flooding is a big problem in Cohasset. It's a problem that pervades property and residences throughout town. In a town where ledge dominates the terrain and increased development (and the impervious surface that goes along with it), the town's flooding troubles have been exacerbated over the years.

To this point, the town has always approached the problem one piece at time, sometimes inadvertently causing more flooding problems elsewhere. Currently, the town is taking a comprehensive approach to the persistent flooding in pockets spread about town with the flood control master plan.

The James Brook/Jacob's Meadow watershed covers over 860 acres of town is one of sections of town suffering the most from flooding issues. With the complexity of the problem, the solution will not be simple.

With the flood control master plan in the draft stage, the engineering firm putting together the plan — Coughlin Environmental Services — held a public workshop just on James Brook/Jacob's Meadow last Thursday. About 30 residents attended the workshop session.

Coughlin Environmental Services proposed several tools the town could implement to begin to alleviate the problem from detention basins to raingardens to a stormwater pumping station.

Each suggestion has its own pros and cons and to implement all the suggested items will cost the town over $4 million according to initial estimates.

"Getting a preliminary analysis of the James Brook watershed was a first priority for the town," said Dan Coughlin, principal engineer for Coughlin Environmental Service. With much of the preliminary analysis and draft recommendations prepared Coughlin gave a close to two-hour presentation along with visuals in a power point slideshow.

Over the past few years, residents have reported increasing frequency and severity of flooding particularly in Jacob's Meadow and the Elm Street homes that abut the meadow.

Coughlin said there are records of flooding occurring in the area that go back over 75 years, "upgrades and improvements (to flood control mitigation) hasn't kept up with development."

The James Brook watershed begins at

COURTESY PHOTO/JERI HERMAN

Mary Gainor is a volunteer receptionist at the Senior Center on Tuesdays and she helps edit their monthly newsletter. In May, the Mariner is celebrating Older Americans Month with the Council on Elder Affairs by highlighting senior citizens.

Name: Mary Gainor.

Former occupation: Professor of English at University of Massachusetts.

Best day of your life or most memorable moment: One occurred when my husband and I attended a ceremony at which our son received an award as the most distinguished alumnus of the University of Pittsburgh School of Pharmacy. A second occurred when we were attending a lecture given by our daughter at a theater in New York, where she was discussing the historical background of a period play the theater was presenting. As we mingled with the audience leaving the theater, I heard a woman exclaim about our daughter's talk, "She has all that knowledge, and she's so beautiful I could eat her up!"

Favorite song: "Greensleeves."

What does Cohasset Elder Affairs mean to you?: This organization impresses me tremendously because of the many services it offers to elders in the community. The Director, Linda Elworthy, the Outreach Coordinator, Carol Barrett, the Coordinator of Volunteer Services, Martha Horsefield, and the Coordinator of Medical Transport and Programs, Trudy Salerno, all have such remarkable sensitivity to and sympathy for the needs of the elderly that they make everyone comfortable in receiving the help they offer.

Best part of Cohasset: Its scenic beauty is superb, and the community spirit pervading the town matches its physical beauty.

If you knew what you know now: I would have chosen a risky path with an uncertain future rather than a safer path with a predictable outcome.

What have you learned in your life that you would like to share with others? Do not be fearful of doing what you most aspire to do.

What is your motto? Do your very best at anything you undertake.

Volunteers needed for Triathlon

The second annual Cohasset Triathlon needs help to get the race off without a hitch. The race is set for Sunday, June 29. Volunteers are needed to help with water stations along the route, registration check-in, kayakers for water safety, road closings, post-race party set-up and clean-up. Every volunteer will receive a Nike dry-weave shirt as a thank you. Please contact volunteer coordinator Kari O'Donnell at 781-383-1108 or kariod@comcast.net if interested.

Blood drive scheduled in Cohasset

American Red Cross and the Cohasset community will sponsor a blood drive from 1 to 7 p.m., on Friday, June 6, at St. Anthony's Parish Hall, 10 Summer St.

All community members who are at least 17 years of age, weigh at least 110 pounds, are in generally good health, have not received a tattoo or piercing in the past year and who have not donated whole blood within the last 56 days are eligible to donate blood.

To make an appointment, call 800-448-3543 or visit the Web site at givelife.org.

New traffic pattern at Music Circus

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Nothing defines summer in Cohasset more than the South Shore Music Circus.

The entertainment it provides coupled with the pristine setting have been ingrained in the town's character for more than 50 years.

However, most would agree that exiting the Music Circus when hundreds of cars are funneled out the parking lot following a show requires patience, concentration and yes, nerves of steel.

While the funneling issue will remain – the traffic pattern on Sohier Street will change this summer now that the train is up and running.

Police Chief James Hussey explained that cars will no longer exit eastbound on Sohier Street toward the tracks because an evening train is scheduled to run about 10 minutes after the end of the shows.

"Our goal is to move traffic as quickly and safely as possible."

— Chief James Hussey

In the past, cars have been directed both east- and westbound on Sohier Street. Hussey said even without the train, this presented problems.

"Some of those who went east eventually found their way back to 3A," Hussey said about out-of-towners. "Sometimes they got lost."

Hussey said after meeting with officials at the Music Circus, it was decided in the interest of public safety not to move cars toward the tracks.

Police will make Sohier Street one-way following the shows and use both lanes to exit the cars toward 3A.

"All traffic from the Music Circus will move toward 3A where they can pull onto the highway in either direction."

Hussey said detail officers would control traffic both on Sohier Street at the Music Circus and on 3A. There would also be cones at Fairoaks Lane alerting those residents about the one-way pattern and not to make a left onto Sohier.

The one-way pattern is expected to last about 15 minutes. Officers will be in radio communication, he said.

"Our goal is to move traffic as quickly and safely as possible," Hussey said.

Hussey said it has been the practice for four or five detail officers to be assigned to Music Circus shows. That will not change but the officers may be deployed differently at the conclusion of the show. The Music Circus covers the cost of the detail officers. The new traffic pattern is not going to add any cost to the police department, he said.

Register of Deeds to provide local office hours

The Register will have information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act as well as an Internet computer and printer that can be used to confirm the status of a mortgage discharge, print out a deed or demonstrate how the Registry's Web site works.

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell will host scheduled office hours in Town Hall, Room 2B, 41 Highland Ave., Cohasset, from 10 a.m. to noon, on Wednesday, June 18. The Register and his staff will be on hand to answer questions or concerns about any Registry of Deeds matter. The Register will have information about the Massachusetts Homestead Act as well as an Internet computer and printer that can be used to confirm the status of a mortgage discharge, print out a deed or demonstrate how the Registry's Web site works. No appointment is necessary.

This is a community outreach program sponsored by O'Donnell to make it convenient for residents who may have a Registry question, an interest in understanding the recording process or difficulty traveling to the Registry building in Dedham. Although Registry staff cannot provide legal advice, they can provide answers to basic questions, give general information, provide Homestead Declaration forms or confirm that a document has been recorded.

The Registry of Deeds, 649 High St., Dedham, is the principal office for real property in Norfolk County. The Registry is the basic resource for homeowners, title examiners, mortgage lenders, municipalities and others with a need for secure, accurate, accessible land record information. Hundreds of thousands of Registry land records back to 1793 are already available for online viewing. The Registry's online index is available from 1956 forward and continues to expand to include earlier records. The Registry of Deeds can be contacted via telephone at 781-461-6101, or on the Internet at norfolkdeeds.org.

Police Beat

Cohasset police encourage buckling up

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

The advice is basic: wearing a seat belt saves lives. Yet more than 30 percent of Massachusetts drivers still fail to buckle up. In their continued effort to increase seat belt use, the Cohasset Police Department joins more than 240 other Massachusetts police departments and the Massachusetts State Police in support of the spring 2008 Click It or Ticket Mobilization. This statewide effort will take place through June 4 and combines extra traffic enforcement, public information and community outreach to reduce motor vehicle-related fatalities, injuries and economic loss.

For the Click It or Ticket Mobilization, the Executive Office of Public Safety and Security has provided $1.3 million in federal highway safety funds.

"This Click It or Ticket Mobilization is an opportunity for all of us to remember the importance of buckling up," said Chief James Hussey. "Statistics have proven time and time again that seat belts save lives."

Hussey said often when serious injury or death occurs in an accident, the victims were not wearing seatbelts.

"Motorists should always buckle up," he said. "Parents should encourage their children to do the same."

Since its first Click It or Ticket Mobilization in 2002, Massachusetts has seen its seat belt use increase 18 percent to a record high of 69 percent in 2007. However, Massachusetts still lags behind the 2007 national seat belt use rate of 82 percent.

During this mobilization, Massachusetts State Police and local police departments will strive to encourage voluntary seat belt compliance across the Commonwealth. For more information, go to the Web site at mass.gov/highwaysafety.

MV crash

A 26-year-old Cohasset woman is facing drunk driving charges following an accident at 11:50 p.m. on Saturday. Police said the woman, who was driving a 2000 Jeep Cherokee southbound on Route 3A near Sohier Street, rear-ended a 2005 Lincoln SUV driven by an 18-year-old Cohasset man.

The collision caused her Jeep to go into a spin and take out a telephone pole in the southbound lane across from Mobil Mart.

The pole snapped in two. Both vehicles had to be towed.

The woman, who exhibited signs of intoxication at the scene, was arrested and transported to South Shore Hospital. She was charged with OUI (alcohol), negligent operation, marked lanes violation and following too closely on a state highway.

Police had to shut down the northbound lane of Route 3A following the accident and rerouted traffic down Sohier Street.

Intoxicated

A 72-year-old Cohasset woman was driven home and released into the custody of her husband following calls about erratic driving at about 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Police said the woman was driving a 1998 Volvo. Police found the car unoccupied in the parking lot of a Route 3A business. In talking to the woman, they could smell alcohol. However, police could not prove that she had been driving and the caller did not leave his name.

Warrant

A Scituate man was arrested on Wednesday (May 21) after further investigation revealed he had an outstanding default warrant out of Milton for possession of Class A & D drugs.

Police put out a BOLO for the 37-year-old after the warrant was confirmed.

Earlier that day police said the man left his girlfriend and her dog stranded outside Walgreens. She called police, who gave her a ride home.

Night deposit

Detectives are investigating the apparent theft of a night deposit at a local sandwich shop of more than $900.

The incident was reported on Thursday (May 22) when the manager opened up and discovered the money was missing from the safe.

The corporate owners of the restaurant have been notified. Employees have been interviewed, police said.

The matter has been turned over to detectives.

Minors

The harbormaster contacted police last Friday around 8 p.m. after seeing some alcohol change hands among young adults, police said.

She provided a description of a couple of cars and a police officer recognized one of the vehicle descriptions.

Police went to a home on Hull Street to investigate but were unable to locate anyone.

A & B charges

A 19-year-old Cohasset man is charged with two counts of assault and battery, disorderly conduct, and malicious destruction of property (eyeglasses) following a domestic violence incident last week.

Police restrained the teen after being called to the home. The teen twisted his ankle during a struggle with family members.

Weymouth request

On Saturday, Cohasset police went to a local restaurant on the request of Weymouth police to locate an employee who, Weymouth PD said, was wanted on a warrant and for other crimes. The individual had left work early and was not at the location.

Quigley wants to set goals

Selectmen to hold future planning meeting

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The newest Selectman, Karen Quigley, is anxious to give her input on where the efforts of the town's highest ruling board should be focused on.

At the May 19 meeting Quigley requested, for the second time, the Board set a date to have a discussion on town planning and goal setting for both the Board and the town as a whole. Quigley said she had recently spoken to selectmen in both Hingham and Hull who told her they regularly talk about the town's goals.

"My goal in bringing this up was to introduce some of my own goals and respond to comments from residents I've received," said Quigley, adding in the past the tendency of the town is to be reactive and would like to see the Selectmen take a more proactive role.

She suggested an evening meeting be held separate from the Selectmen's normal Monday night meetings for the discussion, adding a facilitator might be helpful to keep the discussion on target.

Second-term Selectman Ralph Dormitzer said fairly recently the Board had created an extensive list of goals and initiatives.

"I think we should see what's on the list and see what has been accomplished," said Dormitzer. When reached this week, Dormitzer said the list he spoke of at the meeting was drafted in late 2006. The last time he had revised his copy was April 2007.

The document covers a wide breadth of Selectmen initiatives from collective bargaining strategies to department organization/structure to financial/budget issues to keeping tabs on Selectmen-appointed committees to new initiatives like energy conservation in schools, additional sport fields and grant writing. Each items is designated a group or person in charge and most have a rough deadline, like Special Town Meeting or fourth quarter 2007. Some initiatives have been completed like the allocation of overhead across departments and allocation of legal costs across departments and boards.

Quigley said she had recently spoken to selectmen in both Hingham and Hull who told her they regularly talk about the town's goals.

Quigley said she wasn't aware of the previous Board of Selectmen goals and asked that the Selectmen be provided a copy to review before their next meeting. Regardless of past goal setting, Quigley said she thought a goal setting process in the public eye, where residents can participate, would be a worthwhile.

There was a brief discussion on the most appropriate forum for the goal setting dialogue. Town Manager Bill Griffin said the summer schedule was fairly full with a different town department, or sometimes two departments, coming before the Board at each meeting to offer a snapshot of their work. Griffin suggested it was typical to have a goal-setting meeting in a more informal, workshop environment on a separate night.

"I think people need to come to the meeting having done their homework," said Dormitzer at the meeting. "We want to do things efficiently."

The Board of Selectmen were not ready to make a decision on what approach they would like to take for the meeting. It will be discussed at an upcoming meeting.

"As long as we are still talking about it, it's okay with me," said Quigley.

No discharge zone granted

Marshfield would be the state's largest NDA.

"As exciting as receiving the NDA designation for Cohasset is, it is truly exciting to be a part of the growing commitment by Massachusetts communities to the protection of our coastal waters," said Selectman Karen Quigley, who was chair of the Harbor Health Committee at the time of application. "With our regional designation and the pending applications by North Shore and Cape Cod communities, most of the Massachusetts coast will soon be protected."

The NDA designation is another layer of protection for the water. Under the federal Clean Water Act it's illegal to discharge untreated sewage from a vessel into US waters within three miles of shore. However, boats with certain types of functioning sanitation devices may discharge treated effluent in the coastal waters, harbors and bays, unless an NDA has been established.

The NDA is a step in the right direction for Cohasset, says Quigley, whose harbor has been classified by the Massachusetts Department of Environmental Protection as "impaired water," meaning there is enough pollution in the water to deem it not healthy. Concrete evidence can be found in the Harbor not meeting state water quality standards, beach closures and shellfish bed closures. An NDA is a tool towns can use to protect their waters from increased bacteria in the water.

The town pumpout boat is available to any boater upon request by calling the Harbor Department by phone (781-383-0863) or contacting by VHF radio (channels 10, 16) from 9a.m. to 9p.m. May 1 through Nov. 1.

The process to get an NDA designation is a unique one. Towns are required to request an application from the EPA; the designation is not one that is imposed upon a coastal area. The application is submitted to the Coastal Zone Management

The application had to go through several layers. The town's submitted their application to the state Department of Energy and Environmental Affairs through their office of Coastal Zone Management.

There are 10 pumpout facilities in the area, four fixed shore-based facilities, three portable facilities, and three pumpout boats. In addition, there are two pending pumpout facilities, which should be operational in the summer of 2008.

In its application, Massachusetts provided documentation indicating that the total vessel population is estimated to be 3,000 in the proposed area. It is estimated that 1,363 of the total vessel population may have a Marine Sanitation Device (MSD) of some type. The majority of facilities are connected directly into the local wastewater treatment system.

In 1977, the Department of the Interior designated the North and South Rivers as National Natural Landmarks, and in 1978 the North River received a Protective Order under the state Scenic Rivers Act of 1971.

Wompatuck State Park, the English State Salt Marsh Wildlife Refuge/Management Area, and the Weir River Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC) are all located within the proposed boundaries of the petition. There are approximately eight marinas, five public boat ramps, and over a dozen beaches located within the new No Discharge Area.

Both recreational and commercial shell fishermen use the area. There are ten designated Shellfish Growing Areas representing over 49,500 acres of productive shellfish beds in the area supporting soft shell clams, blue mussels, razor clams, quahogs, bay scallops, oysters, and surf clams. The area supports a commercial and recreational fishing fleet. The proposed area has a variety of rich natural habitats, and supports a wide diversity of species.

Flooding workshop focused on Jacob's Meadow

Sanctuary Pond spreads out to the MBTA right of way and the former Edison plant on North Main and ends at Jacob's Meadow, which flows into the harbor. The biggest issue with the watershed currently is the flooding and property damage in the Jacob's Meadow section. In major storm events, the intense flow of stormwater has caused the wastewater treatment plant, located on Jacob's Meadow to overflow. Upgrades to the plant have been made to mitigate this issue in conjunction with this Little Harbor water and sewer project.

The James Brook watershed includes the most urbanized areas of Cohasset and therefore the most impervious surface, said Coughlin. One of the major aspects contributing to the flooding issues in James Meadow, said Coughlin, is the fact the watershed is severely tidally restricted by tide gates creating a bottleneck situation.

Even if all the flood mitigation projects were implemented because of the tidal restriction, it will be impossible to make the watershed flood free, Coughlin said.

"The key is to lengthen the time it takes for water to drain to Jacob's Meadow," said Coughlin. Instead of having the water rush through the watershed in six hours through the installation of detention basins throughout the 860 acres James Brook watershed make the runoff take 12 hours to get to the Meadow.

Coughlin and his engineers have identified over 70 locations for potential detention basins and best management practices like raingardens, swales and other low impact developments, which (if all of them were created) hold up to three million gallons of water during a severe rain event.

The challenge will be many of the potential locations are on private property, which would require cooperation from the property owner or an eminent domain taking. Increasing the storage availability at Sanctuary Pond and having another large detention area at "the Wiggle," an area just below Sanctuary Pond and "the Pickle" located behind the Paul Pratt library.

By implementing control structures in these areas, the flow of water can be slowed down and regulated out of the basin, to ease the current inundation of water on Jacob's Meadow during a rainstorm, said Coughlin.

The detention basins will slow down the flow of water to the harbor and the raingardens and similar structures will allow more water to recharge the ground.

The large detention basin at the Wiggle's estimated cost is $1.4 million. The other smaller detention basins and raingardens have an estimated cost of $1.1 million.

Tied into the discussion was a related project to re-design the tide gates and re-build the channel near the American Legion parking lot. The channel leading up to the tide gate is currently in disrepair and significantly slows down the flow of water out of the meadow. Resident town engineer Tom Gruber said the preliminary designs for a new tide gate are estimated to increase the flow of water by two to 2.5 times.

The new tide gates would provide two benefits, according to Gruber: flood control by allowing more water to empty from Jacob's Meadow and salt marsh restoration by allowing more salt water into the meadow.

In addition, the dam at Sanctuary Pond is currently in disrepair and needs to be fixed as soon as funds are available, said Coughlin.

Treat's Pond/Atlantic Ave. flood workshop

After Town Meeting the status of the Treat's Pond project was left up in the air. Though voters at Town Meeting resolved to support the project in spirit, they also made it clear it needed more review. Two months later, not much has been talked about publicly concerning the controversial project.

On June 14, a second workshop similar to the one held last week on the James Brook Watershed will be held to primarily discuss the flooding problems surrounding Treat's Pond.

Coughlin Environmental Service will present their preliminary findings and recommendations for the Atlantic Ave./Treat's Pond area on Monday, June 16 at 6:30p.m.

Some residents are calling for a firm answer on the legal status of the drainage easement presently used by the town to maintain Treat's Pond and to control flooding in that area of Atlantic Avenue. Jim Drysdale, a member of the Stormwater Committee, sent a letter to the Board of Selectmen stating without that piece of information the workshop on Treat's Pond.

The town has maintained the drain, often clearing its opening on Sandy Cove after storms to allow Treat's Pond to drain, for over four decades.

"I think this controversy must be resolved before the meeting on June 16 so that we can properly assess potential remedies for the flooding problem," stated Drysdale in his letter.

Peter Whittemore of Elm Court seconded Drysdale's sentiments at the May 12 Board of Selectmen's meeting during the public comment time. He said under a conservation restriction and an easement granted by the Bigelow family in the early 60s the town has the right to maintain the drain.

"It is crucial to understand the town's position on the easement," said Whittemore. Board of Selectmen chairman Ted Carr thanked Whittemore for his comments, but did not respond to their content.

Another proposal is to install a stormwater pump station in the American Legion Post parking lot at a cost of $960,000. The pumping station could pump more than 80,000 gallons per minute and provide the only means of conveying water flow out of Jacob's Meadow at high tide.

"There is no single reason for the flooding situation, there are a lot of factors and because of that there is no magic bullet," said Jason Burtner, South Shore regional coordinator for the state department of Coastal Zone Management. "We need a suite of mitigation options."

After the presentation, several residents asked a few questions to clarify some of the information and suggestions proposed. Some of the priorities Coughlin recommended may change between now and the finalized flood control master plan to be presented to the town by the end of the summer.

"There is no single reason for the flooding situation, there are a lot of factors and because of that there is no magic bullet. We need a suite of mitigation options."

Memorial Day reunion for Fichtner family

AROUND TOWN

JENNIFER PIEPENBRINK

SPRING!

Hello Cohasset and how is everyone this week? The weather is nice, people are out and about all over town, I guess Spring has truly sprung! The Memorial Day Parade on Monday was such a wonderful dedication and honor for all those who have given their time, devotion and lives to our country and the true sense of community was felt by all. As we go into the next few weeks with graduations and ceremonies that are happening all around, we should all be proud of the accomplishments that all have earned. Continue to enjoy the little moments that happen each day as well. Life passes by so quickly that I know I have a hard time stopping to embrace these special moments but I am certainly trying. Easier said than done but please, give it a try. Now, on with the news.

FOR KIDS

If you are looking ahead to Summer and trying to plan a variety of activities for the kiddos along with the beach, pool and cook outs, Cohasset has many options to look at. The Recreation Department has flyers and brochures available in the Foyer of Town Hall and on the website at www.townofcohasset.org, the Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum has weekly camps being held for a variety of ages and can be found at www.ourworldchildrensgdm.org or by calling 781-383-3198 and the South Shore Community Center has programs as well that can be found at the Center and questions can be asked at 781-383-0088. A great summer for all indeed!

GOT TURF?

This weekend the Cohasset Sports Partnership is holding a town-wide estate sale at the Cook Estate to benefit the got turf? fundraising campaign for a new turf field at Alumni Field. The dates are Sat., May 31 and Sunday June 1 from 9-3 p.m. They have a lot of great items for sale including antiques, furniture, rugs, sporting goods, power tools and much more. For more information on this, go to: cohassetsportspartnership.org

PRE-PROM

Anyone who is around tonight should try to get down to the Common around 5:45 as the attendees of this year's High School Class of 2008 come out on the Common in all their finery for the Pre-Prom Red Carpet event! Certainly an evening not to forget!

'JUNGLE BOOK'

Hey everyone, the Jungle Book is coming to town and you are all invited to come and enjoy the show! The Deer Hill Gymnasium is where this fantastic show will be held next Thursday, June 5th and Friday, June 6th at 7 pm and will run approximately 45 minutes to an hour long. Tickets for this show are available in the Deer Hill Office and are also available at the door and they are $8 each. Cash or check are fine with checks being made payable to "Cohasset Drama Workshop. All proceeds from the show will be donated to the school to support Deer Hill Curriculum Enrichment programs for next year. Seating is general and a great time will be had by all.

This is the first year that the Cohasset Drama Workshop was held for children in grades 3-5. Lisa Pratt is the director of this show with Mark Bono as the Music Director and JoJo Fichtner leading the choreography. I am a part of the Jungle as well helping in working with the kids as they sing, dance and work on the dialogue all in a joint effort to put on a show filled with musical and theatrical entertainment for all.

This diorama along with several others is on display at the Cohasset Historical Society, 106 South Main St. It was made and designed by Marion Winsor as part of a historic diorama contest held at the Village Fair circa 1960. Many of the details surrounding this contest have been lost. If any of you remember this contest we would love to hear from you. In the meantime we are holding our own contest to see which diorama today's Cohasset residents think is the best. Our Girl Scouts and Boy Scouts have already cast their votes so please stop by and add your vote to the growing pile! We are open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The Cohasset Historical Society is grateful to those who remember us with donations of Cohasset photographs, textiles and memorabilia. We would like to take this occasion to thank you for your continued generous support.

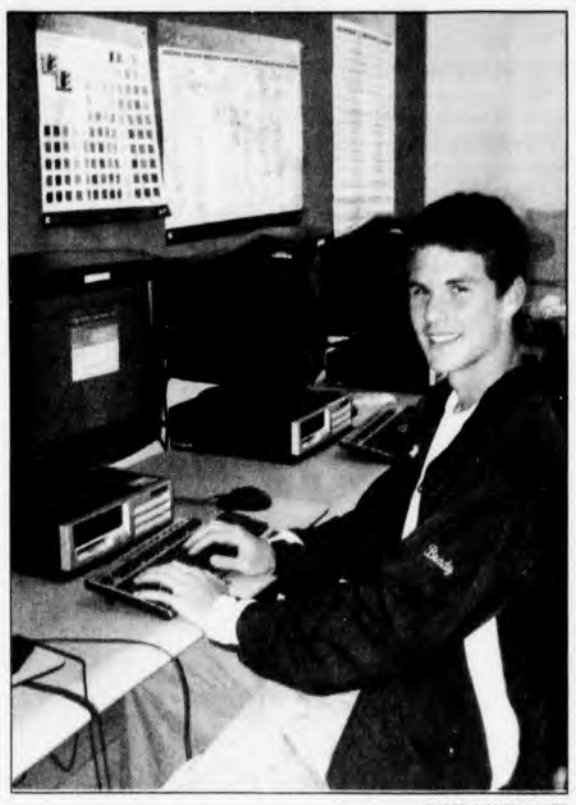
CHS junior wins InvestWrite competition

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Investing in the stock market can be a wild, wooly world if you don't know what you are doing. The chaos of the New York Stock Exchange trading floor can be a visual for the way many people feel about investing in the stock market. Cohasset High junior Dan Brady is trying to do all he can to learn the ins and outs of investments.

To complement his studies, Dan recently was named the first-place winner in the statewide Massachusetts high school InvestWrite competition. He was honored at a reception at the Boston Globe this past week.

InvestWrite, a national writing competition, produced by The Stock Market Game program and sponsored by the Foundation of Investor Education, adds a critical thinking component to help reinforce concepts learned in the classroom.



For his essay, Dan researched two companies: Exxon Mobil and Goldcorp, a gold mining company. They were required to explain how they have tried to increase the dividends to stockholders over the last three years. Then, the students were asked to compare and contrast the companies' stock by explaining the advantages and disadvantages of investing in a growth or income stock. The entries had to pick which kind of stock they would have chosen.

The body of the essay could be no more than 700 words.

When his teacher announced someone in the class was a finalist in the contest, his class including himself pointed to someone else in the class as the winner.

"I was really surprised I won," says Dan. Ms. Laura Guiliano and Mrs. Karen Gibbs chose the five best entries to enter into the competition, a per class limit set by InvestWrite.

Leading up to the essay assignment, students in Principles of Finance had been tracking their faux $25,000 investments in each of four different companies. Both Goldcorp and Exxon-Mobil were two of Dan's companies in that portion of the class. In fact, Dan has real money in real stock in Exxon-Mobil. Through his faux investments, Dan has earned over $8000 in just a few months.

Cohasset High School junior Dan Brady recently was awarded first place in the statewide high school InvestWrite competition. Two courses in finance — Principles of Finance and a Virtual High School course, Investing in the Stock Market—have piqued his interest in the field.

In addition to the Principles in Finance class, Dan also took advantage of a Virtual High School course —Investing in the Stock Market. He names the class as his favorite of the year.

Although not sure what route his career path may take, Dan is hopeful to attend Bentley College and do something in business or finance once he graduates.

According to the Invest Write website, the competition offers students a chance to think critically and learn subject matter that easily answers the common question, "How can I use this in the real world?" Along with math, economics, language arts and other disciplines wrapped within the program, the premise of earning and investing money speaks clearly to all ages. Students in grades four to 12 can enter the competition.

Collection to benefit service personnel

The list, for both men and women, include: underwear, bras, socks, flip-flops, shirts, pants, belts, toothbrushes, toothpaste and deodorant.

Members of First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church in Cohasset have recently learned that military personnel seriously injured in Iraq are airlifted to the Balad Air Base Hospital where they are triaged and stabilized before being sent to Germany and then eventually home. These men and women are picked up from the field without any personal items or civilian clothing. Flight doctors say these soldiers really want to travel and arrive home wearing their own clothing, not military fatigues or hospital pajamas. Church members have been asked if they could supply clothes and personal items that would be distributed to these men and women, injured in the service to the country. Help from the community is being asked to collect clothing to help meet these needs.

The list, for both men and women, include: underwear, bras, socks, flip-flops, shirts, pants, belts, toothbrushes, toothpaste and deodorant.

The clothing should be new, basic and comfortable, and in all sizes. Think loose, cargo-style pants and polo-type shirts. Both winter and summer clothes are needed.

There will be a collection center in the Parish House of First Parish in Cohasset, 23 North Main St., for any items people might want to drop off to help with this effort.

Checks to help with shipping would also be appreciated. Make checks out to First Parish in Cohasset and note Balad Hospital.

"Forty-one years ago, at the age of 7, my parents took me to the Cohasset paper store and bought me some red, white and blue streamers, which I promptly covered my bike in so I could ride along in the parade as well," he said in his address.

"...in 1983, for the first time, I marched in the ranks beside my father, and among the other veterans as a newly commissioned Navy Ensign. It was a proud day for my father and I."

Thomas and Deirdre Wigmore both spoke about their pride in helping to put together this year's observances.

Deirdre, who is president of the Women's Auxiliary at the George H. Mealy American Legion Post, talked about her father's service in World War II and Korea, and her pride in serving as president of the Auxiliary and its work in the community.

Tom, commander of the Cohasset chapter of the Sons of the American Legion, beamed with pride about his Dad, George H. Mealy Post 118 Commander Steve Wigmore, who marched in his 50th parade on Monday. Steve, a Navy veteran, who has helped orchestrate the parade and other Memorial Day activities for 30 years, was presented with a commemorative flag flown recently on the super-carrier, the USS Nimitz during Monday's ceremony.

Firefighter James Fiori stands at attention during the observances at Woodside Cemetery.

Soldiers and Marines arrive at Cohasset Harbor.

In his welcoming remarks, Steve Wigmore joked that high gas prices may have been the reason behind the huge crowd of spectators this year. He asked for and received a rousing round of applause for the veterans, most of whom were in their military uniforms. "Every year, they don't get older – they just get better and better," Steve quipped.

Fichtner asked the audience not to forget those from Cohasset who paid the ultimate price.

"I travel all over the United States through small towns and large cities and no where is there so much dedication and unselfish effort put forth to honor a town's veterans as here in Cohasset.

"I encourage you to read the names on the wall behind me. You will recognize them. Many of their families still live here. Cogill, Keating, Lyon, Parker, Reardon Simeone and Todd. Without their sacrifice and the sacrifice of thousands more America and Cohasset would surely be a different place."

Laugelle said the event always makes him proud of being from Cohasset. He praised the young veterans who are now part of the parade. "They are doing a great job," he said about their service.

Mike Norton was showing the Veterans Honor Roll to his young son, Luke, before the parade arrived at the harbor.

Norton helped his friend Brendan St. John build the honor roll, which was dedicated on Veterans Day in 2006.

"It is nice to see people checking it out," Norton said. He said it was gratifying to see people stopping by the honor roll not only on Memorial Day, but "all year long."

Paul Rooney, deacon at St. Anthony's, said he attends the Memorial Day observances every year. He said the honor roll "overtakes you."

He noted that three brothers, Brian, Daniel and Tim Curran, who names are on the honor roll, all served in the Gulf War at the same time. They all returned safely but it was agonizing for their mother, he said.

Also the Mahoney brothers of Cohasset, Christopher, Francis (Frank), Philip served in Gulf War.

"I say a prayer for all those in uniform," Rooney said.

'A day that celebrates life and remembrance'

By Cmdr. Michael Fichtner (USN, retired)

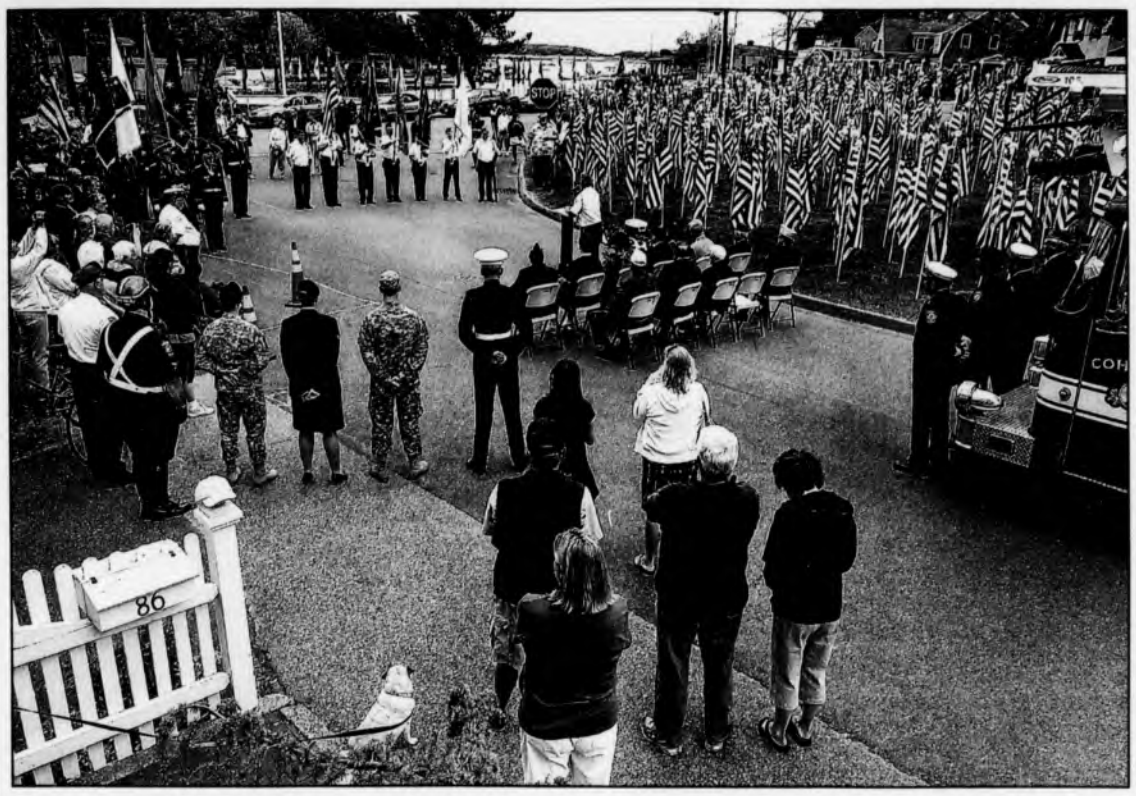
Veterans, members of the George H. Mealy Post, honored guests, ladies and gentlemen, thank you for having me here today.

Wow! This is a completely different perspective from where I usually stand during this annual remembrance. I am much more comfortable standing in the ranks, with the people I am most at ease with, my fellow veterans. But here I am, standing at this podium, in this place of honor wondering why it was bestowed upon me and hoping I can do it justice. I find myself between the two groups of people I admire the most in life. Those men and women standing before me who answered their countries call to duty, and those listed on the wall behind me who have answered that call and given the ultimate sacrifice for it.

Growing up in Cohasset, I guess like many people I took it for granted. I was too close to it, too involved, too young to realize what a special place Cohasset is. I thought most towns were like Cohasset, everyone knew each other, you could ride your bike from one end of it to the other, and all high schools included grades 7 through 12. Some kids dads worked for the town, some worked in Boston, and some had a lobster boat and fished for a living. If you got yourself into trouble, the police would take you home to your parents where they would surely provide a more hostile environment than a night spent in the cell at the police station. At high tide, Bassing's Beach or Little Harbor was the perfect place to water ski. When summer turned to fall, you could make some extra money raking leaves and the Common was the perfect place for a pickup football game after school. When the snow fell, you exchanged your rake for a shovel and football gave way to a pickup hockey game on Lily Pond. As winter gave way to spring, plans for jumping off the Border Street Bridge and going swimming before Memorial Day, were urgently being developed. To me, one of Cohasset's most endearing and unique qualities is that very little has changed here.



My earliest memories of this parade are of my father marching in his Navy uniform, the bands playing, and people waving the flag. Forty-one years ago at the age of 7 my parents took me to the Cohasset paper store and bought me some red white and blue streamers which I promptly covered my bike in so I could ride along in the parade as well. The Cohasset paper store is still here, it has moved from its original location, but it's still on Main Street. When I was old enough I marched with the Deer Hill School band and then the high school band. The Cohasset High School band once again marched with us today. In 1983, for the first time I marched in the ranks beside my father and among the other veterans as a newly commissioned Navy Ensign. It was a proud day for both my father and I. Over the next 15 years, until his death in 1998, we marched together whenever I was home from deployment. I never felt closer to my father than during those Memorial Day parades. Fathers and sons marching together in this parade is a familiar scene. It's part of what makes it special, what makes it Cohasset's Memorial Day parade. For our family, Memorial Day has always been an acknowledgement of service, sacrifice, and gratitude, a day, which celebrated life and remembrance.

Constant vigilance by another generation of Cohasset's sons and daughters will be required to protect and ensure the sanctity of our town

Memorial Day was first celebrated in the United States just after the Civil War. There are certainly bigger and more elaborate celebrations around the country, but none quite as sincere, heart felt, or patriotic as the one here in Cohasset. I have always felt Cohasset's Memorial Day parade could have jumped off the canvas of a Norman Rockwell painting or maybe a little more contemporary work by Cohasset's own Donna Green. Our parade is unique in its dedication, to a singularly vital concept. That we never forget the sacrifices made by our nation's military and especially by those veterans from Cohasset. The members of the George H. Mealy Post carry out this task with honor and tenacity. I travel all over the United States through small towns and large cities and no where is there so much dedication and unselfish effort put forth to honor a town's veterans as here in Cohasset. I encourage you to read the names on this wall behind me. You will recognize them. Many of their families still live here. Cogill, Keating, Lyon, Parker, Reardon, Simeone and Todd. Without their sacrifices and the sacrifices of thousands more, America and Cohasset would surely be a different place.

During my 20 years in the Navy I traveled across the states and around the world; I served in Somalia during its fall from democracy into anarchy and chaos, in the Persian Gulf War, the Balkans conflict and finally Operation Enduring Freedom, supporting combat operations in Afghanistan. I have seen enough of the ugly and evil side this world has to offer and have sought along with my fellow veterans to keep it as far away from America and ultimately Cohasset as possible. When you serve in harms way your devotion and survival instincts go out to the ones serving along side you. You just want to get through it all in one piece and bring everyone back home alive and well. When I had the opportunity to think past the urgency of that moment, I thought of my family and friends back in Cohasset and how I wanted to spare them from what I had seen. I felt if I could keep these conflicts from reaching the shores of Cohasset then the rest of the country would be safe as well. September 11, 2001, proved that there are a great number of people in the world that do not want us to enjoy our freedoms and the life that we live here in Cohasset. They want America and ultimately Cohasset to be a vastly different place. In particular, a place without the freedoms of speech and religion, equalities and social liberties that we enjoy. Constant vigilance by another generation of Cohasset's sons and daughters will be required to protect and ensure the sanctity of our town. Perhaps one of them stands among us today as a Boy or Girl Scout, or with their instrument in the band.

As I speak our country's veterans are serving in harms way somewhere around the world so that Cohasset can continue to be the town that we know and love. A town that has changed little in my 48 years. Cohasset Harbor is still a safe haven for lobster boats. You can still ride your bike from one end of town to the other, and on a beautiful summer day the Common is still a wonderful place for a pickup game of football or maybe just to relax under a shady tree, have a picnic, walk your dog or read a book. As you enjoy the rest of this holiday, take a moment to remember the names on this wall behind me. The names of the sons of Cohasset who have given their lives in conflicts around the world, so that life here in our hometown can be enjoyed by all, just as we have enjoyed it, for generations to come.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

Mayberry, no more

There was a time "back in the day" when local residents routinely did not lock their doors and could leave keys in their unlocked cars without fear.

But sadly, those days are long gone.

However, some residents, in our view, naively believe Cohasset is like the small town depicted in the television series "Mayberry RFD" where the worst crime was someone sneaking a piece of Aunt Bee's apple pie without permission.

Why else would Cohasset residents be leaving their keys in unlocked cars that in addition to the vehicle itself, contain valuables — like their wallet or pocketbook? Why else would residents leave their doors and windows unlocked and garages open all night?

We are not trying to point the finger at any one person. At times, in any quiet neighborhood residents are lulled into a false sense of security.

Up until this past weekend, we have had a "cool" spring. Most of us have been keeping our windows and sliding-glass doors closed at night in order to stay warm.

However, warmer days are here and there is nothing nicer than opening the windows to let the outside air and breeze inside.

Unfortunately in this day and age, leaving a first-floor window or door open and/or unlocked is an invitation to a criminal.

In neighboring Hingham, there were three housebreaks in rapid succession on Tuesday in the same general neighborhood. These suspects are brazen. They are entering homes at night when the residents are sleeping.

While Cohasset may have a "geographical advantage" over Hingham because it is more off the beaten track – it is certainly not immune to this type of criminal activity.

We worry that if confronted by a resident who was awoken by suspicious sounds that these perpetrators could turn violent.

It is an awful feeling when a burglar enters your home or car and steals your belongings. However, things can be replaced but life and peace of mind are irreplaceable.

The first line of defense against a burglary is locking up. Police say would-be criminals are opportunists, who will take advantage of a situation.

The second line of defense is helping the police. Police stress that said the public is literally the "eyes and ears" of the police department. People should call if they think they see anything suspicious and not be worried they are bothering the police.

Police urge residents not to make it easy for criminals. Lock up and pay attention to any suspicious activity.

Board of Health? Up the elevator, turn right, then left by Mark and Tom's office. Then go down the hall. It's the last office on the right, just past the ghost.

All meetings take place at Town Hall unless otherwise noted. Call the Town Clerk's office at 781-383-4100 for updates and additions.

Flooding workshop is June 16

As the flood control master plan process enters its final stages, the town has scheduled public hearings to allow residents to hear from engineers and contribute their own information.

On Thursday, May 22 a workshop was held focusing on the Jacobs Meadow/James Brook watershed. On Monday, June 16 the discussion at the Town Hall auditorium will revolve around Atlantic Ave./Treat's Pond. All residents (in and outside the area of interest) are encouraged to attend and participate.

A third night, date to be determined, will be held to hear ongoing flooding issues in other areas of town.

If a resident's property is suffering from flooding issues, Town Manager Bill Griffin encouraged interested citizens to check out the "Flood Control Master Plan Map" linked off the homepage of the town website (www.townofcohasset.org) to see if their neighborhood is highlighted as a flood prone area.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Re: Salvaggi, et al. v. MBTA article

TO THE EDITOR:

A considerable number of people have called my office about the eminent domain article that was written by Nancy White of your staff. The people who have called my office regarding the article, as well as everyone here at my office, all agree that a big round of applause should go to your staff member Nancy White. We were all impressed with how well she handled a very complex case. The article was written succinctly with such skill and accuracy, yet covered all of the important points.

I had mentioned to Nancy that if she wanted some assistance with the article I could put some information together, but she very quickly asked me the good questions, followed the chronology beautifully, and did a great job on reporting a multi-million dollar case. Her efforts in writing the article so well should be commended.

Staging area is necessary

TO THE EDITOR:

For many years we have maintained ground cover and shrubs along our considerable frontage at 217 Jerusalem Road, and have endured a bountiful annual harvest of liquor nips, beer cans, cigarette packages and other detritus tossed from passing vehicles. It has not increased since inception of the Little Harbor project, despite the childish suggestion from an opponent of the staging area that the employees of the sewer and water project are drinking on the job. On the contrary, I have heard several comments about their courtesy and apparent conscientiousness.

The staging area is a necessary component of this extensive project, and has to be endured the same as we have to endure the disruption of our streets.

Water and sewer work disruption

COMMENTARY

JOHN BECK

Everyone involved in this project is doing their level best to finish it on schedule with as few disruptions as humanly possible.

It seems appropriate to praise the incredible patience of most of the residents in Cohasset who have been so assaulted by the water and sewer work in their neighborhoods over the past eight months.

None of us who have been directly involved in this project could have anticipated in our worst nightmares how long and disruptive the work on Nichols Road has become. It is almost like the convergence of the weather that resulted in the "Perfect Storm". First the natural impediment to digging a ditch in granite, then the difficulty in avoiding gas lines (location of the main was frequently not known by the gas company, and whose service connections were seldom precisely located and in some instances "discovered" when the back-hoe ripped it out of the ground), rock conditions so difficult that the owner of the machine to remove the road surface declined any further work in Cohasset unless he could be guaranteed ledge-free conditions (fat chance), an incredibly dilatory decision process by the gas company to replace their porous and leaking gas main.....the list goes on and on.

The one constant has been the aforementioned patience and endurance of most of those directly affected by this project. To paraphrase an old saying, you can please some of the people all the time, all of the people some of the time and some people never. To those of you in the first two categories, bless you all. Everyone involved in this project is doing their level best to finish it on schedule with as few disruptions as humanly possible. Mistakes are made and for those we apologize and ask your forgiveness. For damage done to your property, please file claims to the attention of Glenn Pratt, c/o the Water Department for rapid consideration and compensation.

All of us can take solace in the fact that this too shall pass. We will reach the finish line and be able to enjoy the new water infrastructure and sewer lines. Our environment will benefit and all our lives better as a result of the temporary sacrifices we have made.

911 call gets quick help at crossing

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Railroad Crossings – Last week we mentioned that if anyone sees what they think is a malfunction of a railroad crossing gate they should call 911 or the 800 number posted on the side of each signal bungalow (the small green building at every crossing). But, we suspect that calling 911 is probably easier to remember. Last week a resident did just that. Their prompt call to 911 was able to notify the Cohasset Police that there was a potential problem and the police in turn called the MBTA. This accomplishes three things:

- Cohasset Police dispatch an officer to the crossing site to verify the situation and perform any traffic safety measures that may be needed.
- Puts the MBTA trains on alert at that crossing so trains proceed through the crossing slowly under the manual control of the train crew.
- Calls an MBTA service crew to the crossing to evaluate the situation.

That's a lot of action for one simple 911 phone call. That resident did exactly the right thing. We thank them very much. The quicker this 911 call can be made the greater the chance of the MBTA finding out what may have happened at that crossing.

Greenbush, Why do they do it? – This past week we had a frantic call from a CBB field construction supervisor. CBB had just poured concrete across from the South Shore Art Center at the entrance to the Town Parking Lot and also as replacement for a section of the driveway apron at the James Brook Crossing complex. Someone felt compelled to add numerous handprints and marks to the new concrete at James Brook Crossing. Fortunately, CBB noticed the defacing marks quickly. They were able to have one of their workers return to the scene and smooth over the marks. This caused extra effort for CBB. We thank them for their attentiveness.

Area for widening Route 3A.

Route 3A changes – This summer the MBTA will begin a project to widen Route 3A at Lower King Street. They will be adding a left turn lane so that traffic heading southbound will be able to make a safer left turn into Lower King Street. The acceleration lane for traffic entering Route 3A northbound from King Street will be preserved.

The silt fence that is visible in the photo is used to protect the adjacent wetland. This is a necessary step prior to construction. Since a lane is to be added to Route 3A, the road will need to be widened. The additional width will be created by expanding Route 3A on the side in front of the medical building (see arrow in photo). The construction zone will start at Rose Hill and extend northward to just beyond the Brookside Building.

Little Harbor Project – The Deep Run residents have been quite patient with all of the construction in their street. We have had several inquiries about when paving would be done. The hold-up is two storm drainage projects that need to be completed. One is at the upper portion of Deep Run (away from Jerusalem Rd.). Catch basins will be added in Deep Run to collect storm water and direct it to the Haystack Lane / Jerusalem Rd. Drive area and then across Jerusalem Rd. to the ocean. The other is new drainage at the Jerusalem Rd. end of Deep Run. This section will collect storm water from this end of Deep run and direct it to the storm water system on Jerusalem Road. When these drainage projects are completed paving will be able to be done.

Recalling the '68 campaign

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

Hillary, the she who hopes to be president, not the he who conquered Mt. Everest, seems to be running a campaign of apology and recantation, not the kind that wins elections or even primaries.

Her latest gaffe from the stump was a rather lame attempt to explain that she would not pull out of the race since things could change in June like they did in 1968 when Bobby Kennedy was assassinated.

There are certain similarities between the 1968 and the 2008 elections, but there are differences, too.

The '68 election began with President Lyndon B. Johnson, or LBJ, as the headline writers had it, an unpopular president thanks to an unpopular war in Vietnam.

Although the 22nd Amendment limits the president to two four year terms, LBJ was eligible for four more years since his first term had been the last year and a half of the Kennedy Administration.

The candidate for the anti-war crowd was Eugene McCarthy, the senator from Minnesota, who nearly upset LBJ in the New Hampshire primary, close enough to expose the president's weakness.

That was enough for Bobby Kennedy, the senator from New York who despised LBJ and who immediately threw his hat into the presidential ring, elbowing McCarthy aside as the anti-war candidate.

That, in turn, was enough for Johnson, who, on March 31, with most of the primaries still ahead, announced that he would not be a candidate to succeed himself.

That opened the door for the vice president, Hubert Humphrey, who had to soft-pedal his anti-war feelings in order to retain the support of the Johnson administration of which he was a part.

It wasn't until June 4, when a victory in the California primary gave Bobby Kennedy 157 delegates and a 3 per cent lead over McCarthy.

Kennedy had just finished speaking to his supporters at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles and was going through the kitchen to the pressroom when a man stepped out of the crowd and shot him three times with a .22-caliber pistol.

The assassin was Sirhan Bishara Sirhan, a 26-year-old Arab émigré from Jordan, who was apparently angered by Kennedy's well known support of Israel. The field was now clear for Humphrey.

While 5,000 anti-war protesters rioted outside the Chicago convention hall, Humphrey was nominated with 1,760-1/4 delegate votes to 601 for McCarthy.

But the Democrats platform committee rejected 65-35 a peace plank and adopted a platform that linked a halt in Vietnam bombing to withdrawal of U. S. troops only if South Vietnamese soldiers were able to replace them.

On the Republican side, Richard Nixon waltzed to the nomination with 692 votes to 227 for Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York and 182 for Gov. Ronald Reagan of California.

In the general election in November, Nixon rolled to a victory, 301 electoral votes to 191 for Humphrey and 46 for George Wallace, still fighting the battle of another day for states rights.

HEALTH NOTES

Red tide and shellfishing ban

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Relatively unknown in Massachusetts before 1972, red tide has occurred throughout history in every ocean and sea throughout the world.

Cohasset along with other areas along the Massachusetts coast are closed to harvesting of certain shellfish. However, state officials have assured us that clams, mussels and scallops for sale in Massachusetts fish markets and restaurants are safe for human consumption despite a recent outbreak of red tide. The result of the ban in our immediate vicinity is a reduction of the availability of shellfish for sale and higher prices in restaurants.

Affecting both the North and South Shores and part of Cape Cod, red tide is a naturally occurring biotoxin that, at certain levels, makes shellfish unsafe to eat. The Massachusetts Division of Marine Fisheries (DMF) conducts weekly coastline-wide monitoring for red tide – also known as paralytic shellfish poison toxin – from early April until November. Based on levels of the toxin in laboratory results, DMF closes areas to harvesting of affected species until three consecutive subsequent samples result in levels below the National Shellfish Sanitation Program's closure threshold.

This year, DMF first detected elevated levels in the Nauset area of Cape Cod in April, resulting in a prohibition on harvesting certain species in Eastham and Orleans. This month, a large bloom of the algae that causes red tide – Alexandrium fundyense – in the Gulf of Maine triggered DMF shellfishing bans from Nahant to Salisbury and from Hull to Sandwich (excluding the Plymouth/Kingston/Duxbury Bay complex). Species of shellfish prohibited for harvest vary from site to site (for details and a map of closed areas, visit: www.mass.gov/dfwele/dmf/programsandprojects/psp_notice.htm#psp.

"Shellfish currently available for sale in Massachusetts are safe to eat," said Fish and Game Commissioner Mary Griffin, whose department includes the DMF. "Because protecting public health is our top priority, the Division of Marine Fisheries prohibits the harvest of shellfish before red tide counts in a particular area reach unsafe levels. Taking this cautious approach also protects the livelihood of shellfish harvesters by ensuring consumer confidence in their products."

When red tide triggers shellfish harvesting restrictions in some regions, markets and restaurants offer shellfish products harvested from safe, open Massachusetts shellfishing areas and from outside the Commonwealth.

"The Massachusetts Department of Public Health has contacted the Board of Health to ensure that our wholesale seafood dealers and retail food establishments are buying shellfish from DMF- and federally-approved sources only and maintaining shellfish identification tags in accordance with state regulations.

Relatively unknown in Massachusetts before 1972, red tide has occurred throughout history in every ocean and sea throughout the world. In Massachusetts in 2005, a record-setting outbreak caused shellfish harvesting prohibitions across 1.35 million acres of coast – over 77 percent of the Commonwealth's marine waters. Last summer, DMF distributed $1.9 million in federal disaster assistance to 382 commercial fishermen as partial compensation for lost revenue resulting from 2005 red tide closures.

Tobacco compliance check

All 12 tobacco-selling stores in Cohasset passed the most recent Tobacco Compliance check conducted on May 16. Health inspector Tara Tradd reported no Cohasset store sold any tobacco products to a minor. In cooperation, the South Shore Tobacco Collaborative and the Board of Health perform the compliance checks.

"I want to congratulate all the stores for their outstanding work in protecting our youth from the harm of tobacco consumption," said Tradd.

Cohasset Maritime Institute begins season

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On a Sunday morning a group of men and women of all different backgrounds, occupations, size and age arrive at a little piece of Cohasset Harbor waterfront to do something of common interest — get out on the water.

The meeting place is the Cohasset Maritime Institute where the sport of rowing, an activity of long-standing history and tradition in Cohasset, is thriving.

This past Memorial Day weekend was one of the first weekends rowers were able to get out on the harbor in the four-person open water ocean boats. The CMI rowing season typically runs from mid-May to August.

The sun was shining with a light breeze when two crews — one with men and one with women — headed out in two sliding seat ocean rowboats to get exercise, enjoy the water, each other and the views.

"It's a funky old place by the water," says Mike Dick, a member of the CMI Board of Directors. The boathouse is located at the end of Parker Avenue, tucked in between the Center for Student Coastal Research (CSCR) and the Cohasset Sailing Club.

The building itself dates back to 1855 and its first use was a maritime life saving outpost. The Selectmen designated the Cohasset Maritime Institute as custodian of the boathouse that sits on the Hagerty property back in 1994; a year after the town purchased the building.

Over the last decade the program has grown in numbers, incorporating an adult program and a popular high school program including over 40 students from Cohasset High and Notre Dame Academy.

Unlike rowing programs in other South Shore communities, Dick says Cohasset's user-friendly wide beam boats are suitable for ocean rowing.

"That's the difference between us and everyone else," says Dick. The budding interest in rowing from high school students propelled CMI to purchase a new four-person 28-foot ocean rowboat. They have named the boat in honor of the late Jack Hubbard, a long-time Cohasset resident and ocean environmentalist.

"It's something nearly anyone can do to get something out of where you live," says Dick. Although rowing uses the entire body, it is considered a low impact activity. The sport breaks the barriers of age so high school students can enjoy the sport along with their mothers, fathers, even grandparents. Most of CMI's members are from Cohasset, but some do come from neighboring towns.

The sport breaks the barriers of age so high school students can enjoy the sport along with their mothers, fathers, even grandparents.

Boats, depending on the rowers' skill level, often make their way around Minot Light, head north to Sandy Beach along Cohasset's "gold coast" or south toward Minot Beach in Scituate. If the tide is right, crews sometimes travel into the Gulf under the Border Street bridge or into Little Harbor under Cunningham Bridge. In both cases, there is approximately a 45-minute window for the boat to make it in and out while the tide turns over.

While many motorboat owners face high gas prices this season in order to get out on the ocean, the boats at CMI are powered by a completely renewable resource: human strength and endurance.

"The power and strength you feel when you are making the boat more fast is really great," says Breda O'Sullivan, who discovered CMI five summers ago and looks forward to getting out on the water at 9a.m. each Sunday of the summer. Satisfaction is also derived from knowing you and your fellow rowers are working as a team. "We know we'd never be able to do it on our own."

Maryellen Coggins, O'Sullivan and Hewitt-Dick have rowed together every summer Sunday at 9a.m. for the past few years and the camaraderie among them is evident. They share stories of past adventures: making their way around Minot Light for the first time, being playfully followed by a seal or how by the end of the summer their hands are calloused from the rowing season. As the boat makes its way through the water, the women chat easily while keeping the rhythm of the stroke.

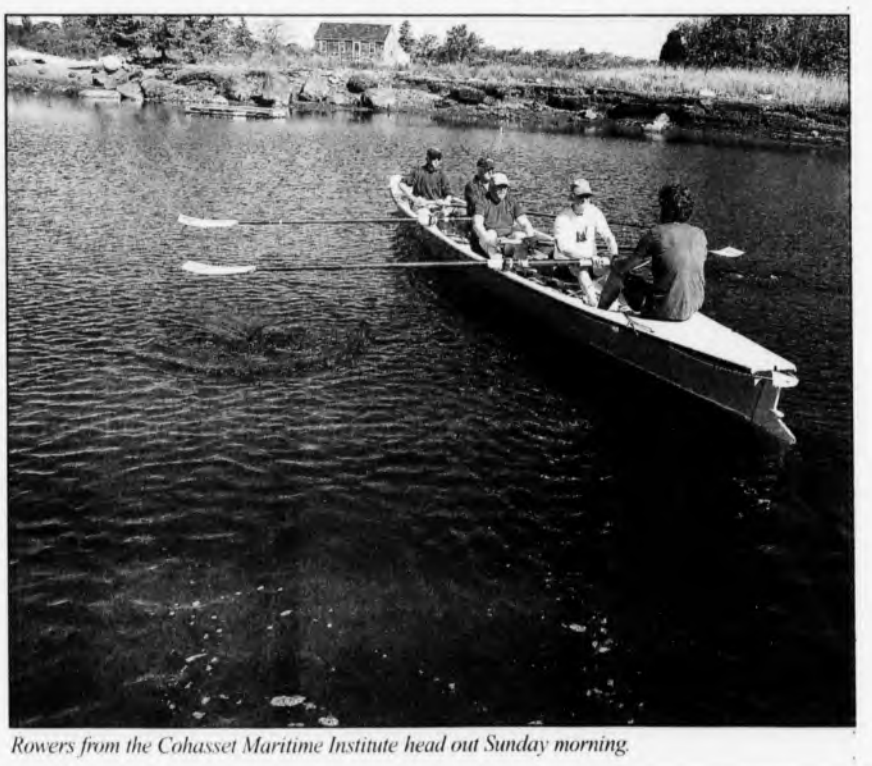
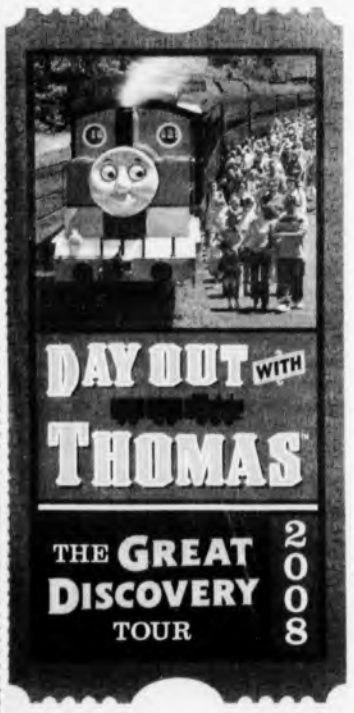
Dick himself is an example. He more or less stumbled upon the program after seeing an ad in the Mariner looking for rower. He decided to attend the meeting thinking all along it was a group of people each in their own rowboat. He was taken in by the infectious enthusiasm of the group and decided to join — he hasn't looked back since. "I fell in love with it."

Although the rowing season is just a fraction of the year, the limited opportunity impels rowers to savor each day out on the water.



"There is something to be said for a boating season," said Dick. Some groups of stalwart and experienced rowers get out on the water in the fall and into the colder winter months. Crews compete in area rowing races.

There are plans to update the boathouse to make it more useable year-round. At Annual Town Meeting 2007, CMI received $50,000 in Community Preservation monies to fund a historical architect, a new roof, new windows, installation of insulation and an update to the electrical system. The goal is to make the boathouse useable during the majority of the year. In addition to the sport of rowing, members of CMI try to keep alive the tradition of rowing by restoring historical boats. The insulation will also allow rowers to train using the "erg" machines, workout equipment that simulates a rowing stroke.



CMI is putting on their first ever Jack Hubbard Memorial 5K Fun Run to celebrate their new ocean rowboat and raise money. Interested runners, walkers or potential sponsors should contact Ed Baldry at 781-383-8555 or e-mail ed.baldry@icdfunds.com. To find out more about CMI and its programs, visit www.rowcmi.com

CHS students learn GIS

Two groups of students have been learning the fundamentals of GIS software. Geographic Information Systems is a software tool that enables users to display information, water quality data in this case, in a spatial format. Students have learned how to create and display maps that illustrate not only places on earth, but features about those places such as the land use that surround data sampling points. This allows students to then visually analyze data, identifying the variables that help understand why bacteria counts, for example, may be high at some sampling points in Little Harbor and low at others.

Cohasset resident, GIS specialist and ESRI employee, Jeff Donze of Parker Avenue, visited students in the Watershed Studies class and praised the analyses they were doing. "It's impressive to see you analyzing land uses that surround data points where bacteria counts are high," he told the students. He further encouraged them to continue to build their skills, noting that they will have an advantage in the job market if GIS is part of their resume as GIS is used in virtually all industries.

Donze was pleased to hand out company goodies to the students including mouse pads and T-shirts. And the students were thrilled to receive them.

The GIS program is ArcMap and is installed on computers in the CHS social studies computer lab and on the computers at CSCR as part of grant funding to support analysis of data generated in student research.

CSP Gears up for Estate Sale Bonanza!

Skis? Got 'em. Oriental Rugs? Got 'em. Antiques galore? Got 'em. The former Cook Estate on Sohier Street is jam packed for the best and largest Estate Sale the South Shore has seen in years. Donations continue to pour in to support the Cohasset Sports Partnership first ever Estate Sale with all proceeds going to the got turf? turf field campaign.

The Estate Sale concept was brought to the CSP Board by Cohasset resident, Cheryl Lund, a favorite South Shore interior decorator. Her concept was to put out the call for donations of gently used items. Through flyers and newspaper articles and everyone's email list, the word was put out that the CSP was looking for Estate Sale items. The people of Cohasset responded in a most generous fashion, spurning many to get to their long overdue and dreaded spring cleaning. Lund has logged many, many hours at the former Cook Estate pricing and organizing the merchandise. Highlights include a sporting goods room jam packed with skis, golf clubs, skates, cleats, bicycles and more. There is a rug room setup like a pricey rug showroom with 100 percent wool oriental styles all the way to childrens' designs. There is a kid's room with toys, books, cds, games, children's' furniture and more. Off the kitchen is a curtain and lamp room with exquisite lamps and custom draperies, all gently used. Finally, furniture is housed in the 3 bay garage with beds, dressers, antique desks, armoires, chairs and sofas and much more. CSP Spokesperson Ellen Maher states " We couldn't have done this without Cheryl. Her enthusiasm and energy have made this event happen. Our success will be a testimony to her efforts".

The sale starts Saturday, May 31 from 8 am to 3 pm and runs through Sunday June 1 from 8-3 as well. No early birds please. Visit www.cohassetsportspartnership.org.

Lobster roll sale returns!

Lobster rolls, a tradition at the South Shore Arts Festival, will once again be on sale at the Parish House of First Parish Unitarian Universalist in Cohasset, 23 North Main St., on June 13, 14 and 15. Lobster lovers will be glad to hear that the all-meat, fresh lobster rolls, with no filler, will remain at last year's size and price of $13 including a bag of Cape Cod potato chips. "The rolls are so good that quite a few buyers return the next day for yet another taste of summer," said Art Myles, co-chairman of the sale with his wife, Penny Myles. They suggests getting coworkers together at lunchtime on Friday, or bringing lobster rolls home for dinner with family and friends on Friday, Saturday or Sunday, which is Father's Day.

Pre-ordering is encouraged as it helps planning for the last minute arrival of the freshest possible lobster. Orders can be mailed to the Parish House, 23 North Main St., Cohasset, MA 02025 until Tuesday, June 10, with checks made out to First Parish in Cohasset; or orders may be placed by emailing or calling Penny Myles pmyles74@comcast.net or 781-749-1989. Orders can be picked up at the Parish House on Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be a lobster pick-up parking zone in front of the Parish House.

Tennis benefit for Children's Hospital

Save the date for Cohasset's longest-running tennis tradition, which swings into action again this summer to benefit Children's Hospital Boston beginning Friday, July 18th through Sunday, July 20th. The popular weekend tennis tournament dates back to the 1950's, when Cohasset's legendary philanthropist Jesse Cox gathered family and friends for a charitable game of tennis to benefit some of the neediest children and their families at Children's Hospital.

The event was a tremendous success and soon became an annual summer tradition. In the past 10 years alone, more than $100,000 has been raised to benefit patients and their families at the hospital, earning the Cohasset Tennis Benefit a commemorative plaque in the Children's lobby. This year all proceeds will help fund the Pediatric Trauma Program, with 100 percent of the proceeds paying for transportation, lodging and personal care packages for families of trauma patients.

This summer's benefit kicks off with an evening reception on Friday, July 18th at the Lightkeeper's Residence on Cohasset Harbor. On Saturday, July 19, tennis players of all abilities, from beginners to advanced, are evenly matched and play on some of the most spectacular private courts throughout Cohasset. Finals for three levels of play (social, intermediate and advanced) take place on Sunday, July 20th on the grounds of the Roy estate, formerly the home of Cohasset Tennis Benefit founder Jesse Cox.

For reception, tennis and registration information, or to learn about sponsorship opportunities, lob on to www.cohassettennisbenefit.org.

Cohasset Maritime Institute begins season

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

On a Sunday morning a group of men and women of all different backgrounds, occupations, size and age arrive at a little piece of Cohasset Harbor waterfront to do something of common interest — get out on the water.

The meeting place is the Cohasset Maritime Institute where the sport of rowing, an activity of long-standing history and tradition in Cohasset, is thriving.

This past Memorial Day weekend was one of the first weekends rowers were able to get out on the harbor in the four-person open water ocean boats. The CMI rowing season typically runs from mid-May to August.

The sun was shining with a light breeze when two crews — one with men and one with women — headed out in two sliding seat ocean rowboats to get exercise, enjoy the water, each other and the views.

"It's a funky old place by the water," says Mike Dick, a member of the CMI Board of Directors. The boathouse is located at the end of Parker Avenue, tucked in between the Center for Student Coastal Research (CSCR) and the Cohasset Sailing Club.

The building itself dates back to 1855 and its first use was a maritime life saving outpost. The Selectmen designated the Cohasset Maritime Institute as custodian of the boathouse that sits on the Hagerty property back in 1994; a year after the town purchased the building.

Over the last decade the program has grown in numbers, incorporating an adult program and a popular high school program including over 40 students from Cohasset High and Notre Dame Academy.

Unlike rowing programs in other South Shore communities, Dick says Cohasset's user-friendly wide beam boats are suitable for ocean rowing.

"That's the difference between us and everyone else," says Dick. The budding interest in rowing from high school students propelled CMI to purchase a new four-person 28-foot ocean rowboat. They have named the boat in honor of the late Jack Hubbard, a long-time Cohasset resident and ocean environmentalist.

The sport breaks the barriers of age so high school students can enjoy the sport along with their mothers, fathers, even grandparents.

"It's something nearly anyone can do to get something out of where you live," says Dick. Although rowing uses the entire body, it is considered a low impact activity. The sport breaks the barriers of age so high school students can enjoy the sport along with their mothers, fathers, even grandparents. Most of CMI's members are from Cohasset, but some do come from neighboring towns.

Boats, depending on the rowers' skill level, often make their way around Minot Light, head north to Sandy Beach along Cohasset's "gold coast" or south toward Minot Beach in Scituate. If the tide is right, crews sometimes travel into the Gulf under the Border Street bridge or into Little Harbor under Cunningham Bridge. In both cases, there is approximately a 45-minute window for the boat to make it in and out while the tide turns over.

While many motorboat owners face high gas prices this season in order to get out on the ocean, the boats at CMI are powered by a completely renewable resource: human strength and endurance.

"The power and strength you feel when you are making the boat more fast is really great," says Breda O'Sullivan, who discovered CMI five summers ago and looks forward to getting out on the water at 9a.m. each Sunday of the summer. Satisfaction is also derived from knowing you and your fellow rowers are working as a team. "We know we'd never be able to do it on our own."

Maryellen Coggins, O'Sullivan and Hewitt-Dick have rowed together every summer Sunday at 9a.m. for the past few years and the camaraderie among them is evident. They share stories of past adventures: making their way around Minot Light for the first time, being playfully followed by a seal or how by the end of the summer their hands are calloused from the rowing season. As the boat makes its way through the water, the women chat easily while keeping the rhythm of the stroke.

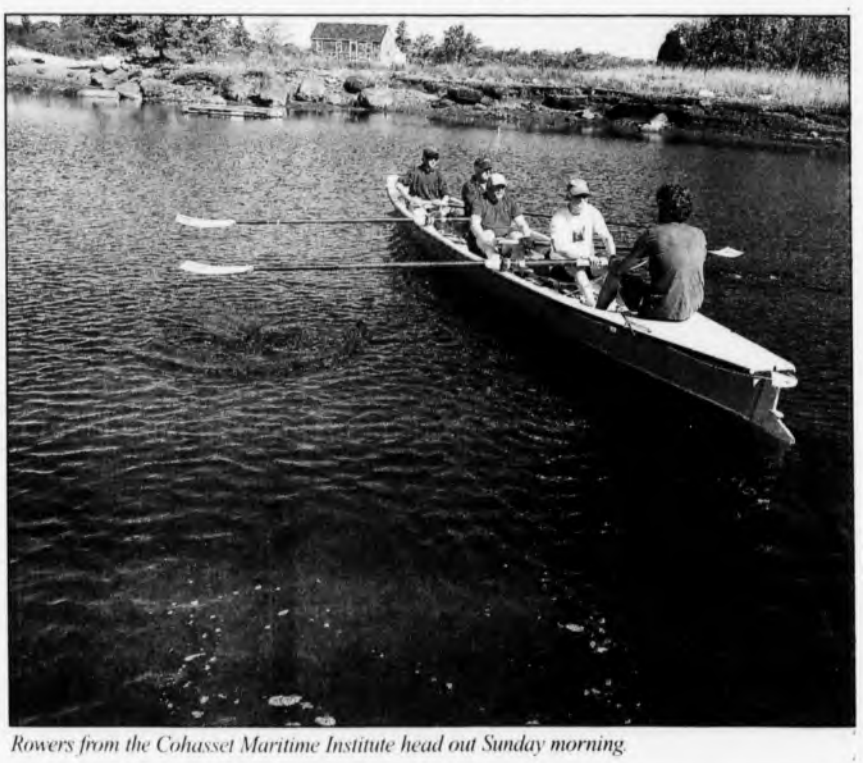
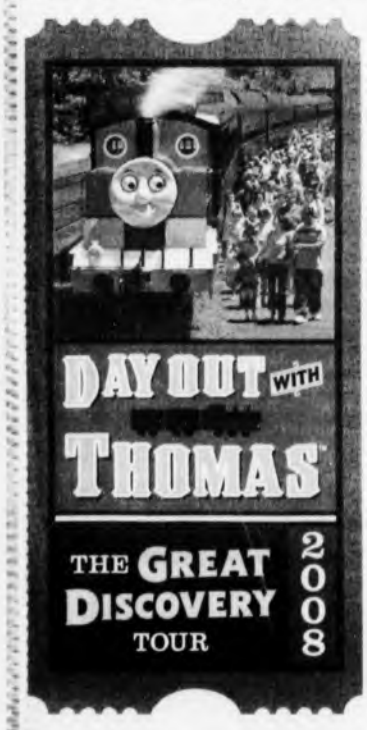
Dick himself is an example. He more or less stumbled upon the program after seeing an ad in the Mariner looking for rower. He decided to attend the meeting thinking all along it was a group of people each in their own rowboat. He was taken in by the infectious enthusiasm of the group and decided to join — he hasn't looked back since. "I fell in love with it."

Although the rowing season is just a fraction of the year, the limited opportunity impels rowers to savor each day out on the water.



"There is something to be said for a boating season," said Dick. Some groups of stalwart and experienced rowers get out on the water in the fall and into the colder winter months. Crews compete in area rowing races.

There are plans to update the boathouse to make it more useable year-round. At Annual Town Meeting 2007, CMI received $50,000 in Community Preservation monies to fund a historical architect, a new roof, new windows, installation of insulation and an update to the electrical system. The goal is to make the boathouse useable during the majority of the year. In addition to the sport of rowing, members of CMI try to keep alive the tradition of rowing by restoring historical boats. The insulation will also allow rowers to train using the "erg" machines, workout equipment that simulates a rowing stroke.



CMI is putting on their first ever Jack Hubbard Memorial 5K Fun Run to celebrate their new ocean rowboat and raise money. Interested runners, walkers or potential sponsors should contact Ed Baldry at 781-383-8555 or e-mail ed.baldry@icdfunds.com. To find out more about CMI and its programs, visit www.rowcmi.com

Sing it so softly like Sam Cooke, "It's been a long time coming, but a change gonna come." That classic civil rights anthem by the soulful crooner was five years old the last time a Cohasset High School baseball team won a league title, until Friday.

Forty-nine years and running finally sat down and drank a Gatorade with the Skippers defeating Carver, 9-4, to win a co-South Shore League title with Abington. Both Cohasset and Abington split this season.

Cohasset (16-4 overall, 11-3 in the SSL) has not had the most prolific baseball program. A league title was a long time coming, but tournament berths have also been few and far between.

The Skippers have made the postseason three times since 1972, the last time coming in 1999. It took a mammoth effort from a senior-laden squad to win its final eight games of the season.

including six in five days.

No team has been hotter down the stretch. Cohasset's recent success would make Big Brown blush.

"It's a tribute to the kids for their attitude and effort this year," said Cohasset head coach Al Gallotta. "They put it in their minds they wanted to establish a tradition here. It came down to getting together and having good team chemistry. I give the kids all the credit in the world."

What's more, Cohasset finished dead last in the league last year, going 5-13 overall and 2-12 in the league. For the eight seniors, the collective chip on their shoulder was deeper than a well in a fairy tale.

"There was a whole karma of a team coming together for a determined effort," Gallotta said. "They are a group of athletes that have been playing together since they were five or six years old in Little League. They were determined to reverse (last year)."

Seniors Brian Hill, Sam DeGiacomo, Dave Snowdale, Kyle Pinkus, Kenny Muir, Pat Doonan, Chris Rose and Alex Goetz took it upon themselves, according to Gallotta, to make something out of their pronounced baseball talents.

Gallotta is in his 33rd season of coaching, 27 of which he spent at Archbishop Williams, his last six at Cohasset.

"I had some great teams at Archbishop Williams and I felt close to some of those teams," he said. "When teams do really well you have a bond with them. It takes great kids with great character to be successful. I never thought I'd see this at Cohasset after the first five years and it pleases me to no end. It's an experience I haven't felt in years, it's like the good old days."

Gallotta isn't sure why the baseball program struggled for so long at CHS. He pointed to lacrosse. Over the last two decades or so, it has taken a bite out of baseball's popularity. It has also taken an obvious bite out of the baseball population in Cohasset, as well.

"I've only been here six years, so I'm not able to know the problems through the years," Gallotta said. "As a community, Cohasset just wasn't locked into a baseball situation."

It is now.

Division 3 South Sectional

Cohasset earned a No. 3 seed in the Div. 3 South Sectional. It will play the winner of No. 14 Westwood and No.19 Cardinal Spellman, Saturday, May 31 at home. First pitch is set for 4:30 p.m. Cohasset beat the Cardinals, 6-2, over April vacation week.

From Monday, May 19 to Friday, May 23, the Skippers won six games. They beat Hull 10-2 at home, Monday. Sam DeGiacomo got the win. Tuesday, they knocked off Mashpee 7-1 on the road behind Brian Hill on the mound. Wednesday, it was Harwich, again on the Cape. The Skippers won 9-1. Brendan Doonan got the win.

Thursday, they swept Sacred Heart of Kingston, 6-2 and 6-1. Jeff Cavanaro (Fr.) earned his first varsity win in game one (6-2). Danny Martin (Jr.) earned his first varsity win as well, in the second game.

Friday, Hill came on in relief on two days rest to pitch 4 and 2/3 innings, to preserve the win and the league title. John Sturino went 3-for-4 with four RBI.

Gallotta's expectations heading into the playoffs are the same he has had all season.

"Like it has been every game, just play one at a time," he said. "They played totally relaxed in the Carver game. It was business as usual. There was no nervousness or anxiety. They are a confident group of kids, if they relax, and play the way they are capable of playing, the outcome will hinge of the teams talent level."

And, according to Gallotta, "they certainly have plenty of talent."

Skippers lose in opening round

Milton too much to handle

By Joel Racicot
JRACICOT@CNC.COM

The Cohasset High girls lacrosse team is very young. Out of 26 letterwoman, 23 will return next season. It showed Tuesday at Milton High, with the Skippers losing 21-7, in the preliminary round of Div. 2 South.

"We came out flat they came out not flat," said Cohasset head coach Chuck Jaffe. "It was 5-0 before we could catch our breath."

No. 13 Milton (11-9) went up 11-0 halfway through the first half.

"They hit on everything," Jaffe said. "We didn't give ourselves a chance to win. If you can' control draws, you can't win. They were also very efficient. It's difficult to be in a game when you give the ball away and they don't."

Kelsey Erler (Fr.) and Lindsay Hill (Jr.) had a pair of goals each. Caitlin Mahoney (Jr.) played strong at midfield. Milton was hit with four yellow cards for strikes to the head on Mahoney.

Katelyn Ryan (Jr.) held Milton's top scorer, Brittney O'Rourke to one goal before O'Rourke fouled out.

Erler, Hill, Mahoney, Ryan and Madeline Leahy were all named to the South Shore League all-star team for Cohasset (No. 20 seed at 7-9 overall).

"This season is a very good learning experience," Jaffe said. "We are extremely young. There is going to be tremendous competition next year."

Jaffe thinks Tuesday's tournament experience will help his program going forward.

"There is something to be said about reaching a goal and coming away unfulfilled," he said. "This year making the tourney was a goal. Next year we want to make the tourney and make some noise."

Cohasset played a very difficult regular season schedule with top teams like Norwell and Hopkinton on its slate. That attributed to the under .500 record, but Jaffe knew his team had a good shot to qualify for tourney by finishing second in the SSL.

If anything, these Skippers are battle tested. And it looks like it will show next season.

"This team likes playing together," Jaffe said. "They really enjoy each other, and that was one goal, as well as progressing as a team and making the right things happen."

Summer swim team at the South Shore YMCA

The South Shore YMCA will begin registration for their Summer Strypers swim team (formerly known as The Sharks) on June 10th, 12th (SSYMCA Members) and 17th (non members). There will be a compulsory parents meeting and equipment night (suit and flippers) on Monday 16th June at the Hanover facility.

The Summer Strypers welcomes children ages 5-18 and will offer practice groups at both the Quincy and Hanover/Mill Pond facilities. The team is recreational in focus and has an emphasis on fun, friends and improvement. This provides an excellent introduction to the fundamentals of competitive swimming. It is also a fantastic vehicle for swimmers new to the previous short course season to showcase the things they learned and the improvements they made.

This team attracts current Strypers swimmers but is largely comprised of swimmers new to competitive swimming. All swimmers must be able to swim one length of legal freestyle and backstroke. Swimmers will have practices available Monday through Thursday with meets generally held on Fridays. The program will run from Monday June 23 until Sunday August 9.

For more information please consult the South Shore YMCA Summer Program Guides and contact Strypers Head Coach Tim Mulvihill at 781-829-8585 ext 242.

Cape crusader for Nova Scotia golf

Alexander Stevens
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

Cape Breton, Nova Scotia - Golfer meets woman. Golfer marries woman. Woman never again sees golfer on Saturday afternoons.

It's a tale full of woe. How do golfers and their nongolfer spouses find harmony?

My wife and I may have found an answer on Cape Breton, the charming little island northeast of Maine and part of the Canadian province of Nova Scotia.

To picture Cape Breton, imagine what New England may have looked like 100 years ago. Water everywhere: ocean views and lakes and ponds that, when juxtaposed with impressive mountains, provide countless Kodak moments.

Chiseled into these landscapes are some terrific golf courses with reasonable greens fees. But Cape Breton also provides entertainment for the nongolfers.

So while I toiled away on the golf course, my wife enjoyed the spas at several of the resorts we visited - including the AVEDA spa at the Keltic Lodge in Ingonish - irresistibly delicious rhubarb muffins at quaint bayside coffee shops and a guided tour through part of the exquisite and renowned Cabot Trail, a 185-mile trail that loops around the northern tip of Cape Breton. And we shared the experience of going to a barn dance in Cheticamp (home, as well, of Le Portage Golf Club), that reminded us that Cape Breton is famous for its fiddlers.

But my mission was golf. And first stop was the Dundee Golf and Resort in Dundee (greens fees $59 plus tax during high season). Imagine a golf course cut into the side of a mountain. That's Dundee. Architect Robert Moote oriented the fairways vertically so the holes run up and down the mountain. The result is a course that constantly provides stunning water views of Bras d'Or Lake below.

It's also a very playable course if you're not intimidated by uphill and downhill lies. The signature hole is the gorgeous par-3, 153-yard 7th. From the highly elevated tee, it's a steep, 80-foot drop to the inviting green. Joined by club pro Paul Innes, I hit a high-arcing 7-iron that landed with a thud and trickled toward the hole, leaving me 20 feet for birdie. Two putts for par sent me on a little run of good holes.

The other highlight of the round was the adorable fox we met on hole 15. He cautiously crept out to meet us, getting as close as 15 feet, before settling into a sand trap, where he enjoyed an early morning stretch that reminded me a lot of Beau, our golden retriever back home.

Innes told me they used to have a problem with foxes who would wait for golfers to hit their shots, and then scamper out onto the fairway to steal the balls. Very funny, as long as it's not your $3.75 Titleist Pro V1.

We next hit the road for Highlands Links Golf Course in Ingonish (greens fees $92 plus tax).

Highlands, which keeps popping up on the "Best Of" lists of various golf magazines, runs along Middle Head Peninsula, offering views of rocky headlands, wooded glens and the Atlantic.

Under the watchful eye of designer Stanley Thompson, it was built in 1937, when the work of men was favored over machines. The result is a golf course that's quite literally hand-sculpted. Making our way toward the green on the par-4 4th hole, my playing partner, head pro Joe Robinson, pointed out that the manmade mounds on the back of the green re-create the shape of the mountains behind them.

It's hard to get a flat lie on the 16th because Thompson carefully molded the fairway with strategically placed bumps of rock and dirt that cast mysterious shadows in the horizontal light of a sunset. The holes at Highlands have been given Gaelic names, and 16 is called "Sair Fecht," which translates as "hard work."

Our final stop was at Bell Bay Golf Club in Baddeck (greens fees $65 plus tax). And if Dundee is cut vertically into a mountain, then imagine Bell Bay as being cut horizontally -- golfers slowly zigzag their way up the hillside until they top out at hole 18.

The signature hole -- the 144-yard par-3 17th -- is a glorious example of the way a hole can be designed with minimal impact to the environment: just a tee box and green, with lots of trees and brush in between. At 17, my partner, head pro Ted Stonehouse, hit a shot that landed just 10 feet from the pin. I felt confident standing on the tee with a 7-iron in my hand. And confidence, as golfers know, often yields results -- I hit it to about 6 feet from the flag.

The 17th hole may be the signature hole, but 18 provides such gorgeous views of Bell Bay (home of Alexander Graham Bell) that a big white tent was erected on the 18th tee to accommodate all the weddings held there.

Weddings -- some of them no doubt between golfers and their nongolfer spouses.

IF YOU go...

GETTING THERE: Take the high-speed catamaran, The CAT (877-359-3760, www.catferry.com), which operates this year from May 30 to Oct. 14. The route is from Portland or Bar Harbor, Maine, to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia. Portland to Yarmouth takes about 5 hours and 15 minutes ($99 adult one-way); Bar Harbor to Yarmouth takes about 3 hours ($69). Prices for cars start at $115 one-way, but check the Web site for details. The great thing about bringing your car is your golf bags can stay in the trunk until you get to the golf course. Note: It is about a six-hour drive from Yarmouth to Cape Breton.

STAYING THERE: Dundee Golf and Resort (800-565-5660, www.capebretonresorts.com; summer high season rates from $169) is wonderfully secluded with gorgeous views of Bras d'Or Lake. The property has a restaurant, spa, sauna, pools, hiking trails, hot tubs, children's activities and, of course, golf.

Keltic Lodge Resort and Spa (800-565-0444, www.kelticlodge.ca; summer rates from $176), in Ingonish (next to Highlands Links), serves up superior accommodations in that perfect blend of old and new, with pleasing old-style service. The Purple Thistle Dining Room is an excellent restaurant serving inventive, modern cuisine with an emphasis on seafood. The spa offers AVEDA treatments.

Inverary Resort (800-565-5660, www.capebretonresorts.com/inverary; summer rates from $139), in Baddeck (next to Bell Bay Golf Couse), has accommodations including a beautiful, immaculately kept two-room suite with a vaulted ceiling, refrigerator and microwave. There is a restaurant, spa, the Cabot Trail to explore, fishing, boating, swimming, tennis and nearby shopping.

Newly minted senior takes over column

LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK

I know the shoes of my priors will be hard to fill but hopefully I will live up to all expectations set forth!

Hello everyone! I hope you all had a wonderful Memorial Day weekend! Allow me to introduce myself: my name is Lauren Mack and as I'm sure most of you have heard by now, I'm taking over for the lovely Christine Kent next year in fulfilling the weekly "Life at CHS" column and giving a day to day synopsis of the happenings at the high school, and this is my first ever column. I know the shoes of my priors will be hard to fill but hopefully I will live up to all expectations set forth!

Anyways, this week has been crazy and action-packed for everyone. If the halls seem quieter and the underclassmen appear to have come out from their hiding places, it's probably because the Senior's last day was on Wednesday, thus officially making me a Cohasset High School Senior! In addition to finishing school, the Seniors also have prom this Friday night so everyone "com-mon" over to the common beforehand and see all the beautiful couples walk the red carpet! As for the highlights of the week:

- Monday was Memorial Day, I hope everyone enjoyed their day off from school and indulged in some hamburgers or hot dogs.
- Tuesday and Wednesday was back to school as the Junior class took the US History MCAS
- Wednesday was also the Seniors last day
- Saturday afternoon (4:30 p.m.) is the big Boy's Varsity baseball tournament game, come watch another one of our teams make history!

And so there you have it, everyone, my first post as your new columnist! So see you all next week!

Jean M. Martell

Former office manager at Eye Health Services and South Shore Medical Center

Jean M. (Vickerson) Martell, 75, a Hingham resident for the past 53 years, died May 25, 2008, at her home.

"Jean left her family and her many lifelong friends far too soon. All of us who love her know that Jean and Ernie raised Linda, Chuck and Dave to value the truly important things in life. Family always came first. Jean has bestowed those same core values, and her sense of wonder and adventure, on the next generation of Martell's as the caretaker for two (or more) days each week of David's and Robin's two sons, Turner and Stephen. "The boys" will surely miss "Nana" not only as a constant influence in their lives but also as a fixture at their baseball and soccer games and guitar and ukulele recitals. Linda will miss her closest confidante and Dave his strongest supporter. Their only solace is knowing that Jean lived all her days filled with joy and love, and that she will now be reunited with Ernie and Chuck. We also know that Jean will live on as essential parts of Linda and Dave and the boys and future generations of Martell's."

Mrs. Martell traveled extensively and shared the world with family and friends. She and her husband took the kids on summer trips, including a cross-country camping "adventure" in 1973, which continues to be the source of family lore and legend. They also loved traveling with Jean's cousins, the Matheson's, and visited countries throughout Europe and elsewhere. Linda was travel guide when Jean and Linda toured Ireland, the place Jean "most wanted to visit," in 2006. Unknown to Linda, her mother kept a journal of their Irish trip, which enlivened her photo album – a memento Linda will always cherish.

Mrs. Martell's friends are legion. Throughout her life, Jean and Ernie looked forward to get-togethers with "the crowd" from Milton and Quincy. Mrs. Martell was born and raised in Milton and was an active member of Milton High School class reunion committees. Since her retirement, she enjoyed keeping in touch with her many colleagues at South Shore Medical Center in Norwell and Eye Health Services where she was office manager of the main office in Weymouth.

In addition to her family and friends, many in the Town of Hingham will miss Mrs. Martell. In 1955, Mr. and Mrs. Martell moved into the home that Jean's father, "Bumpa," and Ernie designed and constructed. She enjoyed her home her entire adult life.

She loved bridge and looked forward to regular bridge club meetings. Mrs. Martell will be missed by the members of Hingham Ladies Club, her co-volunteers at Hingham Interfaith Food Pantry, the choir and congregation at Old Hingham Methodist Church, and the congregation at St. Paul Catholic Church in Hingham, where Ernie served as a deacon.

Mrs. Martell loved life, her garden and knitting. Although in recent years arthritis slowed her down a bit and forced her to give up her daily morning walks with friends, nothing stopped her from going to Red Sox spring training each year with Linda's and David's families and completely enjoying the abundance of cultural, entertainment and sporting events in Boston and the South Shore. She was always "up for anything."

Wife of the late Ernest W. Martell Jr., she leaves her children, Linda Felter and her husband, John Kenneth Felter, of Cambridge and David Martell and his wife, Robin, of Cohasset; her grandsons, Turner and Stephen Martell of Cohasset; and several nieces, nephews and cousins.

She was the mother of the late Charles E. Martell, and sister of the late Helen Gulla.

A funeral Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m., on Friday, May 30, at St. Paul Church, 147 North St., Hingham Square. Arrangements by Downing Cottage Funeral Chapel, Hingham. Interment in Milton Cemetery.

In lieu of flowers, memorial donations may be made to the Chuck Martell Scholarship Fund, c/o Town of Hingham-Treasurer's Office, 210 Central St., Hingham, MA 02043.

Voice of Faithful panel discussion June 4

Compassionate people inside and outside the Catholic Church are extending a hand to those hurt and abused by the Church. The truth about damaged lives is being told and the experiences and struggles of those trying to overcome their abuse are being brought to light. Who are these people reaching out to others during troubled times and what do their ministries entail? What are the biggest obstacles to their work? How can others help in reaching out to those in need of compassion and understanding? Come hear three panelists address these questions and speak about their outreach work on Wednesday, June 4th at 7:30pm at St. Mary's Parish Hall in Scituate.

The panel will consist of Father Robert Bowers, June Chin, and Marjorie Bean, representatives from three different outreach ministries who have worked with disaffected Catholics and survivors of sexual abuse by clergy. Father Robert Bowers is a Consultant for the Paulist Fathers' Initiative for Outreach and Reconciliation. The Initiative helps alienated and disenfranchised Catholics and others experience reconciliation and healing. June Chin, MSW with a Masters in Pastoral Counseling, works for the Boston Archdiocesan Office for Pastoral Support and Outreach (OPSO). OPSO assists those who have been sexually abused by clergy and offers outreach services to family members of survivors. Marjorie Bean, Co-Chair of Voice of the Faithful's Survivor Support Working Group, is a founding member of the Truth and Recognition Coalition. The Coalition is a non-profit partnership of survivors and supporters who are videotaping the experiences of survivors in order to create a historical document and develop resources for education and prevention. Panelists will discuss their ministries, challenges, and vision for a more compassionate and understanding world.

Questions and answers will follow the panel discussion and refreshments will be served.

Wednesday, June4th at 7:30pm should be an inspiring and thought-provoking evening. Questions and answers will follow the panel discussion and refreshments will be served. The evening is hosted by the Scituate Affiliate of Voice of the Faithful.

SALOME'S STARS FOR RELEASE WEEK OF MAY 26, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Lots of possibilities begin to open up by midweek. Some seem more appealing than others. But wait for more facts to emerge later on before you consider which to choose.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Bravo to the determined Bovine. While others might give up, you continue to search for answers. Expect your Taurean tenacity to begin paying off by week's end.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You might want to consider stepping back from the task at hand for a while. This could help you get a better perspective on what you've done and what still needs to be done.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Your keen Cancerian insight should help you determine whether a new offer is solid or just more fluff 'n' stuff. The clues are all there waiting for you to find them.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Being ignored is difficult for any proud Leo or Leona. But pushing yourself back into the spotlight might be unwise. Instead, let things work themselves out at their own pace.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Trying to uncover a colleague's secret under the pretext of showing concern is ill-advised. Control your curiosity to avoid raising resentment in the workplace.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Expect to hear good news about a loved one. Also, be prepared for some changes in several family relationships that could develop from this lucky turn of events.

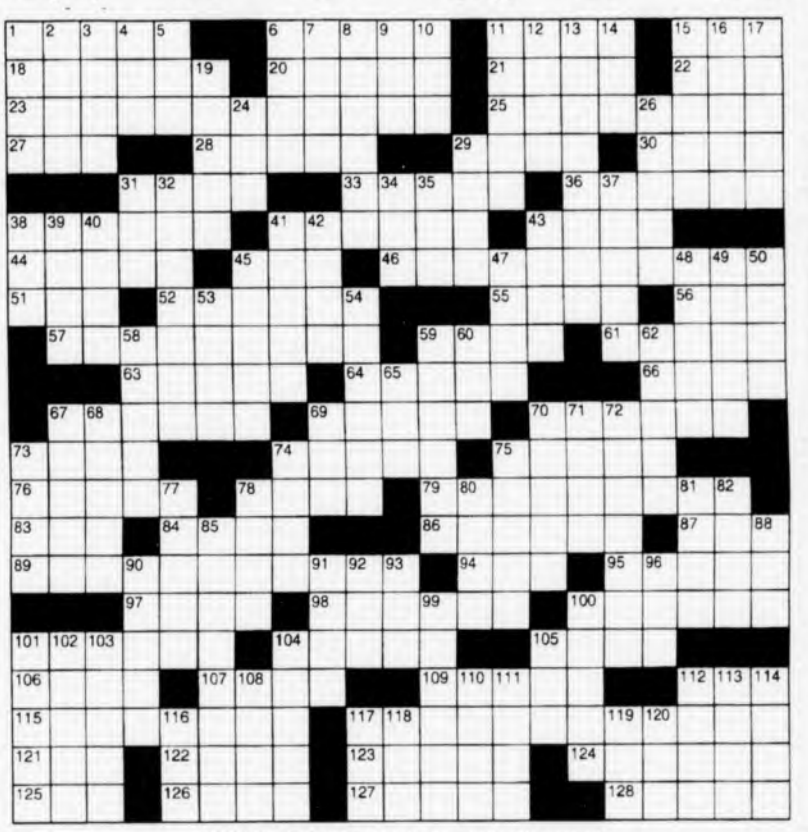
SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Some surprises are expected to accompany a number of changes that will continue through part of next week. At least one could involve a romantic situation.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might be upset by some of your critics. But most of your associates continue to have faith in your ability to get the job done, and done well.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) A workplace goal that suddenly seems out of reach is no problem for the sure-footed Goat, who moves steadily forward despite any obstacles placed in his or her way.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Uncertainty about who is right and who isn't might keep you from making a clear-cut decision. Wait until you know more about what you're being asked to decide.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Be careful to keep your emotions in check when dealing with a demanding personal situation. You need to set an example of strength for others to follow.



(c) 2008 King Features Synd., Inc.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have an extraordinary ability to rally people to do their best. You would be a treasure as a teacher.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Tops in Pops contest

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Students from Braintree, Duxbury, Norwell and North Quincy high schools are among the 20 performers selected for the Boston Pops' first-ever musical theater competition for Massachusetts high school students. The Boston Pops High School Sing-Off quarterfinalists will participate in the first live round of the competition on the stage of Symphony Hall on June 2, overseen by Boston Pops Conductor Keith Lockhart.

More than 200 students from 120 towns throughout Massachusetts, from Martha's Vineyard to the Berkshires, sent in audition tapes for the chance to sing with the Boston Pops, conducted by Keith Lockhart, on the Fourth of July on Boston's Charles River Esplanade.

Singing out from the South Shore will be soloists Caroline Cronin, 16, from Norwell, who

In addition, three Braintree High School students, Adam Randall, 17, Meghan Ryan, 15, and Michael Ryan, 17 joined with Brianna Shetler, 15, and Kirsten Shetler, 17, students at North Quincy High School, to sing "One Day More" from "Les Misérables," for the audition tape that gained them each a spot in the quarterfinals.

Six semi-finalists will be selected from the group of 20 on stage at Symphony Hall on June 2. Those six will perform in two groups of three during Boston Pops concerts at Symphony Hall on June 17 and 18, at 8 p.m. One performer from each group will then move on to the finals, which will take place at a Pops concert at Symphony Hall on July 1, at which time a winner will be selected. The winner of the High School Sing-Off will then perform on the Boston Pops Fourth of July Fireworks Spectacular with Keith Lockhart and the Boston Pops on the Charles River Esplanade on July 3 and 4.

Spotlight shines brightly on Pembroke

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Pembroke High School has been nominated for seven North Shore Music Theatre (NSMT) Spotlight Awards. The awards, modeled after Broadway's Tony Awards, recognize excellence in musical theater among high school students and teachers. This year's program involves 24 high schools and over 1,000 students, and will culminate in an awards ceremony on June 2 on the NSMT main stage in Beverly.

"North Shore Music Theatre is committed to education and to the art of musical theater, and the Spotlight Awards program is a unique opportunity for us to reach into local communities and recognize the brightest stars of high school musical theater," said Barry Ivan, NSMT's Artistic Director and Executive Producer, in a prepared statement. "The awards have become a wonderful and exciting tradition at NSMT and a perfect way to celebrate and showcase the immense talent and enthusiasm of all the students and teachers."

Fifteen awards will be presented, including Best Leading Actor/Actress, Best Supporting Actor/Actress, Best Featured Performer, Best Ensemble/Chorus, Best Direction, Best Musical Direction, Best Choreography, Best Orchestra, Best Technical Crew/Execution, Best Scenic Design, Best Costume Design, Best Lighting Design, and the evening's final award for Best Musical.

Pembroke High School's production of "Once on This Island" has been nominated for Best Direction (Marcie Clough), Best Choreography (Marcie Clough), Best Lighting Design (Drew Hebert), Best Supporting Actress (Sarah Long as Erzulie), Best Featured Performer (Jordan Ennis as Ti Moune), Best Technical Crew and Execution, and Best Musical.

"North Shore Music Theatre's Spotlight Awards are an inspiration for young performers," said Joyce Kulhawik, former WBZ-TV arts and entertainment reporter and host of the 2007 ceremony, in a prepared statement. "It is an honor to be in the presence of all that young talent on one stage for one magical night."

Although budget cuts led to her recent departure from WBZ-TV, Kulhawik will be returning as a presenter for this year's ceremony, where she will be joined by this year's hosts, David Nathan Perlow and Addi McDaniel, best known to NSMT audiences as Troy Bolton and Gabriella Montez from the theater's 2007 production of "Disney's High School Musical." Other presenters will include NSMT's Artistic Director Emeritus Jon Kimbell, State Representative Mary Grant, Beverly Mayor William Scanlon, Massachusetts Film Office Executive Director Nick Paleologos, and cast members from NSMT's upcoming production of "Contact."

According to Ivan, strong interest and participation in the NSMT Spotlight Awards program has made for a lasting bond with local communities. "The awards are an opportunity to applaud students and high schools from all over Massachusetts and New Hampshire for their dedication, hard work, and passion. These students are our future and as theater educators and enthusiasts, it is our privilege to honor them and encourage their growth."

The ceremony will include an opening number showcasing two students from each of the participating schools. In addition, musical numbers from each of the 10 productions nominated for Best Musical will be performed throughout the ceremony, including a scene from Pembroke High School's production of "Once on This Island." In addition to Pembroke High School, the following schools will be represented: Andover High School, Beverly High School, Bishop-Fenwick High School, Coe-Brown Northwood Academy, Danvers High School, Dracut High School, Framingham High School, Ipswich High School, Lynnfield High School, Marblehead High School, Masconomet High School, Natick High School, Newburyport High School, Pentucket Regional High School, Pope John XXIII High School, Reading Memorial High School, Salem High School (MA), Salem High School (NH), St. Thomas Aquinas High School, The Governor's Academy, Tyngsborough High School, Westford Academy, and Silver Lake Regional High School in Kingston.

The Spotlight Awards will take place at the North Shore Music Theatre, 62 Dunham Road (Route 128, Exit 19), Beverly, on June 2. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 978-232-7200 or go online at nsmt.org.

Diploma day is Saturday

79 CHS seniors to graduate

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Cohasset Public Schools will send another class on their way to the world beyond the town's outer limits this Saturday. Decked out in blue and white, a total of 79 students cross the stage at the South Shore Music Circus stage to be handed their diplomas.

With cameras and proud smiles, parents and family members will certainly be on hand to cheer on the graduates as they pass this milestone. Commencement exercises will begin at 1:30p.m., Saturday, under the green and yellow big top. Members of the administration, as well as valedictorian Sarah Brown, salutatorian Alexandra Laas and class president, Kenny Muir, will address the Class of 2008 with a few inspiring words.

"We're a tight knit group of kids," said Kenny Muir, President of the Class of 2008. With such a small class, the majority of whom have been together since kindergarten, he says the group has bonded immensely.

Valedictorian Sarah Brown says the fact the class is so tiny, even by Cohasset standards, has made for close friendships and a friendly atmosphere.

"Everybody has been together forever and we all get along," said Brown,

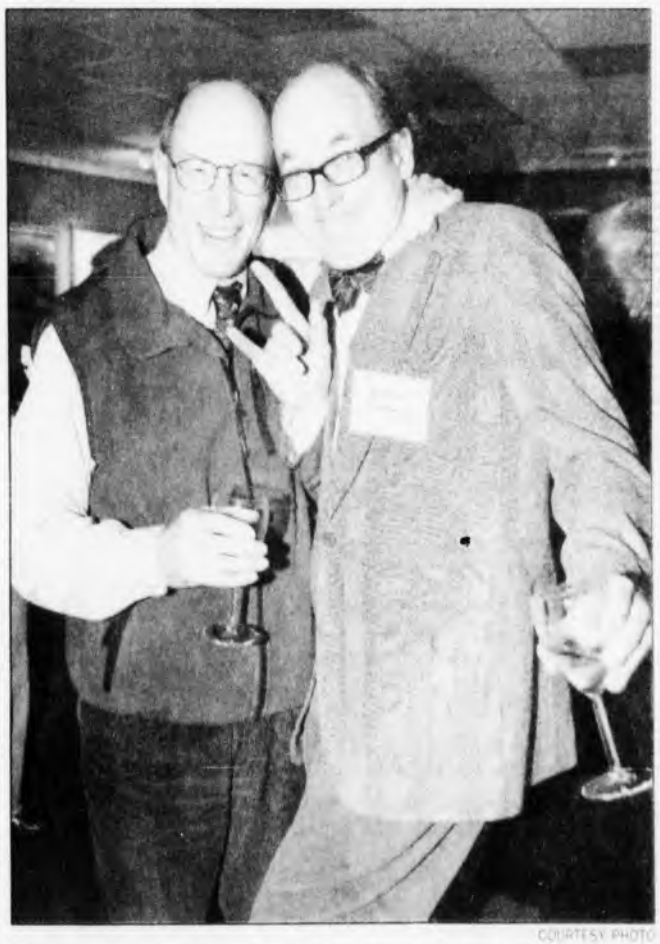
Award winning artists enjoy creative camaraderie

53rd annual Festival starts June 13

By Bonnie Jernigan
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER



A good-natured rivalry continues within the local fraternity of notable painters.

Michael Weymouth won first prize for oil and acrylics in the South Shore Art Center's prestigious juried exhibition, and his pal Vcevy Strekalovsky placed second. On the other hand, Strekalovsky had three paintings accepted into the highly selective show. This year, more than 400 works were entered, and only 94 were chosen to be exhibited in the big white tent on Cohasset Common — the centerpiece of South Shore Art Center's annual arts festival, held every Father's Day weekend.

Weymouth and Strekalovsky, both Hingham residents, have each become serious painters after first establishing themselves in another profession. Strekalovsky is an architect, and Weymouth founded and developed a Boston design agency with an international client base. The two men are longtime friends who enjoy a back-and-forth game of facetious one-upmanship. Two years ago they showed together in a gallery exhibit titled "45 Years Later," celebrating their newfound pursuit of painting.

While a gallery show was satisfying, Weymouth and Strekalovsky say they enjoy the broader crowd appeal of the festival.

Market troubles are delaying Cedarmere

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

The slow housing market and the challenges of building on ledge-filled Cohasset are the primary reasons there has been no action on the Cedarmere property off Route 3A.

The developers for the Cedarmere site, which is currently approved to build 104 housing units designated for seniors on the 41-acre site, came before the Planning Board Monday night to offer an update. There has been little to no action on the site for over a year.

Mahmood Malihi representing Leggat McCall, the developer of the site, explained they have explored different options in order to make the project feasible in the current economic conditions, but none work. They have looked at pursuing a cluster development approach versus sticking with the age-restriction development, "in either case given the current market conditions, neither works," said Malihi.

"We as a town have an interest to see things move forward," said Planning Board Vice Chairman Stuart Ivimey, adding it would be disappointing to see the affordability element changed. "The town has made some decisions thinking the affordable units (would be coming online.)"

Cedarmere has plans for 27 units of affordable ownership housing.

But, when exactly Cedarmere construction will begin in earnest is up in the air.

"A combination of the ledge and sewer makes the upfront infrastructure cost much higher than a flat site," said Malihi. Although the developers said they knew of the site's inherent challenges going into the project, the market conditions have changed considerably since the project received a special permit in January 2004. If built as approved, the project would be the first under the town's Senior Overlay District bylaw.

"When the market tells us, we will come forward," said Malihi. Some preliminary site work has been done, but the developers' best guess it is only about 10 percent complete. Malihi said the site has been stabilized for safety reasons, but if there were concerns they would deal with them.

When the market will rebound is anybody's guess and the Cedarmere developers weren't ready to predict when they could resume building.

"If you asked me last fall, I would have said in about six months (the market) would pick up," said Marty Standiford of ING Clarion, a partner in the development. "I was confident in saying in May or June we'd be coming before you saying we're ready to begin… at this point I'm a little gun shy about making predictions."

Standiford said the Boston-area is better off than other parts of the country, "it's not all doom and gloom."

While the developers wait to see what will happen with the real estate market over the next six months, Ivimey suggested additional screening be installed for the abutters, "it's clear it could be some time (before construction begins)."

The Board suggested additional screening be installed for the abutting houses on Beechwood Street. "It would go a long way to generate some good will with the abutters."

The Planning Board members were grateful to have an update from the Cedarmere developers.

"People ask us questions, everybody wants to know what's going on," said Planning Board Chairman Al Moore. The Planning Board requested the Cedarmere developers come before them quarterly to give an update even if the message is still the same.

Barrow charged in fatal accident

Arraigned on charges Thursday

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Christopher Barrow, the driver of the car that crashed taking the life of 16-year-old Timothy Mahoney of Scituate, has been arraigned on charges of motor vehicle homicide by negligent operation as well as five other misdemeanor charges relating to the fatal accident.

The car accident happened shortly before 1a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 2, on Route 3A near Pond Street in Cohasset. Barrow suffered serious injuries in the accident and is now paralyzed.

Barrow, 18 years-old and a Scituate High student, faces six charges: motor vehicle homicide by negligent operation, negligent operation of a motor vehicle, speeding, failure to wear a seatbelt, minor in possession of alcohol and minor transporting alcohol.

A probable cause hearing held two weeks ago where Barrow's attorney Robert Jubinville waived his client's right to a hearing. Phone calls to Jubinville's Milton office were not immediately answered.

Barrow's arraignment was scheduled at the Quincy District Court on Thursday morning and a further court date was set for July 30.

Although there was evidence of alcohol found at the accident scene, Barrow is not being charged with operating under the influence. Because the blood alcohol test results were not used as supportive evidence for a charge, David Traub, spokesman for the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office said he could not release the results.

The maximum sentence for the misdemeanor charge of vehicle homicide is imprisonment for 30 days to two and one-half years or a fine of $300 to $3,000, or both.

When a defendant is convicted of motor vehicle homicide, either the felony or the misdemeanor, his driver's license is revoked for a period of 10 years; upon a subsequent conviction, it is revoked for life.

POLICE BEAT

Cyclist injured in fall at crossing

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Last Friday a man riding a bicycle fell at the North Main Street grade crossing injuring his arm. The MBTA was contacted and the incoming train was stopped.

The incident that occurred at 2:16 p.m. is one in a series of mishaps involving bicycles at that grade crossing where the tracks cross North Main Street at about a 45-degree angle and can trap the bike's front tire.

The MBTA has posted signs warning cyclists to walk their bikes across the tracks. There are plans to create a path encouraging cyclists to swing to the right where they will cross the tracks at a 90-degree angle. Warning marks alerting cyclists could also be painted on the road itself, Chief James Hussey said.

"Until these changes happen we will continue to see these accidents," Hussey said.

The man involved in this accident was transported to the hospital.

Stolen car

A 2002 gray Nissan Maxima stolen from a Cohasset residence last week was located in Hull. Earlier, Weymouth police located some items that belonged to the car's owner in their town. The theft is under investigation.

Evaluation

Last Wednesday (May 28) a car backed into another vehicle in the Stop & Shop parking lot as the operator, an elderly woman, was trying to park.

Those who witnessed the accident expressed concern to police about the woman's ability to drive. The woman, who apparently did not realize she had hit another car, drove away. However, police were able to get a plate number. Based on witness information, police have asked the registry to do a medical evaluation to determine if the woman, who is in her 80s, should be driving, Chief Hussey said.

Baseball

A homeowner notified police after finding a baseball lodged between the window and the indoor shutter. The baseball smashed the window into the living room sometime overnight May 25 between 10 p.m. and 6 a.m. The Rustic Drive resident notified police on Monday (May 26). Police are processing the baseball as evidence. They do not think the vandalism involved kids throwing a ball around because of the time it occurred. "We are investigating to determine who might be responsible," Chief Hussey said.

Gas theft

Police believe that someone tried to steal gas from the tank of a car parked in the Town Parking Lot on Thursday (May 29) around 10 p.m. The caller reported when he returned to his car someone had cut a hole in the gas tank and gas was covering the ground around the car and there was gas in a plastic container under the car.

"We are not sure if this subject was scared off and did not finish what he started," Hussey said. He explained the car had close to a full tank and most of the gas ended up spilling on the ground.

The fire department helped with the cleanup and the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) was called.

Chief Hussey said in the 70s it was not uncommon for thieves to siphon gasoline from cars.

"This is the first I have heard of drilling a hole to get gasoline but I understand it has happened in other towns," he said.

Rolled back

A woman parked in the driveway, got out, and did not put the vehicle in park so it rolled back and struck her. The vehicle came to rest next to some shrubs. The woman was knocked to the ground and had minor injuries. The incident occurred at about 11:45 p.m. on Friday (May 30) on Flintlocke Ridge Road.

Pedestrian hit

A motorist who was backing out of a space at Shaw's struck a pedestrian who was walking behind and knocked him to the ground. The man who was hit is elderly and lives in Scituate. The driver is a man in his 50s from Hull. The Scituate man was transported with non-life threatening injuries, Chief Hussey said. The accident occurred at 10:10 a.m. on Sunday (June 1). The accident is still under review. At this time the Hull man, who said he did not see the pedestrian, has not been cited.

Reservoir report

Chief Hussey said police would be patrolling the reservoir off Aaron River Road where groups of young people have been partying. Police are running the plates and tagging the cars, which are illegally parked, but the teens disperse and take off into the woods. There have been several reports in recent weeks about underage drinking in the wooded area. Last Tuesday (May 27) a caller reported a party at the reservoir at about 9:40 p.m.

Mail scam

A resident went to the police station last week to report a potential mail scam. Chief Hussey said the resident had received a letter with a check asking that the check be deposited and a personal check be sent to the person in the letter.

"The resident realized that this did not sound right and came in," Hussey said. Hussey said the matter is under investigation. Having the actual letter is very helpful, he said. "The physical evidence gives us something to work with," he said.

Planning Board to initiate Greenway workshop

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Preliminary plans are in the works to create a "South Shore Greenway" to connect five towns with bike paths that highlight points of interest in the towns. Roads and sites in Hull, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate and Norwell are involved in the project.

There are plenty of reasons to bike instead of drive. There's the physical benefit of the exercise. There's the benefit to the environment and lowering carbon emissions. And with gas prices averaging $4 a gallon and showing no sign of stopping, there's an economic benefit too.

But, in Cohasset, the winding roads and many sidewalkless narrow streets sometimes make biking dangerous. Preliminary plans are in the works to create a "South Shore Greenway" to connect five towns with bike paths that highlight points of interest in the towns. Roads and sites in Hull, Hingham, Cohasset, Scituate and Norwell are involved in the project.

Planning Board member Clark Brewer initiated a discussion to introduce the idea and gather input. He said a free walkable workshop put on by the metropolitan planning organization (MPO) was available and Cohasset could host it.

Sustainable South Shore has been heading up the project so far. Sustainable South Shore president Judeth Van Hamm came before the Selectmen to introduce the idea and request a contribution of $400 for the project. With the funds, students from the Conway School of Landscape Design drew up a preliminary design for the greenway.

Planning Board Chairman Al Moore was hesitant for Planning Board to be the entity to be the lead on the project. "I don't see it as the Planning Board's project."

While member Mike Westcott agreed it would be difficult for the Planning Board to lead on the multi-community project, "we should encourage it."

How the greenway would actually be delineated and what would be the design implications of the greenway were questions on the mind of the Planning Board.

Cohasset has already implemented pieces of the "greenway" through various infrastructure projects. Recent efforts include the completion of the Forest Avenue sidewalk and a bike path connection to Wompatuck State Park beginning across from the train station.

Generally speaking, the Cohasset portion of the South Shore Greenway begins at the bike path to Wompatuck State Park across from the train station then will connect with the to-be-built sidewalk on Route 3A and King Street then pedestrians could have the option to continue to the waterfront and Hull via Forest Avenue or down North Main Street to the Village. Sidewalk connection then can take pedestrians or bike riders to the harbor or down South Main Street to the Cohasset/Scituate town line.

"I think it's useful for us just to generate a response to the plans," said Brewer. "For the Cohasset portion, I think we should see what's being proposed and review it very carefully."

All seemed to agree looking at alternatives to driving and creating a means for more people to bike or walk safely was important.

"We've been talking about walking and biking to the train since it first tooted," said Vice Chairman Stuart Ivimey.

At the end of the discussion, the Planning Board was in support of hosting the workshop in the coming months because Cohasset was a central location for all towns involved.

'Tight knit' class graduating Saturday

Along with the graduating seniors, three retiring teachers will "graduate" with the Class of 2008: guidance counselor Ed Leonard, science department chair David Magnussen and English teacher Christine Berman.

Despite being few in number, the Class of 2008 is has plenty of heart, intelligence and talent — all attributes they put to good use during their time at Cohasset High School.

"They're a bright class," said Middle-High School Principal Joel Antolini. As an example, 100 percent of the students passed their MCAS on the first try. "It was an accomplishment for all of them."

Among the adjectives he uses to describe the Class of 2008 are conscientious and fun-loving.

The students have been a part of league championship and state championship teams. Across all athletic teams the students showed talent on the field or on the court, twice during their high school years the school was honored with the Boston Globe Ames Award, which is given to the school with the best overall winning varsity percentage in all the sports offered.

Antolini said there is a segment of the class talented in the arts, both performing and visual.

"We're a small group, but we have a diversity of interests. We're a well-rounded group of kids," said Muir.

Many of the students have achieved accolades individually. Two seniors were named to the All-American lacrosse team: Mark Flibotte and Charlie Czerkawski. Evan Deutsch was named a Henry David Thoreau scholar, Sarah Brown was given the Presidential award for academic excellence and Cameron Cope earned the Rensselaer award. Four members of the CHS Class of 2008 were awarded National Merit Commendations for scoring in the top fiver percent on their PSAT scores.

Muir names things the class was able to do together, like Spirit Week and the countdown to the end of the year, as some of his most memorable times at CHS.

"This class is a good group of kids and it's been a pleasure working with them," said Antolini.

Along with the graduating seniors, three retiring teachers will "graduate" with the Class of 2008: guidance counselor Ed Leonard, science department chair David Magnussen and English teacher Christine Berman.

Graduation means the students must say goodbye to lifelong friends and the safe harbors of Cohasset as they head off to colleges and elsewhere. But, Muir said his education and experience at Cohasset schools has left him and his classmates prepared for whatever comes next.

"Ever since kindergarten they kept on preparing us for the next level, so we're ready," said Muir.

The Class of 2008 commencement ceremonies will be held at the South Shore Music Circus on Sohier St. on Saturday, June 7 at 1:30p.m.

Coastal waters named no-discharge zone

By Brian P. Nanos
BNANOS@CNC.COM

Designating the coastal waters off Scituate, Marshfield and Cohasset as a No Discharge Area (NDA) is a big step in the right direction for the people involved.

To Scituate Harbormaster Mark Patterson, who was one of people who initiated the NDA application process, it is a step toward ensuring the quality of waterways near his town.

To Environmental Protection Agency Regional Administrator Bob Varney, it is a step closer to creating NDAs that stretch across the developed New England coast. According to Varney, the EPA expects to announce three more Massachusetts NDAs — in Salem Sound, Cape Cod Bay and Boston Harbor — by the end of July.

"We're working to achieve our goal: a continuous No Discharge Area from Portland, Maine, to New York," he said.

"I'm pleased that we're coming up with regional solutions to regional problems."

Bob Varney, Environmental Protection Agency regional administrator, speaks during Monday's press conference officially announcing the designation of the coastal waters off Scituate, Marshfield and Cohasset as a No Discharge Area.

To Samantha Woods, executive director of the North and South Rivers Watershed Association, the Marshfield-Scituate-Cohasset NDA is a step closer to leaving cleaner waters to future generations.

"I wouldn't be doing my job if I said we were finished," she said.

Patterson, Woods, and Varney — along with Massachusetts Office of Coastal Zone Management Director Leslie-Ann McGee, Marshfield Selectman Michael Maresco and Cohasset Selectman Karen Quigley — spoke Monday at a ceremony to officially announce the designation, which took effect May 23.

The ceremony was held outside the Scituate harbormaster's office, and Quigley joked that she would be the first person to break the rule if notes from her speech were blown into the harbor.

"I don't know if it counts as boat sewage, but if it goes in, I'll take the fine," she said.

In a No Discharge Area, all overboard discharge of boat sewage, even if treated, is prohibited. Vessel sewage must be discharged to a shoreside or mobile pumpout facility.

The Marshfield-Scituate-Cohasset NDA covers waters off the 17-mile coastline of all three towns and tidal areas of the North and South rivers. The three towns have been working since last summer to earn the designation. The application was officially turned in to the EPA in April 2007, and provided documentation indicating that the total vessel population in the proposed area is estimated at 3,000 — 1,363 of which are large enough to have a toilet on board.

To qualify for the designation, an applicant must show there are enough pumpout facilities to accommodate boats in the area. In approving the NDA designation, the EPA pointed out the towns have 10 pumpout facilities, with plans to add two more by the end of the year. Most of the facilities are connected directly into the local wastewater treatment system.

Many of the speeches made at Monday's ceremony focused on the fact that the designation was the result of the towns working together, taking a regional approach to clean water.

"I'm pleased that we're coming up with regional solutions to regional problems," Patterson said.

Wompatuck State Park, the English State Salt Marsh Wildlife Refuge/Management Area and the Weir River Area of Critical Environmental Concern (ACEC) are all located within the boundaries of the NDA, along with approximately eight marinas, five public boat ramps and more than a dozen beaches.

Both recreational and commercial shellfishermen use the area. There are 10 designated shellfish growing areas representing more than 49,500 acres of productive shellfish beds in the area supporting soft shell clams, blue mussels, razor clams, quahogs, bay scallops, oysters and surf clams.

The area also supports a commercial and recreational fishing fleet.

CRAZY WEEK

Hello Cohasset and how are you? This is the crazy, hectic but fun-filled time of the year for us all.

Graduations, end of preschool, parties and more make it a bit busier but so much fun. As parents, we are all so proud I know of all the accomplishments that our children have. Enjoy the time, take those deep breaths and let everyone know how proud we are!

I know that we are so proud, happy and yes, a bit sad that my oldest son, Daniel is graduating tonight from South Shore Votech and turning 18 all within one week.

Daniel, we are so proud of all that you have done and the dreams that have had that you can now follow.

Congratulations from all of your family and friends, you are headed into a wonderful time of the year.

Tomorrow is the day for CHS graduates of 2008 and I want to send all of you a giant bouquet of well wishes and congratulations, as you get ready to head into your next piece of your lives. Enjoy the celebrations in a safe, happy manner and enjoy the summer as you prepare for college and/or work. You all deserve the best as do all the graduates from preschool to college.

A 2003 graduate of Miss Porter's School, Carrie majored in Sociology at Smith. Her undergraduate activities included peer sex education, work with the Resource Center for Sexuality and Gender, and family diversity projects in Amherst, Mass. Her long-term goal is to become a family therapist.

Get your engines going

Bob Butman has had lifelong love for fixing motors

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Not many people say their lifelong passion began with a lawnmower found in a junkyard, but that's what just happened to Bob Butman.

He found the lawnmower in a pile of junk behind the former gas station on Depot Court. After asking for permission to take the lawnmower, he brought it home, took it a part and within two days had it running again.

That was his first brush with an engine, but certainly not his last.

"I've been around engines all my life," says Butman. "What makes them work is fascinating."

Engines (especially diesel), water and boats have defined the majority of 57-year old's life. With the exception of when he served in the Vietnam War, Butman has never lived outside of Cohasset or off his property at Spring Street. The property has been owned by his family for four generations.

STAFF PHOTOS/ROBIN CHAN

Bob Butman stands in the doorway of his workshop, which was built by his father when he was born 57 years ago.

It's at the Butman's Spring Street property where wooden lobster boats, pleasure boats and Cohasset's first steam tugboat were built. His family has seen the train come, go and come once again — right in their backyard.

Butman's father, Charles Butman Jr., was a capable woodcraftsman who learned his craft making wooden minesweepers during World War II at the Quincy Adams boatyard.

While his father was always the craftsman, Butman was always the go-to guy for mechanical malfunctions. Now, Butman who has spent the last decade of his career maintaining the engines of heavy construction machinery is trying to bring his skills closer to home by fixing engines, both big and small, in Cohasset and beyond.

Before he started fixing engines full-time, Butman was a lobsterman and a fisherman for nearly 40 years. Together with his father, Butman started lobstering when he was seven-years-old.

"My father said 'when you can swim you could start lobstering,'" says Butman. As the lobstering bounty began to trickle off, he and his father began dragger fishing for fin fish — cod, haddock, flounder — out of Scituate Harbor. Later, Butman started fishing out of the Boston Fish Pier on an 85-foot dragger boat named 'Captain Sam.'

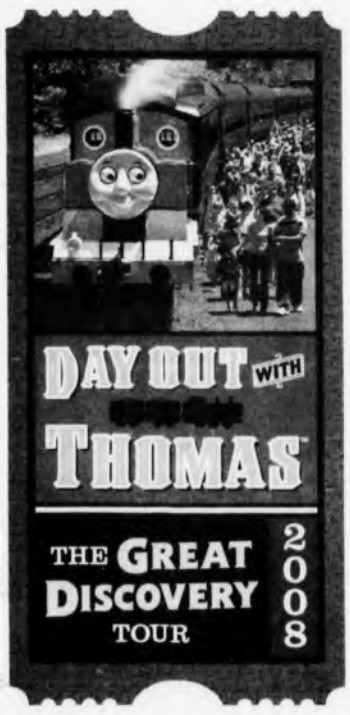
Before he started fixing engines full-time, Butman was a lobsterman and a fisherman for nearly 40 years.

All the while Butman did some of the maintenance on the boats' engines where his true passion was.

After deciding 40 years as a fisherman was enough, Butman got a job maintaining the commuter boat engines for the Boston Harbor Cruises. From there he did stints at various large construction firms keeping everything from backhoes to excavators to mining equipment running day in and day out.

Working on large engines and projects is when Butman is most in love with his job.

"The greasier he is the happier he is," attests his wife, Jody. She also says his time around engines has diminished his hearing, but he can still diagnose an engine's problem by the noise it is making.



Over the years, he has helped out Cohasset mariners both native and visiting. When the Coast Guard hired a New York based contractor to refurbish Minot Light and paint the inside staircase, the boat they were using was trailing black smoke wherever it went. He fixed the engine and the contractor was able to finish their work. Although Butman says the boat itself was worse than its motor.

In 2003, a Cohasset-based lobster boat "the Margie" owned by the Figueiredo family hit a rock usually covered, even at low tide. The boat had to be taken out of the water and Butman was called to fix the engine. The boat is still operating today.

As the MBTA commuter train chugs past his Spring Street house his eyes light up at the thought of getting greasy inside of the train's electric diesel engine.

If you have a engine that needs fixing, call Bob Butman at 781-383-0815.

"It is the biggest local arts event of the year," explains Weymouth.

"The juried show is selective, but there is fried dough and lobster rolls and music and things for kids to do," says Strekalovsky. He explains that having something for everyone, including people who don't typically spend time looking at art, makes the paintings and sculpture more accessible.

Strekalovsky believes some people find it helpful to have a way of connecting with art. Although he isn't a huge sports fan, he has chosen baseball as a subject for several recent paintings His second-place award winner, "Josh and Jason," shows Red Sox players Beckett and Varitek in conference.

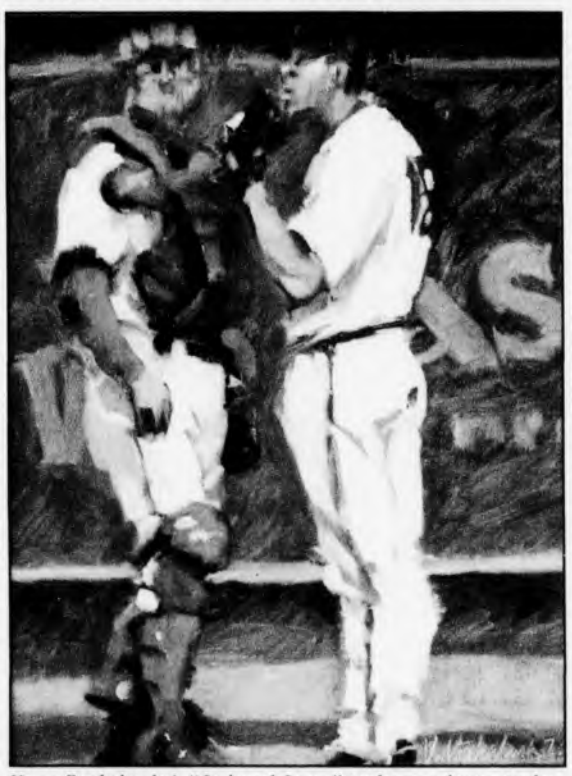
"There is an element of gesture that makes paintings come alive, and baseball is full of gesture and attitude," he says, explaining the artistic appeal. If the figure in the painting is familiar to a 13-year-old, and that leads him to look closely at a work of art, Strekalovsky is pleased.

Art was a part of Strekalovsky's own childhood; his grandfather, father and two uncles were painters, so picking up a brush came naturally. He studied art at Middlebury College before earning his master's degree in architecture from the University of Pennsylvania.

"I had to make a living," he says, and for decades he concentrated on designing homes and commercial buildings.

While Weymouth recalls his own rural Maine background as a "cultural wasteland," he remembers being singled out by grade school teachers for his artistic ability.

"But my last official art class was in the eighth grade," he says wistfully. "I didn't know that there were advertising agencies and creative directors and graphic designers. I thought you grew up and went to work as a game warden."



Nonetheless, Weymouth graduated from New England School of Art, and when he was 22 years old his painting of his grandfather was accepted into the Boston Arts Festival, judged by Robert Motherwell. He was recognized in the Boston press as an "up and coming" artist, but he soon left the world of fine arts to establish one of the country's top-ranked graphic design firms. His skill as a conceptual photographer and his work for corporate clients has taken him around the world.

COURTESY PHOTOS

In recent years, however, Weymouth has begun to pull away from all of that. He spends most days painting in the studio he built beside his home. He says that he had completed only about 10 paintings, "between kids and responsibilities," in the 30 years before he built his studio.

Vcevy Strekalovsky's "Josh and Jason" took second prize in the oil and acrylics category.

"But I didn't have to paint every week to mature as a painter," he adds. As I matured in a creative profession, I was maturing as a painter."

For several summers, Weymouth has made a painting pilgrimage to Great Spruce Head Island in Maine's Penobscot Bay. The island belonged to the family of artists Fairfield and Eliot Porter, and Weymouth painted Peggy as she sat in the wheelbarrow Fairfield Porter used to carry his paints.

Strekalovsky's paintings sometimes have stories too. His office is across the street from Caffé Tosca, and as he gazed out the window one lovely afternoon, he was captivated by the scene of bistro umbrellas and outdoor diners.

"I love to paint figures in relationship to the spaces around them," he explains. "So I asked the hostess if I could sit down to paint."

Perhaps because Strekalovsky paints in a more spontaneous style, he is able to remain involved with his architecture practice, even as he takes a more serious approach to his easel.

"Of course Vcevy has more work accepted in the show," says Weymouth. "He paints faster."

Future dawns for Class of 2008

Graduation day is here.

Graduation day is the culmination, the pinnacle, of hundreds of childhood school days.

This is the day our seniors have been striving toward since they first dabbled in finger paints in preschool.

As toddlers, as they smeared aimless daubs of color over the paper, splotches that might have represented a flower, a puppy, or a space ship. The little students were beginning to create a design for their education.

Years passed, skills developed.

Not everyone emerged as a gifted artist, yet as the years passed, the Class of 2008 distinguished itself with a rainbow of achievements.

Everyone has his or her own talent. Everyone has his or her own dream.

Each senior will call on his or her talents and dreams and all the accumulated learning that coveted diploma represents to enter the future.

In many ways, the world is more challenging and dangerous than ever before.

Our graduating seniors face frontiers the world has never yet encountered: global warming; the destruction of the rain forests that generate much of our air; the wiping out of some species of animals and the threatened extinction of others; taking diminishing oil out of the energy equation; saving the ocean that nurtures the first link in the food chain; diseases such as AIDS, cancer, Avian flu, a feared global pandemic; genetic research… the list trails off into an uncharted tomorrow.

There is the old joke urging commencement speakers not to frighten the graduates by telling them that the world is theirs, but the world is theirs.

We are confident that the Class of 2008 is up to the challenge.

H.G. Wells once said that the future is "the shape of things to come."

Each senior has the future in his or her hands, a future to shape much in the same way a skillful artist sculpts raw clay into a masterpiece.

This is the dawn of the future of the Class of 2008.

This is the dawn of the future of our world.

Congratulations, Class of 2008.

Great job.

And good luck!

Buddy Poppies celebrate, help veterans

TO THE EDITOR:

The Cohasset VFW Post 9146 would like to thank everyone who assisted our local efforts with their very generous donations and their support of all Veterans by displaying a "Buddy Poppy".

For more than 75 years, the Veterans of Foreign Wars' "Buddy Poppy" Program has raised millions of dollars in support of veterans' welfare and the well being of their dependants.

From its inception, the "Buddy Poppy" Program has helped the VFW live up to its motto, "to honor the dead by helping the living."

The "Buddy Poppy" — a small red flower symbolic of the bloodshed in World War I by millions of Allied soldiers in defense of freedom — was originally sold to provide relief for the people of war-devastated France. Later, its sale directly benefited thousands of disabled and down-and-out American veterans.

Disabled, needy and aging veterans in VA Hospitals and domiciliary across the country assemble VFW Buddy Poppies. The name just "grew" out of the disabled poppy makers' remembrances of their "buddies who never came back" from war. The little red flower became known as the "Buddy Poppy."

These Cohasset businesses were especially helpful and supportive: Shaw's, Stop & Shop, Goodwin Graphics, Curtis Liquors, Cohasset Pizza, Leo's Exxon and Dragonfly Embroidery.

We would also like to thank and recognize the following volunteers who gave so generously of their time: the "80Club:" Louie Longo, Gordon Flint, Ralph Hill, Marie & Ralph Perroncello, Grace Tuckerman, Kevin McArdle, George Haley, Tony Muzzi, Betty Brooks, Tom Healy; also helping were James Lagotteria, Paul St John, Dr. Joe Godzik, Bill Higgins, Brad Goodwin, Kathy Bailey, Joe McElroy, Gareth & Joslin Thomas and Ron Goodwin. Long-time volunteers Bud Ahern, Cliff Jones, Ira & Peg Stoughton, Emilio Conte and Whitey Dunn were unable to help this year and we hope they will all be in better health next year, as their efforts were missed.

Thank you again to everyone for their support and appreciation of our Veterans.

Turkey fails to master riding the train

TO THE EDITOR:

On a recent morning I was surprised to discover, along with all of the other commuters awaiting the 7:17 train to Boston, a recently deceased wild tom turkey lying on the platform. One woman commented that he probably didn't stay behind the yellow line as a train approached. My guess is that he was sleeping on the track bed and was hit as he took flight. Though they are often seen in flocks, I didn't see any other such birds nearby. Perhaps they learned a painful lesson about the consequences of trespassing on the MBTA's right-of-way.

Reflections on the Rusty Skippers

COMMENTARY

BETTS MURRAY

In this season filled with many emotional and often momentous events, such as graduations, reunions, festivals, holidays and the like, I often find myself taking stock of my life, and being sentimental. At last night's Rusty Skipper rehearsal, as the music filled the room, several times I wanted to cry with happiness and appreciation for being part of such a wonderful group. I felt prompted to submit something to the Mariner about something very special we have here in one truly community band.

The Rusty Skippers Band made its debut in 1995 as part of the Cohasset Harborfest, at the enthusiastic suggestion of the late Rev. Ed Atkinson of First Parish in Cohasset. Fourteen adults marched in the parade that first year, and we were a ragtag group. Despite Rev. Atkinson's sudden death that summer, or perhaps in his honor, the band continued, and since 1996, the Rusty Skippers Band has grown steadily, in numbers of musicians and performances, as well as in scope and difficulty of music and quality of musicianship. Yet we remain a quintessential community band. Membership is open to any instrumental player of high school age and up. While many are from Cohasset, band members come from several other towns of the South Shore. Currently we have about 40 musicians in the band. FORTY! Thanks to the generosity of our director, Steve Biagini, who donates his time and expertise, we practice weekly for much of the year at Deer Hill School, where Steve is the director of instrumental music.

One of the distinctive features of the band is the varied professional and vocational background of its members, including a Cohasset postal worker, regional bank CEO and president, Stop & Shop clerk, a few lawyers, retired and current teachers, a data analyst, one minister, full-time mothers, service station owner, hospital administrator, timber investment manager and so on. The current age range is high school to 80-something. Although individuals may fret about their ability, the band remains a warm and welcoming organization, where politics, competition and other stresses stay outside the practice room. We simply love to play. If you have not heard the band lately, I dare say you will be impressed by the music we make. While we started as a marching band, and you may have heard the Band at Paving preparation and paving!

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Greenbush – The MBTA and CBB continue work on Cohasset's list of open items. Most recently they have completed the new section of sidewalk on Depot Court opposite the South Shore Art Center. This small section was a bit difficult for us to get since we had to through the Dispute Resolution process to get the MBTA to agree to build it. We now have a safe pedestrian path from the Boys of Summer food stand to the main portion of the Village. We believe this to be a very necessary and worthwhile addition to the Town. CBB continues to be very helpful in completing most of the remaining items.

Little Harbor Water Sewer Drainage Project – The Contractor, LM Holdings, LLC, (LMH) has released a new short-term look-ahead schedule. And, we'd like to call your attention to a very important new task that will be undertaken by LMH around the end of this month – paving preparation and paving! This means the end of the dust is in sight for some roads. Which ones you ask? … Whitehead Road, Deep Run and Rust Way, for example. The work preparing these roads for paving should start around the end of June and, weather permitting should be complete by the end of July.

Whitehead Road has been a special case because it is such a small, winding and long (nearly a half mile) road. The work necessitated by the project has widened the road a bit in some places. We have gotten some feedback that some residents want to keep the small "country lane" feel that the road had pre-construction. To make sure that the paving work is done to meet the expectations of the residents the Cohasset Water Department is hosting a meeting for the Whitehead Road residents at the Water Plant on King Street at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday, June 19th. In preparation for this meeting we have had the Fire Chief and the DPW review the road from one end to the other. Their input is critical to assure the safety of the residents as the final road configuration is determined.

Fire Chief Robert Silvia inspects Whitehead Road.

The DPW is concerned about their ability to get snowplows down the road and that they can safely remove the snow from the road. The Fire Chief has a similar concern. He needs to make sure that he is able to maneuver his large trucks the entire length of the road to fight a fire at any of the homes. And, of course, the larger the home, the more equipment required to fight a serious fire. The accompanying photo shows the Fire Chief examining a portion of the road.

Short Term Project Schedule – As mentioned above a new short-term schedule has been submitted by LMH. We offer it here for your reading enjoyment. As always, all schedules are approximate and are subject to weather delays and unforeseen events.

Disputes over dog custody

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

The last time a dog was featured in this space, we were trying to decide whether to get our dog, Jedi, a $14.95 At Home Doggy & Kittycat Daycare DVD for Christmas.

Then, if we went out for any length of time, we could just pop it in the TV and Jedi could watch the Puppy Cup, a soccer match with two teams of Yorkshire puppies.

I thought that was pretty far out.

But now I learn that the big issue is no longer puppy-sitting, it's who gets custody of the dog when two dog lovers, one male and one female, break up their happy living arrangement.

A survey by the American Academy of Matrimonial Lawyers — geez, there's an association for everybody, isn't there! — reported a 25 per cent increase in pet custody cases, nine out of 10 of them dogs.

It's such a big issue that it calls for a new book, "We Can't Stay Together for the Dogs: Doing the Best for Your Dog When Your Relationship Breaks Up."

In it, author Jennifer Keene explains what to do if your prenuptial agreement didn't include the dog along with the house, the children, the bank account, and the Patriots tickets.

Usually pet custody cases are settled fairly amicably early in the game, but sometimes it goes to court, where there is a "best interest of the children" standard but no "best interest of the dog."

Keene discovered that there was no guide to determining the best interest of the dog when she split from her husband, taking with her Moxee, an Australian cattle dog, and her ex taking Sixxy, a pointer.

Fortunately, Moxee and Sixxy, while they were friendly, were not strongly bonded enough to create problems by splitting up, leading Keene to advise: "Consider the individual characteristics of the dog."

As for custody, her advice is eerily similar to that a child specialist would give to Ma and Pa as they broke the bands of holy matrimony and parenthood:

Never give the dog to someone who likes the idea but doesn't have time to see to it or has anger problems or likes to do the fun things with Fido but doesn't like to clean up afterward.

Amelia Glynn, who writes a pet column for the San Francisco Chronicle's dot-com, even worked out a shared custody arrangement with her boyfriend when they split up.

"It's just not weird," she told USA Today. Oh, yeah.

I don't know about you, but I rank it right up there with the $349 cell phone called Petcell or the $50 aromatherapy bath with a $29 terry cloth robe we were thinking of getting for Jedi last Christmas.

Or the "22-carat, gold-plated IDs, aromatherapy cost spritzes, hand-painted ceramic dinnerware, quilted travel mats, and Burbery pet raincoats" that are available for VIP (Very Important Pooches) at the Ritz Carlton in Manhattan.

And, oh, yes, Jedi is no longer our family dog. She's our companion.

Go for your dreams!

DRIVING WHILE TYPING

JOHN LENGYEL

In the event I do get the call this Saturday I have the following commencement speech primed and ready to go.

I have lived in Cohasset for eight years, and in all that time no one has asked me to speak at the high school commencement ceremony. While this is disappointing to some of us, I intend to take the high road and not openly criticize this year's chosen speaker. That said, I think we'd all agree privately that Father Mulvehill is not the snappiest dresser and tends to lace his speeches with a lot of overly religious imagery.

In the event I do get the call this Saturday I have the following commencement speech primed and ready to go.

For 12 years you've been crammed into a brick building with hundreds of volatile people who couldn't stand to be there. This experience has convinced you that everyone is cranky, the world is insane and that life is a series of private torments and public humiliations, with orthodontist appointments providing the only regular relief. You are dying to get out of here and frankly I don't blame you, so I'll be brief.

With the compulsory part of your education over we can finally let you in on a secret. To this point the only useful thing you've learned is how to learn. That was the one purpose of all those classes, projects, and tests. The whole thing was staged, like Capricorn One. We didn't tell you until today because we knew you'd kill us. None of the information you've memorized about crayfish mandibles and Euclidean geometry will be of any help to you going forward except during games of Trivial Pursuit. Please put those awful things out of your minds now and focus on getting enough sleep.

Yes, that's it. To be happy and successful between today and your 10-year reunion all you need are sleep, and the ability to learn in two situations. The first is when you accidentally stumble onto something interesting, and the second is after you make your latest idiotic mistake.

I can't predict what will be interesting to you — we all have different tastes. Some people love crayfish mandibles and I say more power to them, because crayfish could use all the lovin' they can get. But I can pass along some common lessons I learned the hard way in hopes they'll save you a headache or two.

The first thing you should never do is follow your girlfriend to Seattle, especially when she isn't all that interested in you to begin with. Seattle will not increase her level of interest. In fact the weather in the Pacific Northwest is famous for decreasing people's interest in everything from sunlight to life itself. Ten minutes after arriving there I was ready to jump in front of a bus, but it was raining so hard I was forced to stay inside until I left the state about 18 months later.

During that time I made another mistake you should avoid. I was living alone in a small rented cabin and, like most single guys, fried myself a hamburger every evening. I knew enough not to pour the melted beef fat down the sink drain but I didn't know what I was supposed to do with it. So I would crank open my kitchen window and pour the hot grease onto a shrub. Plants don't thrive under those conditions, and degreasing a shrub is much trickier than you'd think. Liposuction isn't an option with bushes. Eventually I had to buy my landlord another shrub and burned the first one in my wood stove. That thing went up like a truck tire soaked in gasoline.

Never attempt to ride a bike while intoxicated, no matter how skilled you are at riding a bike. It will not work. The bike will fall over because you are laughing.

Here's something I did correctly that I'll pass along. Always buy a car with a manual transmission. This way when you run out of gas within sight of a Shell station just over a small hill you can put the car in gear, turn the key and actually drive the car on battery power using the starter motor.

A related lesson just occurred to me. If you invent something as important as the first gas/electric hybrid car, try to recognize it in time to patent the idea and reap untold millions of dollars for you and your descendants, rather than just fill up with gas and continue on to Seattle.

John Lengyel lives in Cohasset, where every day he reaches for the stars. Then he touches his toes. It's kind of a rush.

HEALTH NOTES

The sneezing season is upon us

It's spring and your nose takes a maulin'.
From an illness you think you're a fallin'.
Your breath makes a wheese
Like a roomful of bees
It's pollin my dahlin', it's pollen.

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

Every year, thousands of people suffer from allergies, a condition known as seasonal allergic rhinitis. Most allergy sufferers attribute their discomfort to plant pollen; however not all pollen causes seasonal reactions and no steadfast rule exists as to what plants are producers of allergens. Sometimes, it's not the obvious plant causing the allergic reaction. Thus, when ragweed pollen is dispersed, many people have a reaction, but since they don't see the tiny flowers on the ragweed, they assume it's the pollen from the larger flowered goldenrod, which blooms at the same time.

Allergy suffers often consider that wind pollinated plants which produce huge amounts of small, very fine pollen to cause the greatest problem. Probably not so, since plants like pines and true grasses depend on wind for pollination and produce great amounts of waxy-coated pollen, but they do not stimulate a reaction. Plants with colorful or fragrant flowers, usually insect pollinated, are considered "safe" non-allergenic plants because they produce their large, heavy pollen grains in relatively small amounts. The pollen is covered with a sticky substance and is not usually carried by wind. Some insect-pollinated plants do, however, produce pollen in amounts large enough to cause allergic reactions, such as Russian Olives and Willows.

Plant pollens are not the only allergens causing severe reactions. Many molds and mildews are a large source of spores that affect people all year round. Other factors, such as air pollution and dry windy conditions, accentuate allergic reactions. The individual's environment also influences hypersensitivity to allergens (substances causing a reaction) — the greater the exposure, the greater incidence and degree of illness.

To avoid acute allergy problems in the home, individuals suffering from allergies can make informed decisions about plant materials least likely to cause attack, choosing "safe" plants that have large or sticky pollen grains not likely to be transported by wind and female cultivars which do not produce pollen at all. Keeping grasses mowed to appropriate heights decreases their pollen production. Weeds, molds and mildews should also be controlled. If there is an existing pollen problem in your landscape, replace that plant with a less allergenic selection.

To avoid acute allergy problems in the home, individuals suffering from allergies can make informed decisions about plant materials least likely to cause attack...

Asthma can be broken down into two groups based on the causes of an attack: extrinsic (allergic) and intrinsic (nonallergic). Most people with asthma do not fall neatly into either type, but somewhere in between, displaying characteristics of both classifications. Extrinsic asthma has a known cause, such as allergies to dust mites, various pollens, grass, weeds or pet dander. Individuals with extrinsic asthma produce an excess amount of antibodies when exposed to triggers. Intrinsic asthma has a known cause, but the connection between the cause and the symptoms is not clearly understood. There is no antibody hypersensitivity in intrinsic asthma. Intrinsic asthma usually starts in adulthood without a strong family history of asthma. Some of the known triggers of intrinsic asthma are infections, such as cold and flu viruses, exercise and cold air, industrial and occupational pollutants, food additives and preservatives, drugs such as aspirin, and emotional stress. Asthma is more common in children than in adults, with nearly 1 of every 13 school-age children having asthma. Taken from Diane Relf, 1996 National Agricultural Data Base

We all face a variety of risks to our health as we go about our day-to-day lives. However, indoor air pollution and exposure to hazardous substances in the home are risks we can do something about. In the last several years, a growing body of scientific evidence has indicated that the air within homes and other buildings can be more seriously polluted than the outdoor air in even the largest and most industrialized areas. Since studies indicate that people spend approximately 90 percent of their time indoors, for many people, the risks to health from exposure to indoor air pollution may be greater than risks outdoors.

Although pollen allergies can be bothersome, asthmatic responses to pollutants can be life threatening. Asthma is a chronic disease of the airways that causes recurrent and distressing episodes of wheezing, breathlessness, chest tightness, and coughing. Other indoor environmental asthma triggers include rodents, cockroaches, mites and mold. Humid homes have more mites and, subsequently, more allergens. Also, vacuuming and dusting can disturb fecal pellets deposited and be inhaled.

If your condition becomes intolerable, call your doctor or see the BoH nurse, Mary Goodwin.

DTC to host movie night

Cohasset Democratic Town Committee continues its educational and informational objectives with movie night several times throughout the year on topics of local and national interest. At the next movie night, 7 p.m., on Thursday, June 12, the documentary, "Time Bomb, America's Debt Crisis: Causes, Consequences and Solutions" will be presented. The movie will be shown at Paul Pratt Library, 35 Ripley Road, Cohasset.

"Time Bomb" is a new documentary that puts the spotlight on America's national debt and the fact that leaders are risking the country's economic future through shortsighted fiscal policies. "Time Bomb" shows why the assets of all Americans are at risk and why Democracy itself is threatened. In this documentary an array of economic experts, activists, statesmen and business executives show why that threat is more real to the nation than most of us have imagined.

This event is free and open to the public. Refreshments will be served. Attendees are encouraged to bring food donations for Cohasset Food Pantry.

Truly touched by a beautiful gift

This beautiful refectory table made in shop classes at the high school was presented to Steve Bobo as a gift.

The High School Public Service program taught by Jack Buckley for which I have been working with three students, Mike Grim, Sam Roth, both seniors, and Tom Lemaire, a junior, has taken some consolidating steps. The boys are proficient in woodworking and are now applying that to boatbuilding, which is my hobby. Initially, we were helping Mike McNabb, a master boatwright and artist, in restoring a World War II Coast Guard surfboat for use as a research vessel by the Cohasset Maritime Institute, but we also did some work for the Yacht Club in designing and building some fixtures for the club for which the institute will receive a gift. In the course of this work the Yacht Club gave the boys a 30s vintage racing kayak in need of restoration. This boat would add to the CMI fleet and be used for recreation and exercise by its members.

Restoration by the boys is now nearing completion. The design, origin, history and eventual disposition of the racing kayak are a matter for still another story. As of this writing, the two seniors have finished classes, but are still interested in the project and have presented me with one of the most touching gifts I've ever been given, a beautiful refectory table made in shop classes at the high school. This table embodies features I, as a rough and tumble boat builder, would never attempt, such as an inlaid compass rose of oak and walnut, and a vine scroll edge border, hidden fasteners, etc.

But the best thing these young men have built is a mountain of gratitude for the opportunity to work with such active, intelligent and innovative young men. My hearty thanks to all of them. They are a tribute to the school they attend and the system, which supports it and nourishes it.

The kayak will be finished in a week or so and will be the subject of a launching ceremony at the Center for Student Coastal Research. And because of its historical value with the provenance attached to it, when not being used by the students and other members of the CMI, the antique racing kayak will probably be stored at the Maritime Museum of the Cohasset Historical Society.

Memorial Day, you should know that we have become much more of a concert band with a series of concerts with a large repertoire, again thanks to Steve.

You will be able to hear this program of music as we start our spring season with a concert at Linden Ponds on June 10, followed by an appearance at the American Cancer Society Relay For Life on June 13, South Shore Arts Festival (11:30, Saturday June 14), We will also play at the Gulf River Association Annual Meeting, and at the Hanover Bandstand in July. We will be featuring Lily Sestito and her brother Tony Carbone as guest vocalists.

In December we play for the Cohasset Jingle Bell Walk and Tree-Lighting, and at area nursing homes. Certainly the highlight of this season is the Holiday Pops concert offered in conjunction with the Cohasset Village Fair. The band plays for free (once a nursing home gave us a donation for some music). We like to support community activities, such as the Relay For Life and the Arts Festival. At the annual Holiday Pops concert, we have a free will gathering for the Cohasset Food Pantry. We were delighted last year that the offering came to $500! We have had grants from the Cohasset Cultural Council, and band members who wish to may contribute for new music. Recently two of our members purchased and donated music folders for the band. We don't have by-laws or officers or anything corporate, at least not yet. We come from the community; therefore we are a community band and we are a band, which is itself a community.

I wish I was articulate enough to express how it feels when we play a Benny Goodman swing tune and Eric Oddleifson is Benny Goodman, or how the two piccolo players do that part in Stars and Stripes Forever, so familiar to us from the Boston Pops. I look around the room and see the most wonderful collection of people, playing because they love music. Call me sentimental, but I cherish my association with this organization.

NDA grads are ready to fly

155th class graduates

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

"Your teachers and families have held you in the palm of their hands – now it is time to push you out of your nest and let you fly."
— Sr. Barbara A. Barry, NDA president

This year, 132 red, long-stemmed roses were tossed up into a bright-blue sky at the end of Notre Dame Academy's commencement on Sunday

Despite a clap of thunder at precisely one minute to 1 p.m., when the graduation exercises were due to begin, the clouds moved away and sunshine reigned supreme.

A sunny graduation on the athletic fields in the pristine setting of the Catholic girls school off Main Street in Hingham meant that all family members – parents, siblings, grandparents, aunts, uncles and so on – could witness their graduate receive her diploma first-hand.

Like many schools, when graduation is moved inside the seating is limited.

The crowd took advantage of the opportunity. Although implored not to applaud until all girls had received their diplomas – many could not contain their enthusiasm. Shouts, cheers, and applause were the order of the day.

"It's been a long time since we've been able to be outside," said Sr. Barbara A. Barry, NDA president, in her welcoming remarks. She added the thunder was an indication that it was going to be a "great day."

"This morning I observed a little bird fly away," she said. "I was thinking about how much you are like little birds in a good sense."

Sr. Barbara said the graduates had been nurtured and it was time for "a little shove out of the nest."

"You are on your own," she said. "Your teachers and families have held you in the palm of their hands – now it is time to push you out of your nest and let your fly.

"Now let's start flying!"

Keynote speaker, alumna, Judge Terry M. Craven (NDA Class of 1969) told the graduates to savor the moment.

"Remember how timid and shy each of you were when you walked through the door in 2004. Before me sits the women you are today," she said.

Craven said NDA provided the foundation for the values she would carry into college and throughout her life: "The values of faith in God, love of family, respect for all no matter what their education or status in life, compassion, loyalty and responsibility to the community in which we live."

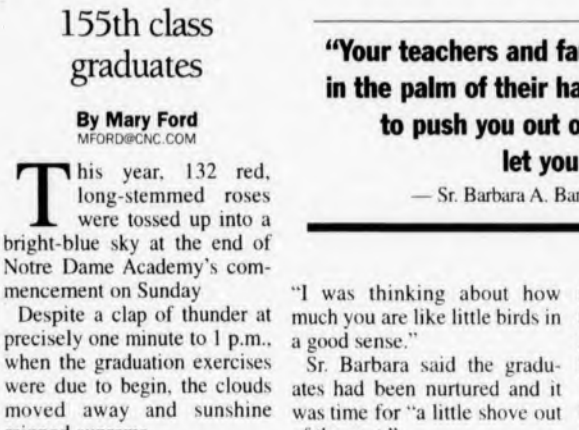
Valedictorian Tracy Catherine Jasper of Rockland and Salutatorian Brittany Ann Concannon of Quincy were recognized and introduced to the audience. Jasper will attend Harvard and Concannon is headed to Yale.

Nichole M. Wojner of Rockland was awarded the St. Julie Award for most epitomizing the selflessness and other fine qualities of St. Julie Billiart, who established the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur. Wojner is headed to Salve Regina University where she will pursue nursing.

Caroline R. Lockett of Manoment was introduced by Lt. Cmdr. James McLaughlin. Lockett has been accepted to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Class president Hilary Ippolito of Hingham, vice president Victoria Ahl of Weymouth, secretary Margaret Maguire of Hingham, and treasurer Joanna Timmons of Norwell announced the class gift: a CPR practice mannequin and addition gym equipment for the fitness room.

Elizabeth V. Esborn of East Sandwich was chosen, via an anonymous essay contest,to be the student graduation speaker.



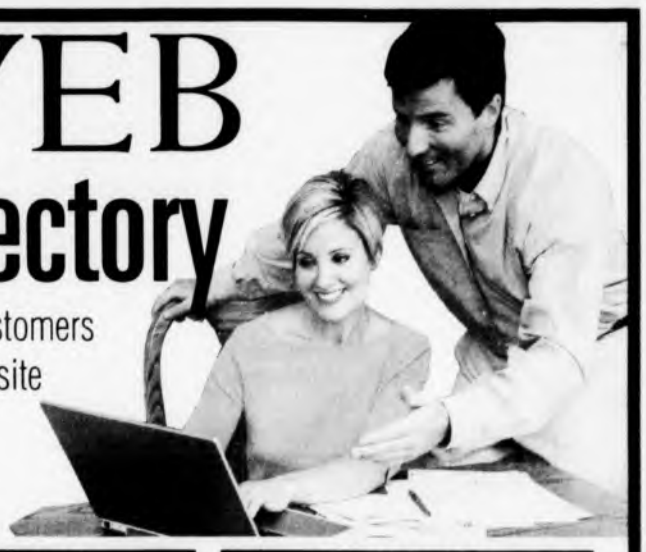
She used her experiences of puddle jumping while growing up as a metaphor about life.

"Jump in with both feet and give your all to everything you do," Esborn told her classmates. "Don't be afraid to get wet – make waves – and never forget your youth."

"Identities are built drop by drop," she said.

The graduates, who hailed from 28 communities, were accepted to 177 different colleges across the country and abroad.

Cohasset NDA graduates include: Ellie D. Casey, Elizabeth J. Fegreus, Samantha M. Fortin, and McKenna K. Teague.



Notre Dame Academy graduates walk to the stage to receive their diplomas during last Sunday's graduation exercises.

NDA graduates throw their roses into the air following their commencement.

Wicked Local People brings social networking to our website

GateHouse Media New England has teamed up with TownConnect of Waltham to bring social networking to the Cohasset Mariner's website and to all of the company's other Wicked Local town websites in Massachusetts.

Through the Wicked Local People sites, residents of the 159 eastern Massachusetts communities served by GateHouse newspapers are now able to participate in a free, secure, private network and easily organize online communities of friends, neighbors and extended families; coordinate schedules; share photos and files; and connect families, friends, and neighbors.

"When we launched the Wicked Local network last fall, we wanted to combine professional journalism, lots of community information, and lots of opportunities for residents to interact with us and with each other," said Kirk Davis, president of GateHouse Media New England. "Working with TownConnect allows us to take that interaction to the next level."

You can find Wicked Local People on our site, WickedLocalCohasset.com, at the "people tab" on the navigation bar next to "town info." It's been on the site for about a month in "beta" – testing – mode. After a few tests and tweaks, we're now ready to tell you about it and to urge you to sign up and start building your own personalized online community!

After registering – it's free – you will be able to:

- Build and share family profiles, photo albums, and blogs. Links and calendars allow you to organize everything from soccer schedules to homework assignments to social engagements – all in a secure, private network. It's what you might call a "Facebook for families."
- Build an online space for your community group, church or synagogue, or a group of friends to organize online information and communicate among members.
- Organize a sports team, complete with rosters, schedules, carpools, and a list of who has "snack duty" at which game.
- Share news and information broadly with all registered members of the community or easily send information directly to us.

In addition, special classroom tools are designed for teachers to provide a secure online environment to communicate with students and parents.

"GateHouse newspapers have been connecting people in their individual communities for decades – in some cases for more than a century," noted Mike Ford, founder and CEO of TownConnect. "The relationship with TownConnect allows GateHouse to extend and deepen those connections in many new ways."

TownConnect (www.townconnect.com) is an exclusive, private online service designed to help busy people organize their and their families' lives. TownConnect.com was launched in October of 2007, serving the United States and Canada.

As part of the GateHouse arrangement, the Eastern Massachusetts TownConnect sites now live exclusively on the GateHouse

Lobster roll sale returns to Arts Festival!

Lobster rolls, a tradition at the South Shore Arts Festival, will once again be on sale at the Parish House of First Parish Unitarian Universalist in Cohasset, 23 North Main St., on June 13, 14 and 15. Lobster lovers will be glad to hear that the all-meat, fresh lobster rolls, with no filler, will remain at last year's size and price of $13 including a bag of Cape Cod potato chips. "The rolls are so good that quite a few buyers return the next day for yet another taste of summer," said Art Myles, co-chairman of the sale with his wife, Penny Myles. They suggests getting co-workers together at lunchtime on Friday, or bringing lobster rolls home for dinner with family and friends on Friday, Saturday or Sunday, which is Father's Day.

Pre-ordering is encouraged as it helps planning for the last minute arrival of the freshest possible lobster. Orders can be mailed to the Parish House, 23 North Main St., Cohasset, MA 02025 until Tuesday, June 10, with checks made out to First Parish in Cohasset; or orders may be placed by emailing or calling Penny Myles pmyles74@comcast.net or 781-749-1989. Orders can be picked up at the Parish House on Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m., and on Sunday from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. There will be a lobster pick-up parking zone in front of the Parish House.

Diana Kornet prepares lobster rolls for First Parish's sale during the SSAC Arts Festival. Working behind her are Marilyn Hobson and Pat Baird.

Pre-ordering is encouraged as it helps planning for the last minute arrival of the freshest possible lobster.

Skippers put in post-season work

CHS boys bounce Middleboro; fall to Dover Sherborn in tourney

After completing another successful regular season, the Cohasset High boys tennis team came into the state tournament seeded 15th. They finished the regular season with a winning record of 10-7. The regular season losses were to perennial powerhouses Hingham, Norwell, Duxbury, and Scituate.

Cohasset's bid for the league title with the revamped lineup created by coaches Paul Carroll and Brian Hill came up just short against Norwell late in the season.

Also earning letters and getting lots of varsity playing time in singles and doubles were junior Luke Brewer, senior Cam Cunningham, freshman Garret Canney, freshman Travers Craven and freshman Will Choi.

Playing at home at Milliken Field last Friday, the Skippers trounced Middleboro 4-1 in the opening round of the state tourney. Hartman and Brady notched victories in the singles. Crough, Sceery and Hill, Craven wrapped things up for the Skipper in doubles.

Next up for the Skippers was the undefeated heavyweight team of Dover Sherborn led by top singles player Matt Chase, Grandson of John and Patsy Chase of Red Gate Lane.

Matt's father David grew up in Cohasset and said he was "unsure which team to root for."

Victor Hartmann played the best match of his varsity career and tried valiantly to throw a monkey wrench into DS's plans.

Victor led in the first set 5-4 and it looked like there was an upset in the making. Two very close points at the end of the set went against Cohasset and Matt stole the first set. Down 3-4 in the second, Victor rallied and forced a tiebreaker before falling 5-7, 6-7. Both players in the match displayed scintillating play.

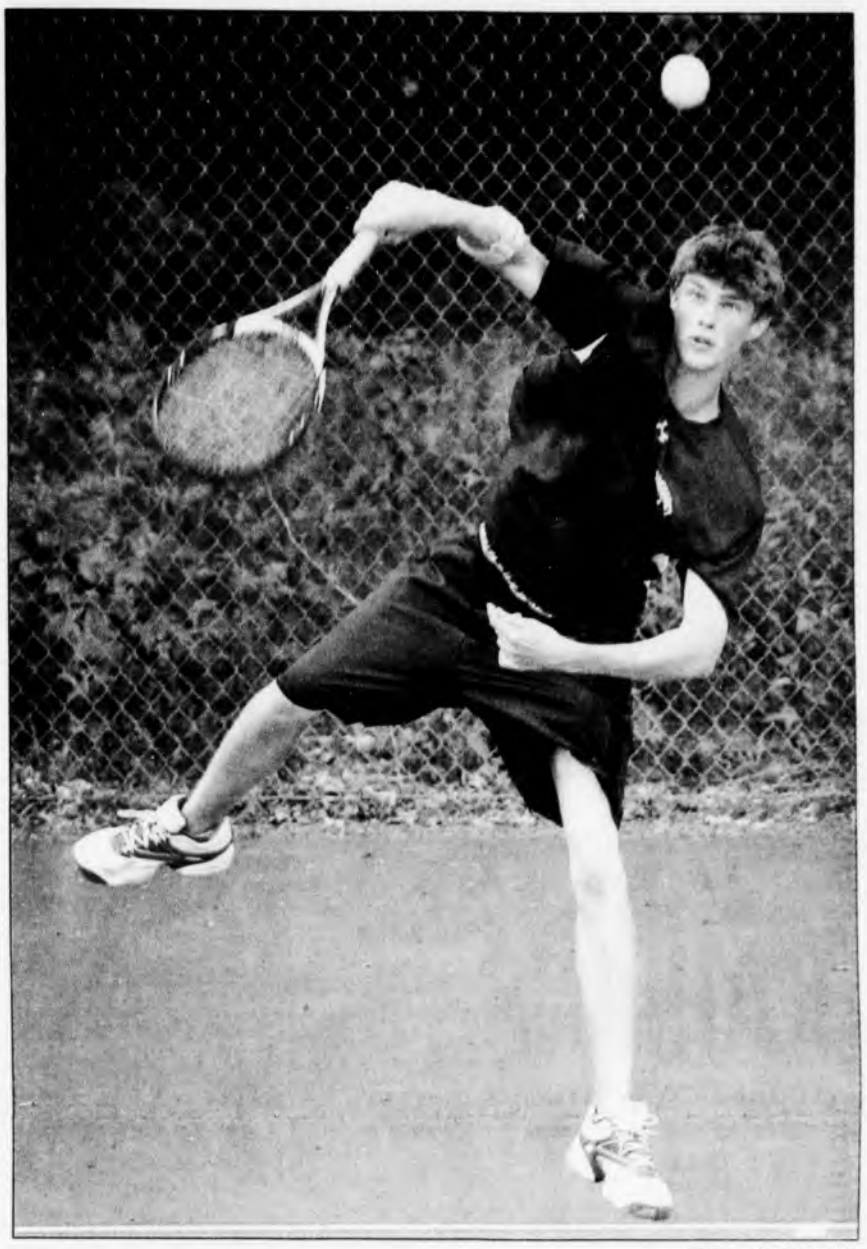
Cam Cunningham found his new power serves and athleticism would not be enough to overcome the experienced play of Andy Docherty and fell 1-6, 1-6.



Ryan Crough and Ivan Sceery started slowly against Jake Hershey and Jake Tweed and lost the first set 1-6. The overall match was still in the balance when they knotted the score at 3-3 in the second, before falling 6-3.

Robbie Hill and Travers Craven played very solid against seniors Matt Storer and Nate Saletin dropping the first set 6-4, and leading 3-0 in the second before falling 6-4, 6-4.

Will Choi played his best tennis of the season losing to Roddy Andick, 8-4, in the exhibition.

Coach Carroll predicts Dover Sherborn will win the state title.

Season highlights included individual victories by Ryan Crough over James Foster of Harwich, victories in the state individual tournament by Victor Hartman, Ivan Sceery, and Mike Filbey, team 5-0 victory over Harwich, strong play by Travers Craven in the state individual tourney against semifinalist Duncan Farworth, and strong play by the doubles team of Robbie Hill and Garret Canney against Newton North in the state individual tourney.

Cohasset's Sally Meehan does her part in a 5-0 win against Dedham in the South Sectional.

It took a while for the Cohasset High girls tennis team to finally get on the court. Proms, graduation and rain kept the Skippers away from the game. Now they have returned and the world is in working order.

The No. 4 seeded Skippers defeated Holliston and Dedham, Monday and Tuesday, by 5-0 scores.

Now they will face No. 1 seed Old Rochester on the road, Friday, June 6 at 3:00 p.m. The match was originally scheduled for Thursday, June 5, but has since been changed. The winner faces either Dover Sherborn or Scituate in the Div. 2 South Sectional final.

Holliston came to Cohasset after beating Mashpee 5-0 in the opening round. Cohasset had a bye.

"They had a solid 5-0 win over Mashpee, and coming in I didn't know too much about what to expect from Holliston," said Cohasset coach Gigi Meehan.

Maddy Altholtz won 6-0, 6-1

COHASSET HIGH BOYS LACROSSE NOTEBOOK

Cohasset 19 – Archbishop Williams 7

The Cohasset High boys lacrosse team dominated Archbishop Williams in state tournament quarterfinal action on Monday evening at Alumni Field. The Skippers raced out to a 13-2 halftime lead and never looked back. The Cohasset starters again, rested for the entire second half as the reserves kept overmatched Archies at bay.

Cohasset featured a balanced scoring attack led by the Flibotte brothers. Twelve Skipper players scored points during the rout. Freshman Thomas Flibotte led all scorers with 2 goals and 4 assists. Senior Mark Flibotte had 3 goals and an assist. Sophomore Will Wise had a hat trick. Freshman Alex Kinnealey, junior Jonny Wade and seniors Mike Grimm and Chuck Czerkawski each had 2 goals and 1 assist.

Mark Flibotte opened the scoring after a nifty spin and inside flip pass from Czerkawski. PJ McCaw followed quickly with a laser to the corner after a bull dodge. Nate Porter made a terrific stop in goal at point blank range to keep the Archies off the board. Mark Flibotte found Wade alone on the crease for a fast break goal and Flibotte scored again unassisted less than a minute later. After an Archbishop Williams goal, Thomas Flibotte hit a streaking Will Wise for the tally after a terrific steal at midfield by Czerkawski. Wise closed out the first period scoring with a sidearm rip to the top corner.

Wise scored again to start the second period, this time dodging from behind. Mike Grimm followed with a quick release goal after a big face dodge from up top. Grimm then found Czerkawski for a bullet from the side. Junior Owen Landon assisted to Thomas Flibotte on a nice no-look pass on the inside. Czerkawski won the ensuing face-off cleanly and stormed in alone for still another top shelf tally. Alex Kinnealey popped up with the next face-off, raced downfield and found Mark Flibotte alone on the crease. Grimm scored with an underhanded shot assisted by Thomas Flibotte to close out the half.

Archies fought back in the second half scoring five goals in the third period. However, the Cohasset underclassmen more than held their own. Wade scored after a beautiful inside feed from Andrew DiPaulo. Wade found sophomore Dean Driscoll for a quick goal on the fast break. Sophomore Ian Quinlan found Driscoll with a clever inside pass as Driscoll cut from behind. Kinnealey then scored with a left-handed bounce shot assisted by Thomas Flibotte with the man advantage. Quinlan got his second assist after picking up a loose ball on a scramble in front and flipping it to Thomas Flibotte on the crease for the score. The younger Flibotte completed his break-out game assisting on Kinnealey's second goal of the game.

"It was good to see so many of our players, and particularly some of our younger players, involved in the offense," Curran said. "We moved the ball well and unselfishly, and found the open looks. We had assists on thirteen of our goals which is outstanding. We will need to keep up the offensive pressure to continue our advance to a third title."

Curran also lauded the play of his senior goaltender.

"Nate Porter was terrific in goal tonight and very active in the COASTAL NISSAN salutes the South Shore Athlete of the Month

Marshfield senior Chris Walker is one of the most feared attackmen on the South Shore lax scene and for good reason. Already the owner of Marshfield High's single-game (14) scoring record, Walker broke the MHS single season scoring mark this month with an eight-point (five goal, three assist) performance against Whitman/Hanson. The lax captain compiled 119 points in the regular season this spring, besting the previous record of 113 set by 2000 MHS grad Sean Morris. Walker's play helped guide his Rams lax squad to an Atlantic Coast League North Div. title (11-1) and berth in the Div. 1 East Tourney.

Coastal Nissan has donated $500 to the Marshfield High School Athletic Fund in Chris Walker's name.

Skippers lose in tourney opener

By Eric MacCarthy
CORRESPONDENT

A week after winning a share of the South Shore League title, the Cohasset High baseball team hit a wall, losing its first game of the state tournament. The team's 15-9 loss against Westwood Saturday ended their historic season in which they became the first Cohasset baseball team to win the league championship in 49 years, and was one of only three CHS teams in the last 36 years to even make the state tournament.

"We shot ourselves in the foot" said Cohasset coach Al Gallotta about the team's overall pitching performance.

A pitching staff that put together a team earned run average of only 2.57 the entire season, and was truly the backbone of this historic team, was disappointing in the tourney opener.

Four different Cohasset pitchers allowed a combined 12 walks and hit three Westwood batters; and of those 15 free passes, eight of the men came around and scored.

Westwood took full advantage of players constantly being on base by compiling 10 hits, four of which were for extra bases.

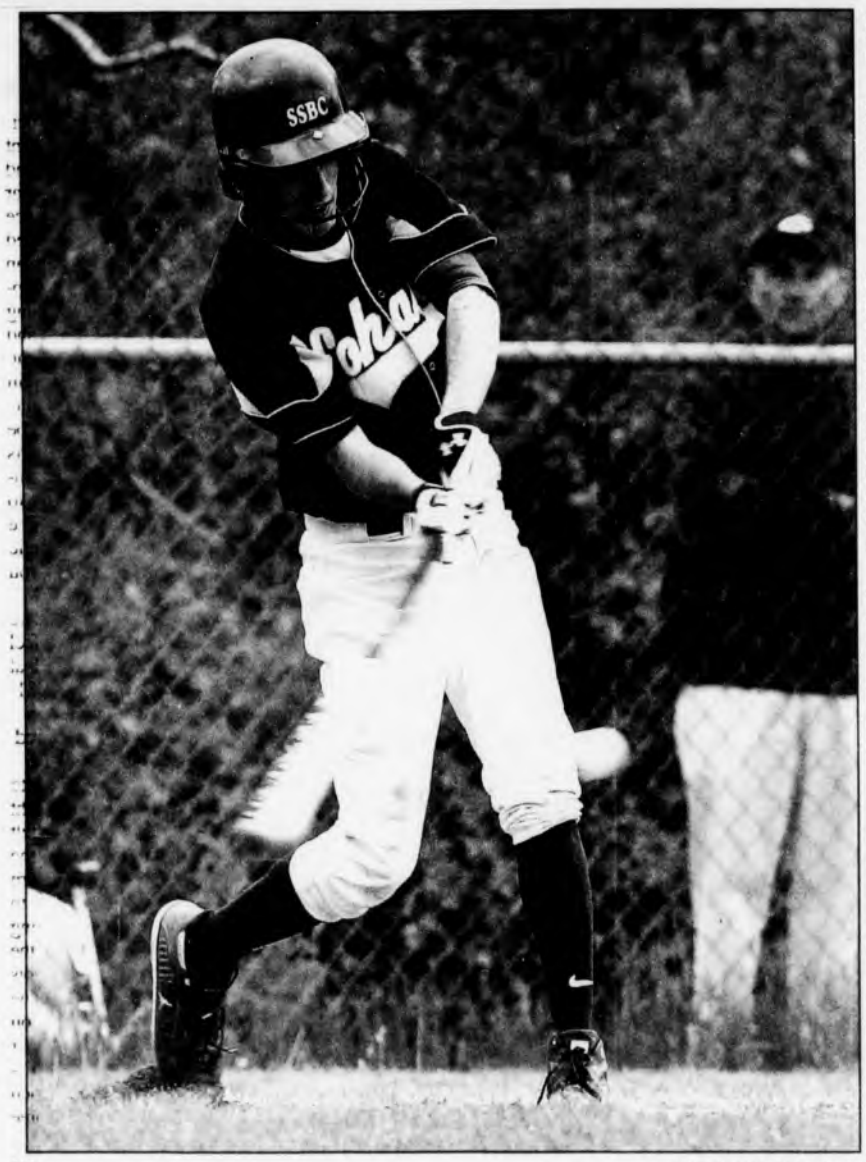
"You have to give Westwood credit," stated Gallotta, "They played a little bit better than we did and deserved to win the game."

The Skippers compiled eight hits of their own, and their nine total runs were something Gallotta was very pleased about.

"Anytime you score nine runs in a game you expect to win, that's usually enough," he said.

The major difference between the two team's hitting performances is the fact that of Cohasset's eight hits, only one of them was an extra bases compared to Westwood's four extra base hits.

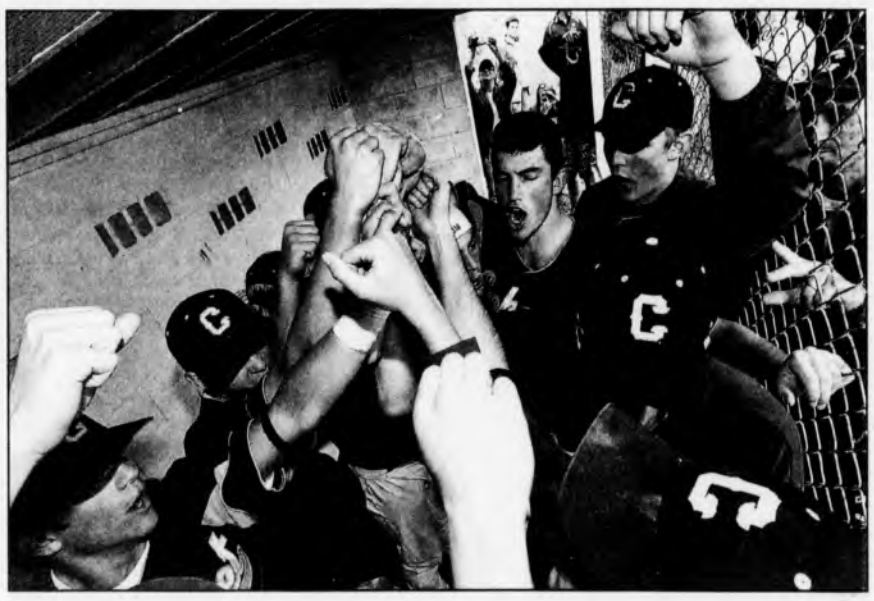
The lone extra base hit for Cohasset came in the early innings by senior Kenny Muir on a solo home run.



Other than Muir, only four other hitters got a hit, and all four were the only players to have an RBI.

Seniors Pat Doonan and Chris Rose, as well sophomore Brendan Doonan all had two hits in the game, all singles, and each had at least one run batted in. Rose had two RBI. Both Doonan's were great on the basepaths as Pat Doonan had two stolen bases and Brendan Doonan had one.

The only other Skipper to get a hit and RBI was senior Alex Goetz, who had a single, but also drove in a run on a sacrifice fly.



Despite the fact that the team didn't advance further into the state tournament, Cohasset's achievements cannot be denied.

On road to their first league championship the Skippers also clinched a bye in the first round of the tournament meaning that they lost in the second round.

entire defensive effort. His aggressive play was key when the Archies tried to make a run in the third period."

Porter finished with 10 saves. Cohasset will play Norwell, Thursday night at 5 p.m. at Alumni Field with a berth in the state championship game on the line. It will be the Skippers' last home game of 2008 since the state championship will be played this year at a neutral site.

Cohasset 13 – Arlington Catholic 2

The Cohasset High boys lacrosse team, two-time defending Division 3 state champions, opened their quest for a "threepeat" with a convincing 13-2 blowout of Arlington Catholic on Thursday. The Skippers raced off to an 11-0 first half lead and Cohasset coach Stew Curran rested his starters for the entire second half.

"Arlington Catholic is a relatively young program," Curran said. "It was a good warm-up for the tougher games to come in the tournament. Our younger players were able to get some tournament action under their belt which is always a positive."

Mark Flibotte opened the first half scoring onslaught for Cohasset with a man-up goal on a nice feed from Chuck Czerkawski. A minute later, Mike Grimm stripped the ball from the Cougars' defender with an aggressive check at midfield, and found Thomas Flibotte in the middle of the field who hit his older brother streaking toward the goal for the second tally.

Andrew DiPaulo scored unassisted with a nifty left-handed shot after dodging from behind. In a textbook fast break, Peter Ernst passed to Grimm who assisted on Dean Driscoll's shot that beat the Arlington Catholic goalie to the short side. Goalie Nate Porter kept the shutout alive with a very tough-minded, bulldoze check of an open Cougar attackman on the crease just before the buzzer sounded.

At the start of the second quarter, Grimm found PJ McCaw alone up top he then fired a rocket to the top corner. Ernst saw Grimm cutting back door and Grimm buried the shot with a quick release on the run. On the next Arlington Catholic possession, senior defenseman Cliff Musto stripped the ball from his attackman, picked up the ground ball and raced the length of the field on the clear.

Musto quickly passed to Flibotte who found Grimm alone on the crease for still another Cohasset goal. Grimm then threaded a pass thru traffic to an open Driscoll who found the bottom corner. Flibotte scored unassisted after a loose ball scramble in front of the cage. Flibotte scored again less than a minute later on a face dodge assisted by Driscoll. After an aggressive ride by Driscoll, Czerkawski scored unassisted on a cannon to the top shelf.

The Skippers swarming zone defense was equally effective as its offense. Jake Cuneo, Dana Valentine, Anderson Lynner, Vin Curran, Nick Lieberman, Cliff Musto and Jake Kissick all combined to shut down any goal scoring opportunities for the Cougars.

The Cohasset goalies were rarely tested throughout the game.

After a scoreless and sometimes sloppy third period, Arlington Catholic finally got on the board on a left-handed snipe by Joe Pendenza. Junior Charlie Mushin got that goal back for Cohasset on a beautiful roll dodge from behind, a quick spin by another defender and a perfect shot to the low post. After a second Arlington Catholic tally, Freshman Alex Kinnealey closed out the Cohasset scoring with a bull dodge through traffic and a high to low shot, which beat the Cougar goalie to the stick side.

Mark Flibotte led Cohasset scorers with 4 goals and 1 assist. Mike Grimm added 2 goals and 3 assists and Dean Driscoll had 2 goals and 1 assist. Goalies Nate Porter and Jack Murphy combined for 9 saves.

Clark Road Race

Saturday, June 14, 2008 the seventh annual "Clark's Fun Run" will take place at The South Shore Music Circus. The days events include a one mile kids run (family run) at 9 a.m. with each participant receiving a medal and a t-shirt.

At 9:30 a.m. the 3.5 mile walk goes off and at 10 a.m. the 3.5 mile road race starts. Each participant will receive a t-shirt with their registration. The 3.5 mile course is scenic but challenging including the town common and Sandy Beach. Over the past seven years the Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund has donated over $100,000 dollars to the community.

Some of our projects include the purchase of two AED's for the middle high school, the construction of a new basketball court outside the Deer Hill Elementary School, the purchase of new athletic benches for the Clark Chatterton Athletic Complex at the middle high school, funding provided for the post prom activities for the senior class at the high school, bus transportation for Cohasset Metco athletes, funding for The Presidential Classroom, and funding for the Cohasset Scituate Swim Program.

Last year's race proceeds went to the purchase of a new electronic scoreboard at the Beechwood Baseball Field in Cohasset. The mission statement of the Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund is to provide educational and recreational opportunities for the children and families in Cohasset.

The road race is an opportunity for families to enjoy the beautiful town of Cohasset and to participate in an organized fun event promoting physical fitness and community support. This year Cohasset Triathlon Race Director Bill Burnett has offered his assistance in helping to plan for the day and providing support to the committee by raising the awareness of the race and drawing participants to the event, we do appreciate his help in making this a community event.

All of the race proceeds will be donated to the Cohasset Sports Partnerships "Got Turf" campaign which is raising funds to replace Alumni Field at The Clark Chatterton Athletic Complex with a turf field. If you have any questions or would like a registration form or would like to make a donation please feel free to contact Debbie Beal at dbeal@cohassetk12.org or 781-383-6100 ext 148.

"She played out of her mind," Meehan said. "And this girls was good that she was playing, we thought Maddy was in this huge battle."

Sally Meehan was next to finish. She won 6-2, 6-1.

"She played great and was very determined," Meehan said. "That's what I'm seeing this year from my team, especially my seniors, they want to win really big. They really want this."

Maggie McGoldrick and Danielle Sookiasian faced a very good team at first doubles, according to Meehan, "one of the best I've seen." They had a big 6-1, 7-5 win.

Meg Anderson took her match 6-3, 6-3, and as usual, shined under the first singles pressure.

The second doubles team of Laura Allen and Jean Thomae started slow, losing the first set 0-6.

"I started thinking I made this huge coaching mistake and taken these two great players and just created a bond of no chemistry," Meehan said, "but they dug so deep."

The girls came back, changed strategy and won the next two sets, 6-4, 6-1.

"That was an awesome match for them."

Pre- through post-prom was perfect

LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK

...new this year, every week in my column I'm going to post the "teacher quote of the week" so that parents and townsfolk can get to know some of our beloved CHS teachers a little bit better.

Welcome back, everyone! In case you happened to miss it, the Cohasset prom was a success, pre through post. Everyone looked absolutely beautiful, chaperones and spectators included. I'm also very proud to say that there were no unexpected problems along the way either. Congratulations to the boys' baseball and tennis teams who made it all the way to the first round of the tournament. Also good luck to girls' tennis who have made it all the way to the Semi-finals! In other news this week:

• Boys varsity lacrosse played in the Division three Quarterfinals on Monday at Alumni Field against Archbishop Williams and won 19-7.

• Tuesday and Wednesday the Freshman had their Science MCAS that I'm confident

• Yesterday, some Spanish students in Senora Jordan's class took a field trip to the Museum of Fine Arts and then Spanish restaurant called El Sarape to study and embrace the Spanish culture.

• Graduation rehearsal was also held yesterday in preparation for the big day at 1:30 tomorrow!

And new this year, every week in my column I'm going to post the "teacher quote of the week" so that parents and townsfolk can get to know some of our beloved CHS teachers a little bit better. This week features Mr. Nathaniel Duncan, part time history teacher, part time Peace Corps volunteer, and full-time explorer. When asked why he chose teaching as a profession, he replied: "Well, Indiana Jones inspired me to get into teaching, yet no one has kidnapped me in the school parking lot or kept me from grading papers to send me on a quest."

So there you have it, everyone. Have a wonderful weekend and enjoy the hot weather. See you all next week!

Lauren Mack is a senior at CHS. Her column appears weekly in the Mariner.

Deer Hill raises money for heart association

Led by physical education teacher Michael Weydt, the third, fourth and fifth grade classes of Deer Hill Elementary School participated in the Hoops for Heart program to raise money for the American Heart Association. Students collected more than $5,000 in donations to help fight heart disease and stroke. In 2006, the first year that the school participated in the program, students raised more than $7,600 for the Heart Association.

About 12 million, 17.1 percent, of kids in the United States are overweight. An additional 12 million are at risk of being overweight, and a recent national study from the Journal of School Health reports that only 8 percent of elementary schools, 6.4 percent of middle/junior high schools, and 5.8 percent of senior high schools, provide daily physical education or its equivalent for the entire school year. Teaching children about good health starts at home, but having physical education programs in school helps reinforce the message.

Jump Rope For Heart and Hoops for Heart are national educational fundraising programs sponsored by the American Heart Association and American Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. The programs engage students in a physical activity, such as jumping rope, basketball skill games or tournaments, while raising funds to support heart and stroke research. Students ask friends and family for donations and receive thank-you gifts based on the money they raise. Participants enjoy a fun physical activity, raise money for a good cause and learn about heart health and volunteer service by participating.

Summer dog training — Cohasset Recreation Center is offering dog obedience classes on Cohasset Common on Monday, June 23. Beginners obedience will be at 6 p.m.; obedience with distractions at 7 p.m.

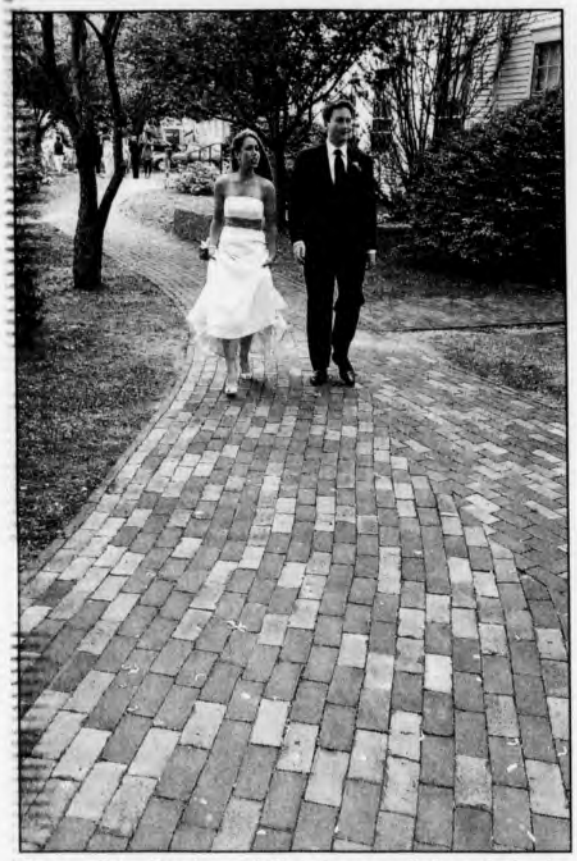
Beginners obedience class is open to puppies at least 12 weeks old to dogs of any age who are seeking a beginner's level understanding of all obedience commands, including sit, down, stay, watch me, come, leave it, drop it and walking on a leash. The class will also give assistance to those seeking help with problems such as jumping, mouthing and chewing. Adult dogs and recently adopted dogs who are looking to get off to the right start are welcome in this class in addition to young and adolescent puppies.

Obedience with distractions is for dogs that understand basic concepts such as sit, stay, come and down, but who have trouble being consistent. The class will teach the dog to listen with greater distractions each week, less and less leash control and with the owner further and further away.

Classes meet once a week for five weeks and cost $110. For more information, call the Recreation Center at 781-383-4109 or the trainer at 781-878-4343.

Fifth Grade Class Party – There will be a party for everyone who has just finished fifth grade and is about to enter sixth grade at the Teen Garage from 7 to 10 p.m., on Friday, June 13. Everyone in the new sixth grade is welcome; however, the Garage is closed to all other grades on this night. This is a free event to welcome and introduce the new sixth-graders to the Garage. Refreshments will be for sale. Supervision will include a staff of five-plus chaperones, most of whom are local area teachers. Attendees must be picked up by 10 p.m. This is not a school event. Call Cohasset Recreation Department for more information.

Playground Program – Registration for the Summer Playground Program will take place during the week of Monday, June 9, through Thursday, June 12, at the Town Hall auditorium as follows: Monday through Thursday, 9 a.m. to noon and 1 to 3 p.m.; as well as Tuesday evening, 5 to 7. Registration must be done in person. The seven-week Playground Program is a day camp-like experience inclusive of sports, games, field trips, entertainment, arts and crafts, etc. It starts June 23 and finishes Aug. 9. Children who turned 3 years old as of March 1, 2005, are eligible for the half-day program, specifically designed for 3 fi- to 4-year-olds. Children ages 5 through 12 may register for the full day, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., program. Fees for the program are: Full day $385, and half day $310, for the entire seven-week program. There is also a $50 per child activity fee payable by a separate check. Both checks are payable to: Town of Cohasset. Visit the Web site for more information.



CHS Fitness Room – Stay fit this summer. Cohasset Recreation and Cohasset High School announce, thanks to the generosity of the Clark Chatterton Fund, that Cohasset High School Fitness Room will be available free of charge this summer, from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m., Monday through Friday, for Cohasset residents grade seven through adult. Children younger than seventh grade must be accompanied by an adult. This free service will be available starting June 23 and continuing for 10 weeks through Aug. 29. Use the front door entrance. The CHS Fitness Room will be closed July 4.

Kitchen Kids Workshop – Kitchen Kids Workshop is a new Recreation program this summer, designed to introduce children to the joys of creative cooking. Kids will be enlivened with the bright colors, wonderful aromas and tantalizing flavors. Even the fussiest eaters will be thrilled to eat something they have made themselves. The hands-on class has step-by-step instructions, in a safe and clean environment. Kitchen Kids offers a real world tool that will leave a lasting impression for years to come. Sandy Trembley is the director. There are two sessions this summer: Tuesday, July 8, through Friday, July 11; and Tuesday, Aug. 12, through Friday, Aug. 15. A morning class from 10:30 a.m. to noon, is offered for children ages 3 through 6, and an afternoon class from 12:30 to 2, is for 7- through 12-year-olds. Price is $130/child for either session. Future workshops will take place throughout the school year; check back periodically on the Web site.

Technology Camp – Technology Camp is a new, one-week camp, from Monday, July 21 through Friday, July 25, presented by Play-Well TEKnologies and Community Camps. Take a crash course in Demolition Derby, enter a Sumo Wrestling Competition, design a Mighty Metropolis, challenge the Battle Track and build and race a locomotive faster than a speeding Worm Drive. Explore concepts in physics, mechanical engineering, structural engineering and architecture while playing with favorite creations. Children will be given instruction, design challenges and competitions appropriate to their facility with LEG Technic and System components. The cost is $140 per participant. Technology Camp will take place at the Recreation Garage, behind the Red Lion Inn. There are two classes by age group: 9 a.m. to noon for 5- to 7-year-olds; and 1 to 4 p.m., for 8-to-12-year-olds. A family cruise to Caribbean from New York

Kim Foley MacKinnon
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

As we slowly passed the Statue of Liberty, crowds of adults and kids alike pressed against the ship's railing and cheered. Meanwhile, a conga line snaked around the main pool to the strains of a live Caribbean band. We were cruising from New York, but we were heading to the Caribbean. And everyone was getting in the mood.

The nine-day cruise on the Crown Princess would take us to Bermuda, Puerto Rico, St. Thomas, Grand Turk and back to New York, with four full days at sea and four days in ports. This was my family's first cruise. And while I liked the idea of leaving from a city I could drive to, and getting to all those destinations, I was worried the extra time at sea would mean boredom, especially for my 8-year-old. I was glad to be proven wrong.

The first day at sea we busied ourselves with getting oriented. When daughter Sadie visited the "Fun Zone" kids' club for the first time, she was promptly sent on a scavenger hunt. From then on, she was our guide, navigating the 3,080-passenger ship, while my husband, Rob, and I followed her.

The kids' program is divided by age, and before being introduced to the center for the 8- to 12-year-old group, Sadie wasn't sure she would want to spend much time there. But she ended up rarely wanting to leave, and she wasn't alone in that -- most of the families we chatted with during the cruise confided their kids were more keen on hanging at the center than hanging with their parents.

Sadie participated in craft activities, such as stringing bead necklaces and painting T-shirts, but she also enjoyed reading the books available at the center. A "High School Musical" karaoke contest one night was a big hit. Younger kids did crafts and coloring and their playroom was filled with blocks and Legos. Older kids seemed to gravitate to PlayStation 2 games and lounging around the Teen Center. All the counselors I met were enthusiastic and cheerful and genuinely seemed to have a great time with the kids.

At an afternoon talent show, Sadie did gymnastics tricks, making the audience of kids and parents cringe when she did her pretzel move, with her feet behind her head.

Princess has all sorts of classes for adults too through their Scholarship@Sea program. Some are also open to kids. And so Sadie and I both made take-home dishes in a ceramics class.

With the sun shining, we all spent lots of time at the ship's pools. And choosing from the large roster of daytime activities, one afternoon Rob and I teamed up with another couple to play TV theme-music trivia against fellow passengers. PG movies shown on a giant screen poolside proved a popular attraction with everyone.

Princess ships offer the option of "anytime" dining, allowing families to eat when the kids get hungry -- just arrive at the dining room and get seated at a table (traditional seating at set times is also offered). A kids' menu is available and requests (sauce on the side, etc.) were handled with aplomb. Room service, including pizzas, is also on offer.

Few kids attended the ship's two formal nights -- most staying instead in the kids' program -- but we wanted Sadie to have the chance to dress up, and she enjoyed the extra attention in the dining room.

Nighttime activities are more adult-oriented: time in the casino, Vegas-style shows, sitting in bars and listening to lounge singers or dancing in the disco. But all three of us were impressed with mentalist/illusionist Wayne Hoffman, who seemed to read people's minds.

When we booked our trip, Princess sent us packets of information detailing shore excursion offerings. They recommended reserving well before the voyage, and I highly recommend this -- we booked early but still didn't get all of our first choices.

But we opted for a catamaran trip in Bermuda, a nighttime bioluminescence kayaking trip in Puerto Rico, and an excursion visiting Turtle Cove in St. Thomas -- where sea turtles thrillingly swam right next to us as we snorkeled. All were impressively operated.

On a horseback excursion on the beach in Grand Turk, the guide urged our horses to run faster and deeper into the surf. I was already somewhat nervous, and that didn't help matters. I couldn't turn around to see if Sadie was OK, because it was all I could do to stay astride my horse. But I could hear her laughing, and I knew she was having the time of her life.

Crown Princess sailing into New York.

IF YOU go...

This year and next, the Caribbean Princess (www.princess.com) is cruising from New York to the Caribbean, with departures from mid-May to mid-August. Rates for nine-night cruises are from $1,262 per person.

TRY THE EXTRAS

While the cruise experience is designed to be pretty much all-inclusive -- and you do get good bang for your buck in terms of entertainment, food and activities -- sometimes, for a small fee, you can find a completely different onboard experience.

For instance, The Sanctuary, available on the Crown Princess and being added to the rest of the fleet, offers an adults-only pool area for a fee of $10 per person. It's a quiet and wonderful place to retreat.

Well worth the splurge as well is dinner at Sabatini's, a gourmet Italian restaurant -- available on most Princess ships -- which serves an eight-course menu. The experience is intimate and delicious, and considering the excellent service and food, at $20 per person it's a bargain.

You'll want to check out the relaxing treatments available at the spa. Keep in mind that toward the end of your cruise, there are special deals. For example, the $195 hot stone massage I had in the middle of the cruise was $30 less on the last day at sea.

Sandy Beach to open June 14

Association awards first scholarship

Sandy Beach Association asks that people respect the rules of the beach. Alcohol, fires, fishing, or flotation devices are prohibited anywhere on the beach.

Every year in early June the annual Sandy Beach clean-up begins in preparation for the official opening of the beach. The clean up began June 2 and should last for a week. People are warned to be careful on the beach during this clean up period. When Rosano-Davis is done with the clean-up the seaweed will be buried, garbage will be removed and the beach will be ready for summer.

The beach will officially open for the summer Saturday, June 14. Lifeguards will be on duty from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m., daily through Labor Day weekend. The head guard may look familiar to students of Cohasset Middle and High School. Jennifer DiSabatino, a science teacher from the middle and high school, will be the head summer guard. She will be in charge of scheduling and guard procedures for the staff of 13 summer lifeguards and 14 beach maintenance workers. She has 28 years of lifeguard experience and is certified in advanced ocean rescue and safety.

Sandy Beach Association is a group of eight volunteer residents from Cohasset. This year they have announced the first scholarship to a high school senior. This $1,000 scholarship will be awarded annually to a high school senior who has demonstrated a passion for marine biology and environmental studies. The first recipient of this scholarship is Mike Kusek. Mike has completed 11 science courses while attending Cohasset High School and plans on majoring in marine biology at Coastal Carolina University in Conway, S.C. Robin Lawrence, president of Sandy Beach Association, said, "For years the town has been generous in supporting Sandy Beach and its operation. Consequently, the association decided this scholarship is an opportunity to express our gratitude to the community and further the dreams of one of our graduates."

All facilities stickers will be available for sale starting the week of June 16 in Town Hall. This all-facilities sticker gives residents access not only to the recycling center but also to the beach parking lot. Stickers are required for all cars to park at Sandy Beach.

The second Cohasset Triathlon will be run through the town of Cohasset on Sunday, June 29, starting at 8 a.m. A portion of the beach parking lot will be closed at 2 p.m., on Saturday June 28. The entire parking lot will be closed until noon on Sunday June 29. Lifeguards will be on duty until 7 p.m., on June 28. Lifeguards will not be on the beach until noon on June 29.

Sandy Beach Association asks that people respect the rules of the beach. Alcohol, fires, fishing, or flotation devices are prohibited anywhere on the beach. Frisbees, hard balls, kites, skimmers and boogies boards are allowed in orange cone marked areas only. Climbing on rocks on either side of the beach is dangerous and prohibited.

This week, residents will receive the Sandy Beach Association annual fundraising letter. This mailing is the only source of fundraising for the Sandy Beach Association. These funds are used to clean the beach, staff it throughout the summer and now support the annual scholarship. Kari O'Donnell, who manages the fundraising program said, "The beach can't operate as it does without the generous support of Cohasset residents. Donations can be sent to P.O. Box 285, Cohasset. Thank you for your help and we'll see you at the beach."

Bible Study series continues on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. on Practical Christianity. Some Christians commonly view the Old Testament as a storybook-full of fascinating tales, yet ancient and irrelevant to modern reality. This exceptional 10-week study from Insight For Living with Chuck Swindoll will help you blow the dust off these timeworn chronicles and discover enduring truths that relate directly to you, while translating into reliable patterns for godly living. Experience familiar passages as never before, and find fresh inspiration in the memorable scenes revisited. Follow the examples of faithful Old Testament heroes such as Abraham, Joseph, David, and many others as you learn to apply timeless biblical principles to your everyday life. Please join us.

Our mission statement is: "Equipping God's people for living out the Good News to be the hands, feet, voice and heart of Christ in our community and in the world." How should we accomplish this? Come hear sermons to find out.

Horoscope

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
JUNE 2, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) An apparent act of injustice might turn out to be either an error in judgment or just plain stupidity. So calm down and cool off, and let the explanations roll out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's upsetting when someone you trusted might have failed you. But with new opportunities ahead, you'll soon be too busy to feel even a wee bit sorry for yourself.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A sense of uncertainty could be a good reason to change your position on an important matter. Someone close might try to talk you out of it, but it's your decision to make.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Being too zealous in pursuing your goal could create some resistance. Try to be more mindful of what you ask people to do, and they'll be more likely to do it.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Things change as you go from being ignored to being Lionized once again. This is a good time to reintroduce those previously rejected ideas to a more receptive audience.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Someone new in your life creates both anticipation as well as anxiety. Avoid the potential for misunderstandings by watching what you say and how you say it.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Watch your budget so that you don't overspend now and have less to invest when the time is right later on. Arrange to share your weekend with someone special.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The temptation to involve yourself in a friend's or family member's personal problems is laudable. But get the facts before you make a firm commitment.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You might be upset by some of your critics. But most of your associates continue to keep the faith in your ability to get the job done, and done well.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You've reached an important point in your ongoing pursuit of your goals. You might now want to consider letting someone you trust join you on your journey.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You've been going through a spate of uncertainty involving people you care for. But it might be time to take a stand on a position you feel sure you can defend.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Treading water keeps you busy, but it won't get you where you need to go. Time to stop making excuses and to start moving ahead toward your goals.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Boz Scaggs graces the Music Circus

Opens summer season with June 13 concert

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Boz Scaggs will perform at the South Shore Music Circus, 130 Sohier St., Cohasset, on June 13.

These days, when people say they enjoy the work of Boz Scaggs they may be referring not only to his music, but also to his wine. The Grammy Award-winning singer/songwriter and northern California resident — who opens the season at the South Shore Music Circus in Cohasset next Friday and plays the Cape Cod Melody Tent on July 5 — recently added vintner to his resume.

"I got involved in the wine business a few years back when my wife and I moved up to a small place in Napa. It was almost a requirement that we plant a few grape vines. One thing led to another, our yields steadily increased, and we found ourselves needing to sell some of it," explained Scaggs by telephone recently. "We live in a foodie culture in San Francisco so it seemed to make sense that we go in this new direction. Before long, what had been a hobby became a business for us.

We learned pretty quickly, however, that the wine business is not child's play. There are lots of regulations that have to be followed. This year, we're releasing our first wine — a 2006 Rose — from the Scaggs Vineyard. Initially, it will be sold in restaurants in San Francisco and then we will see where it goes from there."

Where Scaggs himself goes next is on his annual summer concert tour with a show that features some of the biggest hits in the singer's more than four decade-long career, including "Lido Shuffle," "Look What You've Done to Me," "Heart of Mine," "Lowdown," and "We're All Alone."

Born in Ohio, as William Royce Scaggs, but raised in Texas, Scaggs' earliest musical influences included rhythm and blues, soul music, early rock and roll and raw Delta and Chicago blues — the music he recalls hearing on the radio in Texas, but from places as far away as Nashville. In high school, he provided lead vocals for a band led by classmate Steve Miller. By 1965, he found himself in London and then spent the next couple of years traveling around Europe, playing everything from small clubs to sidewalk cafes before making his first record and establishing a home base in Stockholm.

In 1967, Scaggs headed to San Francisco (via India and Nepal), where he reunited with his friend and classmate, joining the Steve Miller Blues Band to take part in the now legendary Bay Area scene that was revolutionizing American rock and roll.

After two albums with Miller, Scaggs made his U.S. solo debut for Atlantic Records with the self-titled "Boz Scaggs." The release led Columbia Records to sign Scaggs, where he released a series of top-selling albums including "Moments," "Boz Scaggs & Band," and "My Time."

It was in 1976, however, that Scaggs really broke big with the release of "Silk Degrees," which he recorded with drummer Jeff Porcaro, keyboardist and arranger David Paich, bassist David Ungate, and guitarists Louie Shelton and Fred Tackett. The album was his commercial and artistic breakthrough into the mainstream. After its release, "Silk Degrees" remained on the Billboard album charts for 115 weeks, posting three chart-topping singles and becoming one of the signature albums of the 1970s. When the single "Love Look What You've Done To Me" was included on the soundtrack of the 1980 feature film "Urban Cowboy," Scaggs' soaring popularity only went higher.

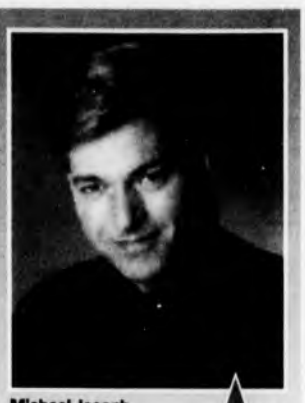
Scaggs made a few more albums—including the 1980s top-selling "Middle Man"—before taking a hiatus from the road and the pressures of stardom.

Scaggs spent a good part of the 1980s in retirement, owning and operating the San Francisco nightclub Slim's, and limiting his performances primarily to the club's annual black-tie New Year's Eve concerts. He resurfaced in 1988 with the album "Other Roads," and three years later resumed regular touring. In recent years, Scaggs has released "Greatest Hits Live," a two-disc live collection that spans his entire career. He also made "But Beautiful," in which he tackled the Great American Songbook accompanied by a jazz quartet. Later this year, Scaggs will release a second volume of standards, entitled "Speak Low," on his own Gray Cat record label. Scaggs acknowledges that recording new versions of standards associated with people like Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby and Nat King Cole has been an interesting process even for an accomplished performer.

"It opened up a whole new set of challenges for me," he says. "It's sacred ground, as far as I'm concerned, and the more I got into it, the more I realized how little I know."

What Scaggs — who will turn 64 on Sunday — does know is that, wine-making aside, performing will always have a unique place in his life.

"I'm a professional musician. It pays the bills and it satisfies the itch I've had to perform since I was 10 years old. There are very few people that I'd rather be around than musicians. When you work live, it's never the same experience twice. If it becomes boring, then you've done something wrong. Now, if I were doing this 10 or even 12 months a year, then I might feel very differently, but I love going on the road in the summer."



Boz Scaggs will be at the South Shore Music Circus, 130 Sohier St., Cohasset, on June 13. For tickets and information, visit the box office or call 617-931-2787. Scaggs will be at the Melody Tent, 21 West Main St., Hyannis, on July 5. For tickets and information, visit the box office or call 1-800-347-0808.

The Dickinson Gallery in Weymouth has designated Stephen Boczanowski of Norwell as "Featured Artist" through Sunday, June 15. A lifelong artist and educator, he was the art director of the Marshfield public schools from 1976 to 2003. He paints familiar New England scenes — busy downtown locations and buildings, like "Resident Parking Only," and shoreline scenes — boats, docks, and cottages — like "The Last Cottage," a pale gray house with faded blue shutters high up on dark stilts. He paints medium size works, around 24x36 inches, in acrylics, which he says give an exaggerated richness of color to the paintings. Concurrently, the gallery will show the work of 15 other Massachusetts artists. Preview their work at www.dickinsonarrtgallery.com. Gallery hours are Wednesday through Saturday 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. For information, and evening appointments, call 781-331-3384.

Spirited class leaves CHS

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

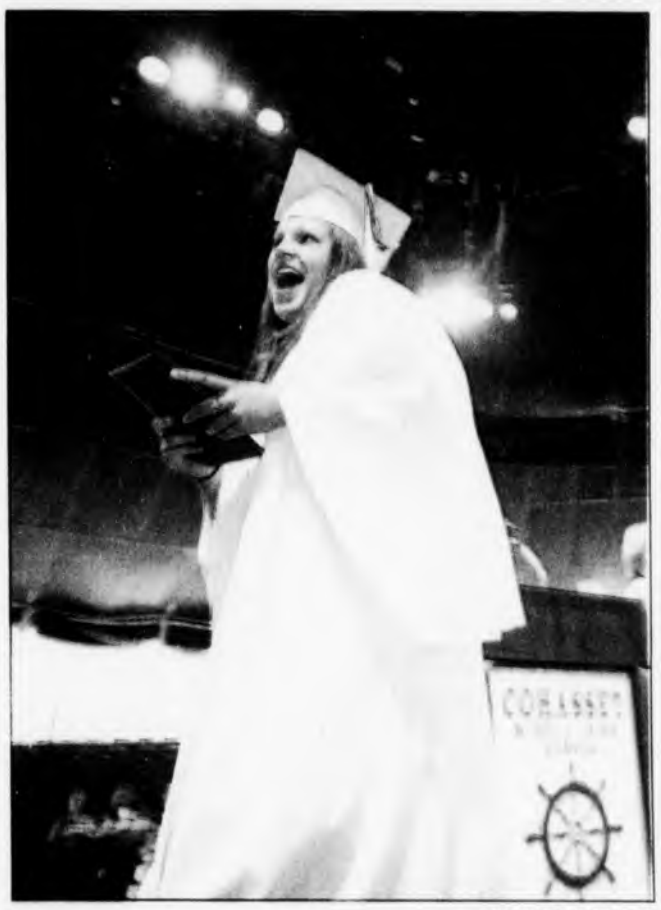
Even by Cohasset standards, at 79 graduating seniors the Cohasset High Class of 2008 was small in number. But, it's clear the community, parents, teachers, administrators and the students themselves don't expect anything less than great things from the class.

Donning the traditional blue and white cap and gowns the graduates made their way into the green and yellow South Shore Music Circus tent to the familiar chords of "Pomp and Circumstance." The over 90-degree heat prompted many to turn their programs into fans, but did not dampen the spirit of the day.

Armed with camcorders, digital cameras and proud smiles, parents, family members and friends watched their loved one accomplish this significant milestone.

The ceremony was marked with encouraging and celebratory speeches of days gone by, the bonds cemented along the way and the wide-open future ahead.

Class President Kenny Muir recounted fond memories of the journey the majority of the class has taken together since kindergarten. Muir got a few laughs when he listed off some of his fondest memories he shared with his classmates from their Osgood and Deer Hill days.



"Through situations of happiness, excitement, or embarrassment, we stuck together," said Muir. "For the class of '08 it will be hard to forget our past."

As he looked out at the audience of his 78 peers, he commented this would likely be the last time the group would be together.

"As we part ways today, I have confidence in each one of you that you will be able to give back to the world, change society, and in turn affect the lives of others down the road," said Muir. "Congratulations again to you guys. It's been real."

The Class of 2008 had many individual and group accomplishments, which serves as evidence of the very

Pondering problem

Treat's has another wrinkle

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Everything to do with Treat's Pond is complicated and usually contentious. Monday night's discussion of the town's easement to the pond and associated drainage pipe at the Selectmen's meeting was no exception.

The pond, located off of Atlantic Avenue near the intersection of Whitehead Road, has been the subject of much discussion since last summer.

Now, the town's valid easement, not used in many years, is overgrown with vegetation and is home to wildlife.

On the table with Selectmen was the town easement to the pond and its associated drainage pipe that ends at Sandy Cove. The Selectmen's meeting room was packed with residents from the Atlantic Avenue area most of whom contributed to the discussion.

There is a valid easement to the town to the pond and drainage pipe, but for what purpose can the town use the easement? That's the blurry question Town Counsel attorney Louis M. Ross of Deutsch Williams posed to the Selectmen.

"The root of the whole problem is the deed of easement is not well drafted," Ross said.

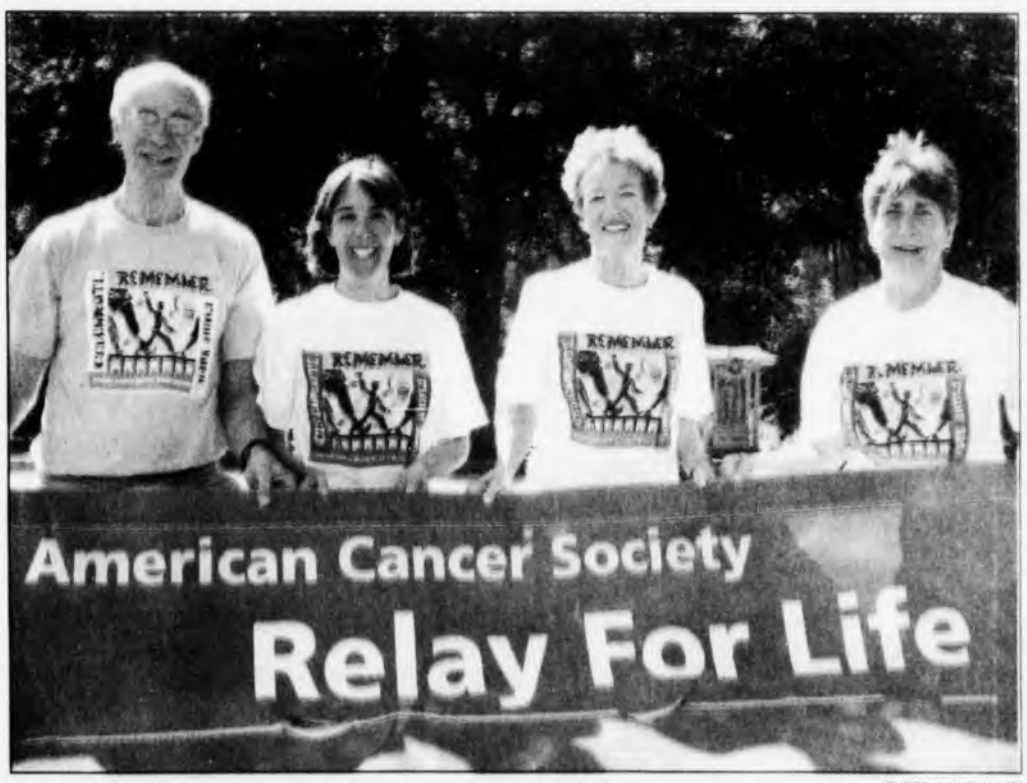
Cancer research fundraiser starts today

Relay is a family affair

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

From Friday afternoon to Saturday morning Alumni Stadium at Cohasset High School will be transformed from a football field into a makeshift campsite full of community spirit, hope and inspiration. Today (Friday) at 3p.m. the 13th annual American Cancer Society's Cohasset Relay For Life will begin.



Relay For Life chairman Harry St. Onge expects 500 people will attend the overnight benefit to raise money to find a cure for cancer and the number can only increase since the weather outlook is excellent.

For the St. Onges the Relay for Life is a family affair. Although St. Onge's family members have walked in the Relay for a number of years both his wife, Kathy, and daughter, Heather Nicholls, decided to strike out on their own this year and head up their own teams. Both decided to tap into groups of individuals who were a part of their daily life. Their efforts will bring new people to the event and experience of the Relay.

Both Kathy and Nicholls have gotten involved in the Relay because of their husband and father who is a three-time cancer survivor.

"He puts so much work into it. It's a very special event," said Nicholls.

Town bylaw on door-to-door solicitors enforced

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

Police received several complaints from residents on Jerusalem Road, Black Rock Road and Linden Drive, about the door-to-door solicitors.

Solicitors selling magazines had not realized they had crossed over from Hull into Cohasset last week. Police talked with the individual in charge who knew about Cohasset's bylaw requiring solicitors to register with the police. Chief Hussey said police dealt with the same group last year.

Police received several complaints from residents on Jerusalem Road, Black Rock Road and Linden Drive, about the door-to-door solicitors.

In responding to one of the calls, police ran a check on one of the solicitors, who was on his way to West Corner to wait for a ride. The 45-year-old California man had two warrants and he was arrested.

Hussey said police encourage residents to call if they see door-to-door solicitors. Police will know "right then and there" if the individual has registered. Police will also go out to the reported location, explain the town bylaw, and tell the person to stop soliciting until he or she registers.

Under the town bylaw, door-to-door solicitors are required to register at the police station where they can apply for a $25 license. They are required to wear a badge issued by the police that includes their name and photograph. The badge should be worn and be clearly visible.

Solicitors have to provide police with their name, address, date of birth and height, weight and eye color, Social Security number; dates and times of canvassing activities; name and address of employer; and a brief description of the purposes of the solicitation.

Exceptions to the bylaw are town, state or federal officers or employees on official business; minors under 18 unless in connection with a commercial activity; candidates for public office or campaign workers; those promoting political causes and those soliciting for charitable organizations unless those solicitors are paid.

Open container

Two Cohasset girls, 18 and 17, were arrested at 11:15 p.m. on Thursday (June 5) following a traffic stop on Border Street near Parker Avenue for failure to stay in marked lanes.

The officer saw the blue jeep driving a little fast on Elm Street and then onto Border Street and then saw it cross over the centerline and pulled it over.

The officer could smell alcohol from the vehicle and further investigation revealed an open container of beer and an open container of a mixed alcoholic beverage in the vehicle.

The operator passed field sobriety tests.

The 18-year-old was charged with minor transporting liquor, driving with an open container of alcohol, and marked lanes violation. The 17-year-old was charged with minor transporting liquor.

Teens charged

At 10 p.m. on Saturday (June 7) an officer on patrol checked out a car parked behind the Deer Hill School. As the officer approached a young female entered the woods near the school and did not return to the car, police said. The officer saw three passengers and observed the front seat passenger bend down to the floor as if to hide something. As the officer approached the driver quickly got out of the car and walked toward the officer; he was told to return to the car. Police could smell alcohol in the car. Further investigation revealed an orange soda bottle filled with a clear liquid determined to be gin; a water bottle that appeared to contain vodka; and several seltzer bottles containing liquor.

The three occupants, all 18-year-old males, were arrested for being minors in possession of alcohol.

Car break-ins

The individual responsible for car break-ins on Sanctuary Pond Road overnight Tuesday (June 3) to Wednesday (June 4) may have been arrested in Hingham. The man arrested had been using a stolen credit card belonging to a Cohasset resident whose car had been broken into. Chief Hussey said several cars on the road were broken into and it appeared the suspect just went along and checked to see if cars were unlocked.

On Sunday morning (June 8) several callers from Deep Run reported their cars had been broken into. In most cases the center consoles and glove boxes had been rifled through.

One of the cars was stolen and later found by police in South Boston. The owner had left the keys in the car because it was going to be picked up by a garage. Police hope to obtain evidence after processing the car.

Chief Hussey urges all residents to lock their cars and not to leave any valuables inside them.

Kayak stolen

Cohasset police gave a Scituate kayaker a ride back to her home after her kayak was stolen last week on Bassing Beach. The woman had gone for a walk and when she returned her kayak was gone. A search did not turn up the kayak however, police have a good description of it and detectives are investigating the apparent theft. The incident occurred on Monday (June 2) at around 3:15 p.m.

Lost in woods

A husband called for help after his wife called him from her cell phone saying she was lost in the woods and was on a trail with an "N". Hingham's K-9 unit was called but before the search was launched, the husband called back to say a good Samaritan on a walk escorted his wife out of Wompatuck State Park. The incident occurred at 10:15 a.m. on Tuesday (June 3).

Fender-bender

At 11:44 a.m. on Wednesday (June 4), a 1998 Subaru, owned and operated by a Cohasset resident, was headed east on Beechwood Street and had just gone through the light at 3A when it stopped because the road was closed due to another accident. A 2008 Acura, owned and operated by a Cohasset resident, hit the rear of the Subaru. There were no injuries and both cars were Ok to drive.

Windshield wipers

Last Wednesday (June 4) at 11:07 a.m. 1998 Lincoln, owned and operated by an elderly Cohasset man, was eastbound on Norman Todd Road approaching Beechwood Street without windshield wipers during a heavy rain. The Lincoln crossed over into the path of a 2005 Ford that was traveling westbound. The collision caused the Ford, which was owned and operated by a Cohasset resident, to go off the road, strike some ledge and a DPW sign, near 25 Beechwood St.

Police were concerned about the Lincoln operator's ability to drive. Police have asked the registry to do a medical evaluation to determine if the individual should be driving, Chief Hussey said.

The operator was cited for failure to yield the right of way, having an expired inspection sticker, and for defective equipment (windshield wipers).

Bridge jumpers

When the temperature rises, so does the number of jumpers at the Border Street bridge. There were several entries in this week's police log about kids jumping off the bridge. Chief Hussey said officers check the bridge periodically during the day and send the kids on their way. He is encouraging parents not to allow their children to participate in this activity because it can be dangerous. He said some parents are actually dropping their children off. If they see "repeat offenders" police may issue a no-trespass order and they could be subject to criminal complaint if they return.

Cohasset's newest police officer starts

Chief James Hussey introduced the Cohasset Police Department's newest member, Officer Patrick Reardon, to the Board of Selectmen on Monday night. Reardon, 23, recently graduated from the Police Academy and started work on May 30.

Hussey said Reardon grew up in Cohasset, graduated from Cohasset High, and then UMASS Boston where he majored in criminal justice. After graduation he worked as a part-time dispatcher at the Cohasset station. He self-applied to the academy with sponsorship from the Cohasset PD. In the meantime, a position opened up on the Cohasset force and Reardon was hired.

"Ever since I was younger I wanted to be in law enforcement. I'm excited for the job," said Reardon, who will finish his in-house training this week.

"It's always great to have someone with strong ties to the community," said Selectmen Chairman Ted Carr.

Dispatch Supervisor Wigmore earns Community Service Award

Tom Wigmore is the 2008 recipient of the Cohasset Police Department's Community Service Award.

"Tom is 'Cohasset home grown' and has never forgotten the Cohasset community," said Police Chief James Hussey. "This award is to recognize the efforts of the police department to give back to the town by volunteering time and efforts to make for a better community."

Through his service with the Sons of the American Legion, Tom has taken ownership of a few activities in town. Every year Tom takes it upon himself to ensure every veteran memorial and gravesite is decorated with the American flag for Memorial Day. In 2007 he initiated the "Healing Field" event at the harbor in honor of our war veterans. This while preparing for Memorial Day activities of visiting the grave sites, the parade and culminating with the ceremony at the veteran memorial on the harbor.

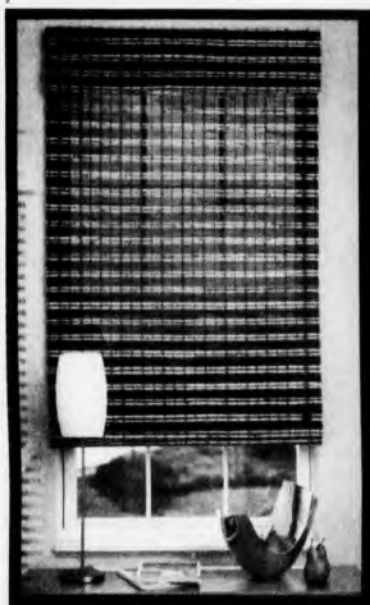
Dispatch Supervisor Tom Wigmore (center) was awarded the Police Department's Community Service Award for his valued work in the community at Monday night's Board of Selectmen meeting. Selectmen chairman Ted Carr and Police Chief James Hussey congratulate him.

Hussey said Tom has also taken on community activities with his position in the police department. Tom supervises youthful offenders who owe community service through the Quincy District Court Probation Department. Tom, in conjunction with Teacher Jack Buckley, works with high school students who have chosen the police department to do their community service project. These and many other tasks have been added to his workload.

"The police department appreciates all Tom has taken on and accomplished," said Hussey.

Lt. Lennon and Det. Hunt receive Excellence Award

On Oct. 13, 2007, the Cohasset Branch of the Sovereign Bank, located in the Cohasset Plaza, was robbed by a lone female who threatened to kill the teller, stating that "she was going to shoot her." After robbing the bank, the female robber fled the scene on foot, disappearing near the rear of the bank.



Cohasset Police Patrol Officers arrived on scene and determined that the culprit was gone from the area. The crime scene was secured and witnesses were separated for interview. Cohasset Police Detectives Lt. Gregory Lennon and Detective Garrett Hunt then conducted a methodical crime scene search and lengthy witness interviews, during which valuable evidence was recovered.

As a direct result of Lt. Lennon and Detective Hunt's outstanding job performance, attention to detail, immediate use of the "Mass Most Wanted" Web site, networking with other detective units, and excellent report writing, the robber was identified, arrested, and indicted for the following offenses: armed robbery and threatening to commit a crime.

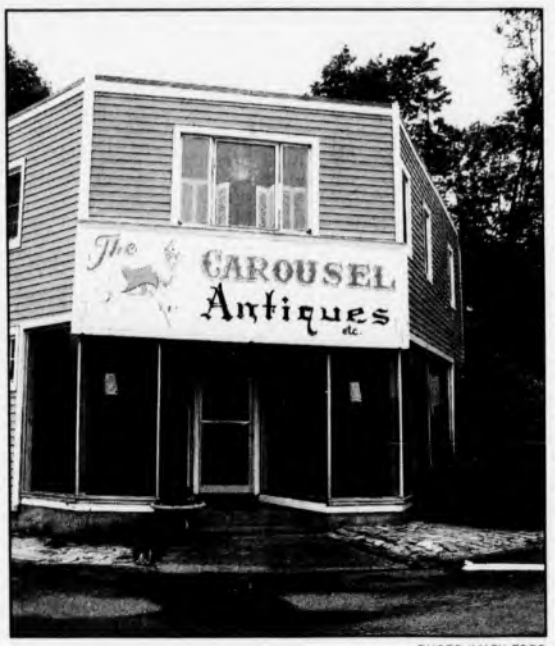
Carousel Antiques closes; All the Best to move in

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

After 32 years of business in Cohasset Carousel Antiques has closed the doors of its Ripley Road storefront. Antique aficionados will still be able to find Carousel Antiques on the internet. It's the beginning of new chapter for the mother and daughter owners who have worked side by side for over three decades.

"We ran it together all those years," said daughter and co-owner Mandy Burgoon, but she said it was time for some changes. "It was time for mom to enjoy some retirement."

Carousel Antiques opened its doors on Labor Day 1976. For the duo, Burgoon and her mother, Norma Kravette, said they never thought of running the store as work and very quickly customers became part of an extended family.



"We've had some very loyal customers and we appreciate their support through the years," said Burgoon. "It's been a fun experience and we have a lot of happy memories of the business."

Many times people would come in, sit down and have a cup of coffee and just chat. Losing the face-to-face time with customers will be the hardest part to leave behind for both her and her mother, she said.

With the growing popularity of online antiquing using services like ebay, Carousel Antiques had been expanding its business to the virtual world recently. Although selling antiques on the computer was not something Burgoon had ever imagined, it does has its advantages.

"We can reach a lot of collectors not normally in our neck of the woods," said Burgoon. She is in the process of creating a home website, but for now she is just selling through ebay.

Over the years they've had many high-profile customers come into the store, particularly visiting acts from the Music Circus. Liberace would stop in every time he came to town and amazingly, Burgoon says, he always called them by name. Bob Hope, Johnny Cash and June Carter Cash also did some antiquing at Carousel.

After 32 years Carousel Antiques has closed its doors but is still open on ebay. All the Best, a health foods store, is planning on relocating into the space.

"Most importantly, I want to thank all our loyal customers for their support and friendship over the years. We're still around, we still live here so we'll see everybody around town!"

— Mandy Burgoon, owner Carousel Antiques

"They all came back more than once," said Burgoon. "A lot of times if you are into antiquing you go back to a place where you found things you enjoy."

Talking to people through a keyboard will not be the same as talking to them face to face, but Burgoon is looking ahead to this new phase.

"Carousel Antiques will keep going — just in a different form," said Burgoon. "It's been such a way of life for us for such a long time.

"Most importantly, I want to thank all our loyal customers for their support and friendship over the years. We're still around, we still live here so we'll see everybody around town!"

The Carousel Antique building will continue to be owned by the family and they have already found a tenant to succeed them — All the Best Natural Foods owned by David Bigley.

Bigley is thrilled to have the new space more prominently located than his current location in James Brook Crossing, but he said it is sad to see such a long-standing business close.

"That's 32 years they've been there. It's another icon, like the Cohasset Hardware store, gone. These are things that have been in town for a long time," said Bigley, a Cohasset resident.

Burgoon came to Bigley before advertising the building's vacancy.

"We hope it turns out to be just as good a spot for him as it was for us. He's a familiar face, local to the town, which is great. It's nice to see another local person running a business and making a go at it."

Bigley, too, was happy to be approached about the space.

"I thought it was very nice. It's one of the benefits of living in a small town. They saw me struggling in the back here and realized it would be better for me to be out of a main street," said Bigley.

For Bigley, he is looking forward to the move. He got his keys to the building last week and his lease will begin July 1. If the move wasn't stressful enough, Bigley plans to head out of town on July 5 as a volunteer for the Appalachia Service Project. He said he's done it for eight years and made the commitment months ago so doesn't want to back out.

For right now, Bigley is taking measurements and making layout maps. While his current space and new space are roughly the same square footage, the shape of the two spaces is very different. He's looking forward to decorating the two display windows, "I'm going to have a lot of fun with it."

"I wish him 32 years of success in the building," said Burgoon.

Brief history of Carousel Antiques building

According to Cohasset Historical Society records, the 93 Ripley building was built in 1951. It was one of the earliest post-World War II commercial buildings built in the vicinity of the village. It housed a plumbing business then a paint store before ultimately becoming Carousel Antiques. Apartments were always on the second floor of the building.

Although not confirmed, the building is said to be constructed on pilings left from the Hanlon Brothers Theatre that was demolished circa 1915. The Hanlon Brothers were famous acrobats. Like many other buildings in town, Clarence Patrolia constructed the Carousel Antiques building.

Briefly

Open Meeting Law workshop planned

The town will take advantage of a Norfolk County District Attorney's Office Open Meeting Law workshop in the coming months. The Board of Selectmen voted to bring the workshop to the town so its officials could better understand the ins and outs of the Open Meeting Law.

Selectman Karen Quigley brought up the idea and said she would find the workshop helpful to clear up some of the more vague areas of the law.

The workshop comes on the heels of two District Attorney decisions that ruled town boards violated or could have violated the Open Meeting Law. In January, the School Committee violated the Open Meeting Law by improperly going into executive session. Last month, the District Attorney ruled a planned meeting of two Selectmen to discuss issues relating to Treat's Pond with others would have constituted a violation of the Open Meeting Law.

Selectman Paul Carlson offered to look into how to set up a meeting; he will report back at an upcoming meeting. A date should be set for sometime this summer.

Logo contest for mosquito control

As part of National Mosquito Control Awareness Week (June 22 – 28), the Plymouth County Mosquito Control Project is sponsoring an art contest that is open to all elementary school and middle school students in Plymouth County, and in Cohasset, which is in Norfolk County. The Project is asking students to help redesign its logo and bring it into the 21st century. The current logo, designed in the 1950s, can be found on the Project's web site, www.plymouthmosquito.com.

There will be an elementary school and a middle school winner. The winning designs will appear on the Project's web-site and will be used on our educational materials. Additionally, each winner will receive a $100 United States Savings Bond.

Further information and full details about the contest rules can be found on the Project's web site.

Her family and friends are so proud of all of her accomplishments and know that she will make an incredible teacher!

TREE PLANTED

Each year, the Community Garden Club of Cohasset marks Arbor Day by having a tree planted at one of the schools in Cohasset. It is an attempt to fulfill our mission as a chapter of the Garden Club Federation of Massachusetts and the National Garden Clubs, Inc, the mission being to educate about and promote interest in the environment. This year, our tree was one of two October Glory red maples planted in the traffic circle at Joseph Osgood School. Therefore, representatives from the garden club were invited to be part of the annual Arbor Day celebration that was held the afternoon of June 6 at the Osgood School. The concert took place in the auditorium since the weather was inclement. The performers were the students of the kindergarten, first and second grades. Each group sang two very appropriate songs. Lee Jenkins, the club president, was unable to attend, so remarks to the students were delivered by Diane Dutton. She explained that October Glory red maple was aptly named since some portion of it is red in every season — buds in the winter, flowers in the spring, leaf stalks in the summer, and brilliant leaves in the fall. It will grow at a rate of 18 inches a year to the height of 40 to 50 feet. This is wonderful to hear about and is a nice piece of community spirit that is happening in our town.

OUR WORLD

The Our World Children's Global Discovery Museum has a variety of summertime programs and camps being offered throughout the summer for ages 3-10. For more information, call 781-383-3198.

Scouts, Alec Hurd (with wheelbarrow), Derek Benson and Blake Erler rake debris, then ferry by wheelbarrow to the DPW truck.

Scouts get pond ready for Festival

On Saturday, Cohasset Boy Scouts cleaned the pond on the common in advance of the South Shore Arts Festival. Cohasset Citizen of the Year, Merle Brown, spearheaded the effort along with scout parent Tim O'Brien. Scouts earned service hours for participating in the project.

The Cohasset DPW drained the pond and lent a truck and tools so the many years of debris could be removed from the pond. Many passers-by voiced their appreciation.

Some of the items found in the pond besides the obvious leaves, muck and sticks were: one car tire, 4 baseballs, 3 hockey pucks, 5 lacrosse balls, 1/2 a hockey stick, 2 binkies, and an umbrella.

The 53rd annual South Shore Arts Center Arts Festival, scheduled for June 13 through 15 on Cohasset Common, includes the juried exhibition, as well as a sale of gallery-quality crafts, a kid's activities tent, artist demonstrations and food vendors. The three-day entertainment roster features Celtic, jazz and light classical music, as well as bluegrass and traditional Americana. Cohasset Middle School's jazz ensemble takes the stage on Friday, at 5. Jazz saxophonist Nat Seelen, originally from Hingham, and now a frequent player on stages and clubs throughout the region, performs on Saturday afternoon at 4. The O'Reilly's play on Sunday at 1.

Festival hours are Friday, June 13, 2 to 7 p.m.; Saturday, June 14, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.; and Sunday, June 15, noon to 5 p.m. A free trolley shuttles visitors from nearby parking in Sohier Street lots. A $5 entrance donation is requested. For more information and directions, visit www.ssac.org or phone 781-383-2787.

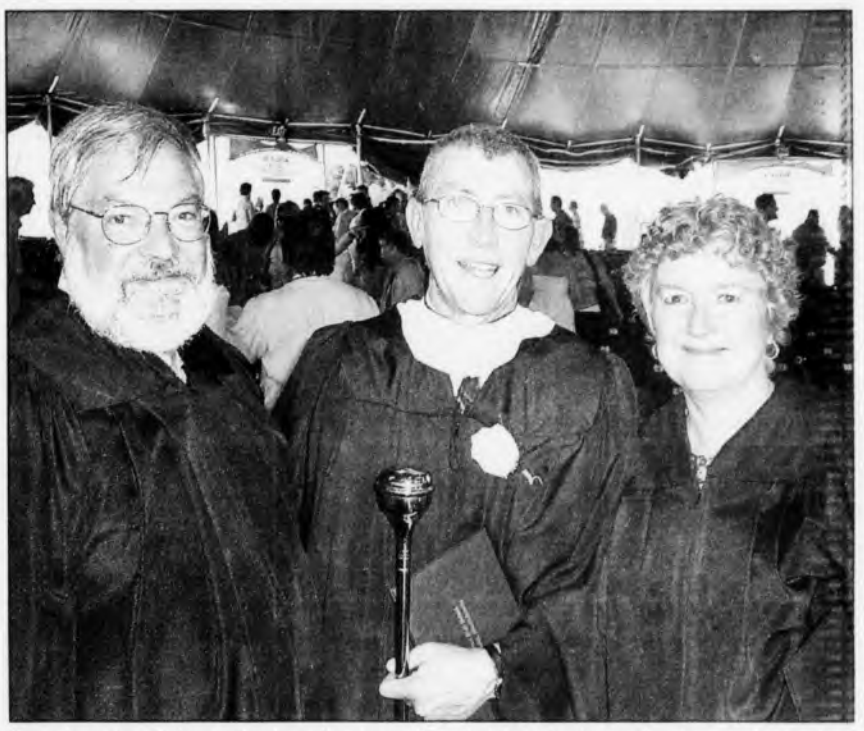
LIFE AT CHS

LAUREN MACK



Hello everyone! First, let me congratulate all those seniors who graduated high school this past weekend, you made it! As for the rest of us in school though, the year has finally started to wind down this week as the weather gets warm and the ominous final exam approaches. Also congratulations again to the tennis and lacrosse teams that competed in the state tournament and in hopes for being the next state champs. In other news this week:

- There was a fire drill on Monday, let me be the first to assure you that the alarms are working fine and sounding louder than ever.
- Tuesday was dreadfully hot, but lucky for the AP and CP Chemistry class, ice cream was made in class in order to understand freezing point depression.
- Congratulations to our newly elected school official for next year, Anna Roberts as President and Jonny Wade as Vice President, Maggie McGoldrick as Secretary, and Kristin Monaco as Treasurer.
- I'm also very delighted to say that this is the last Friday of the '07-'08 school year!

This week's Teacher Quote of the Week comes from a very experienced professional who spends just as much time meddling through wetlands as she does teaching Chemistry, Bio, and Envi-Sci at CHS. Her name is Ms. Patty McGrail, and on the topic of solvents and solutes, she stated: "You know, when Dorothy throws the water at the Wicked Witch she really isn't melting — she's actually dissolving. Otherwise there would be a gross, green puddle of witch and that would just be a big mess. It's always bugged me..." See you all next week!

Lauren Mack is a senior at Cohasset High. Her column appears weekly during the school year.

Three long-time Cohasset faculty will retire at the end of the school year, thereby "graduating" with the Class of 2008. Where will they be in 10 years? Science Department head David Magnussen: "On a beach in Costa Rica with my wife, (retiring teacher Nancy Magnussen)" Guidance counselor Ed Leonard: "Playing golf with the senior tour." Sixth grade teacher Nancy Magnussen: "Painting in Vermont."

A refreshing business

Del's Lemonade opens on Route 3A

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

If this week's heat wave is any indication, summer has arrived. As if on cue, Del's Lemonade, a new business made to cool down summer's long hot days, opened this past weekend in Jonathan Livingstone Plaza.

With a bit of nostalgia and an entrepreneurial spirit Cohasset resident Susan Franklin has opened the Del's storefront and will be operating two pushcarts this summer in Cohasset, Hingham and Scituate.

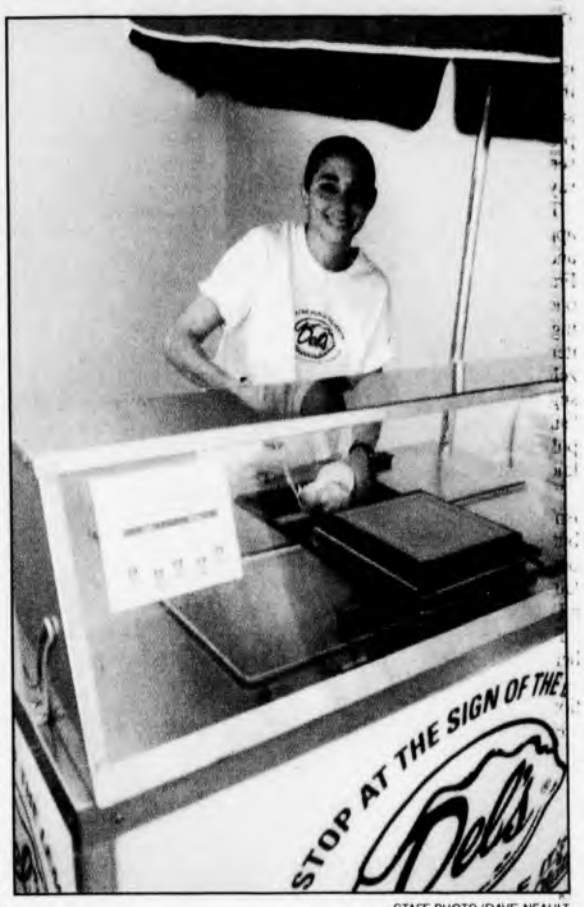
A summer institution in the state of Rhode Island, Del's Lemonade is found throughout the state. For Franklin, Del's Lemonade is an icon from her childhood that reminds her of the summer days where if you had a bike you had freedom.

"Summer to me is Del's Lemonade," says Franklin. During her childhood in East Greenwich, R.I. she would ride her bike to the local Del's to get a soft frozen lemon drink from the local Del's.

"When I'm hot I'd rather have this than anything else," says Franklin. "It has a nice flavor and is really refreshing."

With the slogan "it's refreshing different," Del's is out to change the way people look at lemonade. It's not quite slush (it's more solid) but not quite Italian ice (it's not that hard). It's "soft frozen," made with real chunks of lemon and it is a Del's tradition not to eat it with any utensils.

"You're supposed to fold the cup and shake it," says Franklin, who attests she has never used a straw or spoon to drink her Del's. For newcomers to Del's, she is happy to provide utensils.



Although lemon is the trademark flavor, Del's offers other flavors as well. Franklin will offer lemon and watermelon on a daily basis. For the adventurous palate blueberry, peach mango, cherry and pomegranate will be offered on rotating basis.

The ingredients going into the product are 100 percent natural and the water used to make the product has a sophisticated filtration system. Sizes vary from nine ounces to a 128-ounce party size to take in a cooler to boat or picnic.

The idea for opening a Del's Lemonade in an area where the business is not a household name came to her in a moment of epiphany. She has spent nearly her entire professional career working in commercial finance, the last 12 as a consultant working for herself. But, the industry sector she had been working in was changing and in the next few years work would dry up completely.

"You get used to working for yourself," says Franklin and with three kids she liked to be close to home and in the community. After doing initial research, she jumped head first into the business.

Del's Lemonade opens on Route 3A

FROM REFRESHING, PAGE 8

"I thought wouldn't it be great to see people everyday rather than a computer screen?" she says with a laugh. "I love the product. It's nice to be able to serve a product you really love," says Franklin.

The store has a whimsical appeal with green-striped walls and a bright yellow countertop. Franklin hopes to make it the one-stop summer place by offering her other favorite summer items: penny candy, soft pretzels, popcorn, fried dough with sugar as well as what she calls "summer merchandise," like puka bead necklaces and sailor knot bracelets.

"The Del's Lemonade name isn't really known in this area, but Rhode Islanders are coming out of the woodwork," she says laughing. "Everyone of them has a Del's story to share."

Franklin hopes to quickly make her Del's Lemonade a Cohasset — and South Shore — institution.

Her business philosophy centers around customer service — "this is entirely a service business, it's all about the customer experience."

She hopes to provide great, friendly service of a quality product. "I want people to feel the same passion I have for Del's."

Right now, Franklin holds the franchise rights for Cohasset, Scituate and Hingham, with the option to expand to two more. In addition to the Jonathan Livingston Plaza storefront, the Del's Lemonade pushcarts will be at the Cohasset Common, Sandy Beach, ballfields and special events like the Cohasset Triathlon. Franklin has worked it out with many of the youth sports to share a portion of the proceeds earned at games with the organizations.

Outside of town, you can see the sign of the lemon at Hingham Farmer's Market, Hingham's Fourth of July festivities, Scituate Heritage Days.

"We have a lot of room to grow," said Franklin.

Susan Franklin dishes out some delicious Del's Lemonade. For Franklin, Del's Lemonade is an icon from her childhood that reminds her of the summer days where if you had a bike you had freedom.

Del's Lemonade has long history

Del's Lemonade has always been and remains a family-owned business. Great-grandfather DeLucia made the earliest Del's Frozen Lemonade in 1840, in Naples, Italy. During the winter he carried snow into nearby caves and insulated it with straw. When summer arrived and the local lemons were ripe and flavorful, he mixed their juice with just the right amount of sugar and snow. Thus making a refreshing drink, which he sold at the local market.

Grandfather Franco DeLucia brought his father's frozen lemonade recipe to America at the turn of the century. Angelo DeLucia, his son, began work on a machine to produce the frozen lemonade, and on a method of making it a consistently excellent product. In 1948, Del's Frozen Lemonade acquired it's name and became the sole product sold at a little stand in Cranston, R.I.. Soon, Angelo had designed the first mobile units in order to serve anywhere in the state.

When Angelo's son, Bruce, entered the family business there were five franchises in Rhode Island. Since then, Bruce has made the franchise business flourish and grow. Now, there are many Del's franchises worldwide providing the refreshing, all natural treat to everyone, anywhere, anytime.

Bruce's daughter, Stephanie is now in the family business. She is president of Del's Lemonade's sister company, Francesca Enterprises International. Stephanie also works directly with web sales, promotions and marketing.

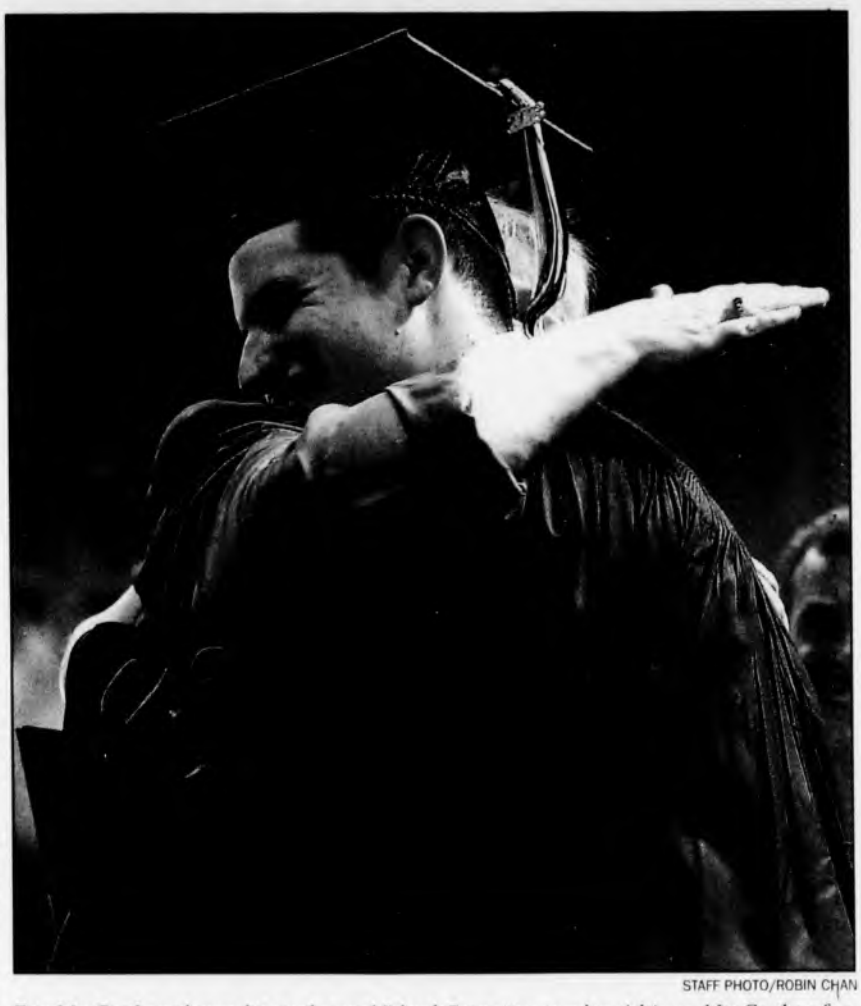
Superintendent Denise Walsh said 90 percent of the class would be going on to four-year universities, five percent to two-year programs and the rest will join the workforce. She named prestigious colleges the student would be attending like Yale, Cornell, University of Vermont, Boston University, Carnegie Mellon and Virginia Tech.

"How exciting the next chapter will be," she said. In the future that lay ahead for the graduates, she told them to focus on three words, inspired by the back of Nike t-shirt: pride, purpose and passion.



"Who you will be will be up to you," said Walsh. She told the students about the oft-asked question, especially at this point in their lives: what do you want to be when you grow up? She told the class that they shouldn't focus on the 'who' rather than the 'what.'

"The question 'what do you want to be when you grow up' focuses on the destination rather than the journey," she said, offering character trait examples to strive for like integrity, loyalty and leadership. "We're all a work in progress… We each start out fresh everyday."

She told the students to find something worth all their work, wit and life. "Care about something more than yourself…You can change the world, but enjoy the journey along the way."

Next up to the microphone was the salutatorian, Alexandra Lesniewski-Laas, who spoke about the bonds the class all share and the hometown that will always hold their childhood memories.

"We've grown up together as brothers and sisters: sometimes we may push each other off of bicycles and trick each other into believing in the boogie man, but we're there for each other when we need to be taught that the world revolves around the sun, not ourselves," said Laas.

Eric MacCarthy embraces his mother and School Committee member, Adrienne MacCarthy, after receiving his diploma from her on Saturday.

"I've known most of you longer than I've known anyone else and I can honestly say I'll miss every single one of you," she said.

Valedictorian Sarah Brown recounted the difficulty she had in finding the right words and focus for her speech. Wanting to be "profound," she found herself at a loss of words. Under the pressure, she said she did what anyone would do — procrastinated.

The next day, true to her title, she began to research quotes, watch valedictorian speeches on You Tube, and spent two days in the library with her nose in a book. Somewhere in the middle she found her inspiration: "no one is older than a high school senior, yet no one is younger than a college freshman."

"Right now, we believe that anything is possible."
— Sarah Brown, valedictorian

The senior, she said, were to be envied to be teetering on the edge of a pivotal moment, "the metaphorical precipice of life."

"People admire high school seniors because of their attitude, the unique and powerfully hopeful perspective we have towards our future. Right now, we believe that anything is possible," said Brown. She wished her classmates to "remain perpetual high school seniors."

Cohasset Middle-High Principal Joel Antolini said the class met and exceeded the very high standards set for them academically. More than that, they had spirit. When the deejay lost power at the prom, the students began an impromptu sing-a-long. When the senior girls were down at the end of the Powder Puff game, they kicked a field goal for the win.

"I wish you well as you share with the world your extraordinary skills and talents," said Antolini.

After all the diplomas had been transferred, Antolini gave the class one final order —"Class of 2008, you are dismissed!"

Kathy, along with co-captain Anna Abbruzzese, decided to call on their fellow gym goers at the Scituate BayState Athletic Club. Appropriately, their team name is the BayStaters. Many wanted to get involved as a show of support to the BayState Athletic Club's owner Susan Sieminski who recently won her battle with cancer.

"We thought it would be a good place to tap into some people who may not have been exposed to the Relay," said Kathy. They placed a sign-up sheet with balloons and information at the athletic club.

"We met a lot of people who were happy to do something like the Relay. It really brought an awareness of the event to those in Scituate," said Kathy. Despite being based in Cohasset, the Relay For Life draws from four South Shore towns including Hingham, Hull and Scituate.

For Kathy, being a part of the Relay For Life is about hope.

"We know so many people who have struggled with cancer and survived," said Kathy. "We've seen the research is slowing making progress and realize the need for more research.

"There are too many tragic stories. On the other hand, there is such hope and you can see that the night of the Relay," said Kathy. To her, the Survivors' Walk is a powerful and memorable experience. "I have the utmost respect for those that are brave enough to walk and bring that kind of hope to people."

For this year, Kathy is hoping to get as many new faces to the Relay as possible. "We wanted to get people involved and let them know what the Relay is all about," and when they come back next year she will focus on more fundraising.

Nicholls used a similar plan to establish her team, Sweet Relief. Along with co-captain Lyn Previte who is a cancer survivor, Nicholls has put together a team of mostly mothers from her Cohasset-based daycare, Sweet Relief.

"I usually am on a team with my dad, but this year I thought I know all these moms, why don't we do something other than see each other at pick-up and drop-off," said Nicholls, who expects the other moms to bring their kids along to the family-oriented event.

"So many more people are diagnosed with cancer every year. This is the small part I can do," said Nicholls.

She has built a team of over 20, many of whom this will be their first Relay.

"I didn't know what to expect with this being the first year (having a team). I just wanted to encourage people to participate. I'd rather just have people come than be stressed out about raising money."

Although raising money for the American Cancer Society is the Relay's primary goal, St. Onge says raising awareness of cancer and the support and information available through the American Cancer Society is a secondary goal.

"We want to have a Relay event that all can come to, participate in, feel good about and celebrate life and hope for all," said St. Onge.

The Relay begins today, Friday, June 13 at 3p.m. and continues until tomorrow morning, Saturday, June 14 at 10a.m. The Relay is a team-oriented event and each team should have one member walking the track at all times. This year, there are over 30 teams involved in the Relay. Organizers have set a goal of raising $130,000 through individual supporters of the cause and business sponsors.

"We want to have a Relay event that all can come to, participate in, feel good about and celebrate life and hope for all."

— Harry St. Onge, Relay chairman

The Relay is marked with several inspirational and emotional ceremonies including the Survivors' Lap around 6:45p.m. and the Luminaria Ceremony at 9p.m. During the opening ceremonies beginning at 6p.m., breast cancer survivor Kathy Brooks will speak to participants.

The Taste of the Relay with chowder, desserts, coffee and tea will begin at 6:45p.m., with entertainment provided by the Rusty Skippers. At 9 p.m. all of the luminary bags have been lit and there is a luminary lap where all walk in silence remembering those who have cancer or who have died from cancer. During this emotional lap a bagpiper plays.

Star struck town

In reading Mandy Burgoon's memories of Carousel Antiques in today's paper and finding out that Liberace and Bob Hope, and Johnny and June Carter Cash did some "antiquing" there in years past got us to thinking.

Many of you have heard the expression: "only in Cohasset" – which sometimes explains a lot about this unique community!

As we dive into summer, it is fun to recall that Cohasset has been home on a temporary basis to a lot of stars over the years.

Edwin Booth, brother of John Wilkes Booth and a noted Shakespearean actor in his day, spent time in Cohasset.

World famous acrobats, the Hanlon Brothers, used Cohasset as their summer base from the late 1800s to early 1900s.

In 1934, Humphrey Bogart and Broderick Crawford performed on the Town Hall stage all summer. At the time, Bogie was married to Mary Philips, an actress. The trio got arrested for drunk driving in Hingham, causing quite a ruckus. Crawford was driving.

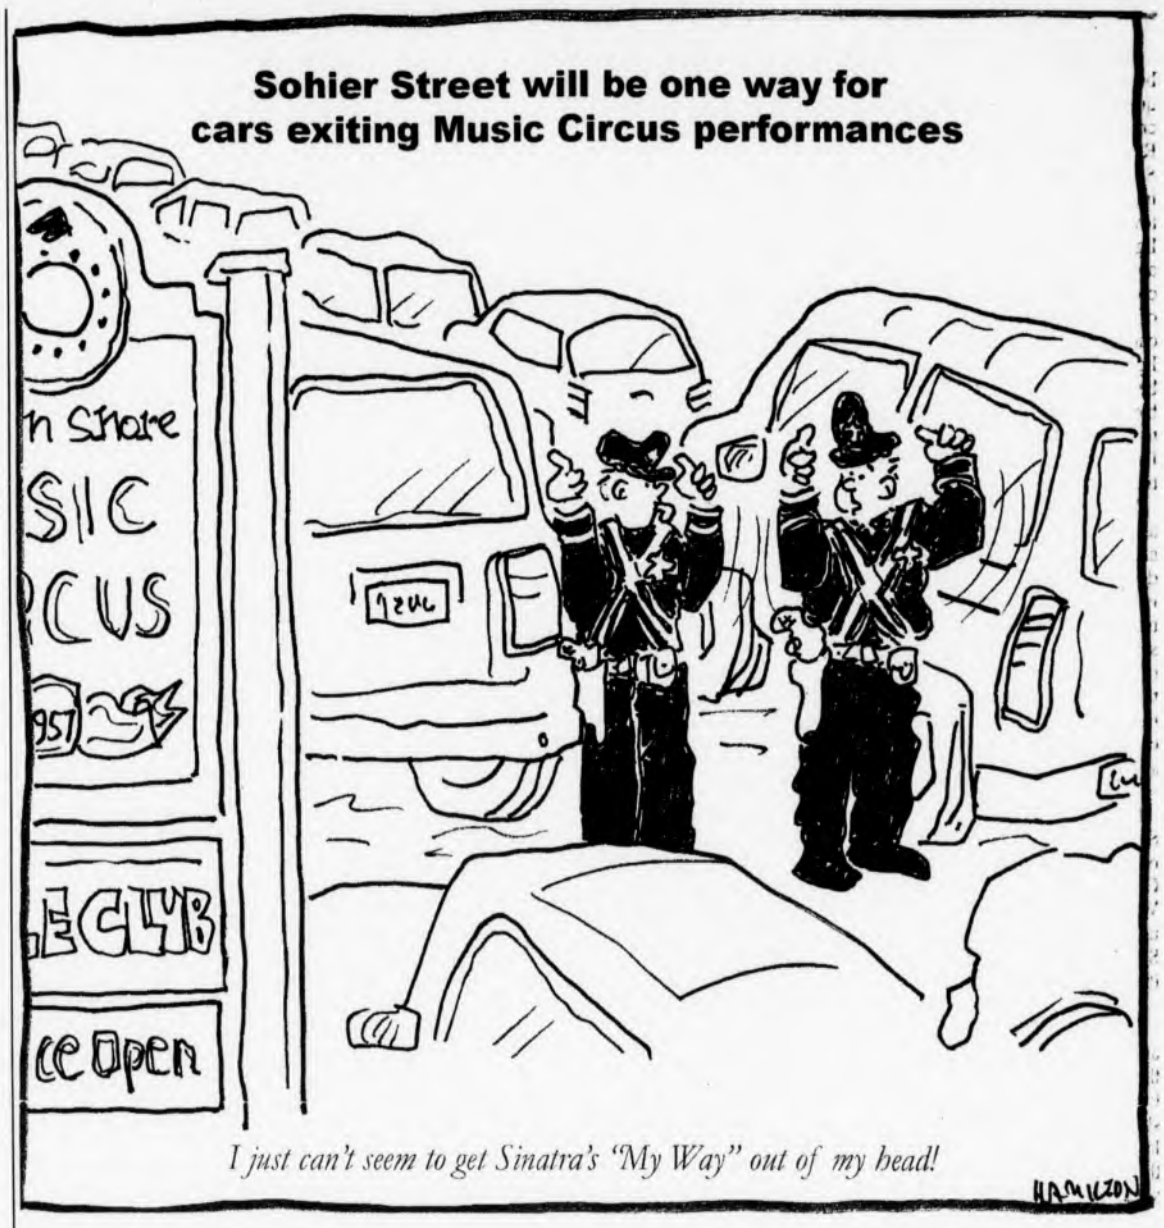
Of course, we can thank the Music Circus for so many memories. We remember bumping into Jerry Lewis at Gates clothing store in North Scituate and getting his autograph (he is known for not signing them!).

Heartthrob, Tab Hunter's arrival at the Music Circus nearly caused a stampede of high school girls.

We also recall meeting Anita Bryant on Minot Beach. She was at the Music Circus performing in "Annie Get Your Gun."

Zsa Zsa Gabor had her own room at the Cliff Hotel in Minot, complete with a pink phone.

Then there was the "Summer of 1986" when Cohasset became "Eastwick." Jack Nicholson, Susan Sarandon, Michelle Pfeiffer and Cher were all here.



A few years later in 1991, Goldie Hawn stepped off a bus at the Common Pond in the movie "Housesitter."

Today, of course, Cohasset is the hometown of Hollywood A-list star, Kate Bosworth.

If you have any memories of brushes with the stars and would like to share them, please email us at:

mford@cnc.com

We would love to hear them.

Music Circus traffic plan meeting

Police, the fire department, and officials from the Music Circus will hold a meeting at 11 a.m. Wednesday (June 18) at Town Hall to talk about the proposed new traffic exit plan following evening shows.

Police Chief James Hussey explained that plans on the table mean cars will no longer exit eastbound on Sohier Street toward the tracks because an evening train is scheduled to run about 10 minutes after the end of the shows.

However, implementing the plan has been put on hold until neighbors and other citizens can air concerns.

"My hope is that we would not discover anything that would prevent this change from happening," Hussey said.

In the past, cars have been directed both east- and westbound on Sohier Street.

Police plan to make Sohier Street one-way following the shows and use both lanes to exit the cars toward 3A.

All traffic from the Music Circus will move toward 3A where they can pull onto the highway in either direction.

Hussey said detail officers would control traffic both on Sohier Street at the Music Circus and on 3A. There would also be cones at Fairoaks Lane alerting those residents about the one-way pattern and not to make a left onto Sohier.

The one-way pattern is expected to last about 15 minutes. Officers will be in radio communication, he said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Summer memories kindled at Pat's

TO THE EDITOR:

To all the boys of summer, and my brother Bill:

My summers started with a pick up game of baseball in the turnaround, the name for the cul-de-sac down the street. There were lots of neighborhood kids playing until dark, self-umpiring, one base on an overthrow, invisible man on second when the teams thin. The homeruns were either through the Scott's windows or long enough to make it to the road that ran down the hill behind the Evans' house. Dinner was at dark, and the amount of dirt on your feet was the clue to get a bath. Walking home wading in the stream to rinse off the dirt never seemed to be good enough to not have my mother demand a bath nearly every night.

The other rite of passage for the summer was the end of school haircut. My father was bald. His idea of a haircut was a high and tight and a shaved neck and scalp. He would take all five boys down to the barber and we would each get a boy's regular. My brothers and I thought our hair was always too short when we left. With this as a motivation my brother Bill had an ingenious idea. What if he learned to cut hair, could we then wear our hair a little longer since a trim could be done whenever, and for free? He made the summer of my fourth grade.

Summer memories return to me around this time of year, kindled by my own haircut at Pat's this weekend. I sat across from a young boy probably 10 or 11 with thick, black, wavy and slightly long hair. It certainly was not in the eyes or over the collar or even uncombed, just long. It wasn't rock star length, just long. It wasn't tangled or dirty, just long. On his face he had the look of defeat, downcast, emotionless and resigned to his fate. His battle was lost. His arrows spent his shield at his side. He fought a good fight against overwhelming odds, but he did lose. The rational discussion, likely the night before, included the need and ease of care a haircut would entail, but not the severe end result that was upon him.

I heard his mother say, "Well, it is the summer, and it's time to shave it." His stoic face changed little as the razor turned on with a click and a buzz. The beautiful long locks fell away as each pass went from neck to scalp. In three minutes, the hair was scattered on the floor, to be swept up later. He still remained silent. He was waiting for the day his brother Bill comes up with a spectacular plan.

Being safe on the water

TO THE EDITOR:

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 12-3, would like to thank Gail Walsh and the Cohasset Public Library, as well as David Wadsworth and the Cohasset Historical Society-Maritime Museum, for allowing the United States Coast Guard the space in their respective buildings for promoting boating safety-paddle smart, suddenly in command.

The program is inaugurated every May by the Coast Guard and presented to the community by volunteer members of the Coast Guard Auxiliary at the start of the boating season to promote safety, educate the boating public, encourage vigilance in homeland security and help protect the marine environment of our coasts and waterways. We are very grateful for all the help in our mission.

Choosing what to drive and when

TOWARD A SUSTAINABLE COHASSET

JOANN MIRISE

Regularly, friends ask me what kind of car they should get. Knowing that I steep myself in all things energy and environmental, I am assumed to have some insight on these types of concerns. The truth is, I have had no easy answer to this inquiry.

With gas more than $4/gallon and diesel more than $5 (and climbing) the cash that supports our sprawling lifestyle is evaporating. Given that our entire country's infrastructure depends on oil, we have seen the hit everywhere from food, to services, to airline travel.

Scores of environmentally minded folks have been sounding the alarm bell for years regarding our abysmal national fuel economy standards, lack of public transportation, near zero support for bicycle travel, and almost non-existent alternative fuel options, especially in the U.S. But most of the impetus thus far has been in the name of carbon emissions and global warming, issues that have been easily overlooked since there is little daily evidence, barring of course, the occasional news byte or fluke warm spell in January. Now that the crunch is starting to hit our wallets, however, mainstream USA is taking notice, and perking up a bit to the idea of having to make some changes.

Choosing what to drive, when to drive and even if we should drive at all, is one facet that each of us can control right now.

I drove a wagon. That is until recently. Since the Brady Bunch Dodge Monaco, I have always loved these slightly funny-looking but wildly utilitarian vehicles. And I certainly got some serious utility out of my wagon. But no matter, my suped-up, twin turbo wagon was a gas hog. I tried to tell myself that at least it wasn't an SUV. And I thought about waiting it out to get something new, hoping that in the next couple of years

Confusing lights in North Scituate

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Greenbush Information — Since the train began operation last October, we have had several questions about the traffic lights at the railroad crossing at the intersection of Country Way, Gannett Road and Henry Turner Bailey Road in North Scituate. There are actually two sets of lights at the intersection as you come from Cohasset heading toward Scituate. One set is a regular set of traffic lights slightly before the intersection. These lights are easily visible from your car as you approach the crossing. The other set of lights is overhead inside of the intersection (see arrows in photo). When a car approaches the intersection this second set of lights can be seen but the red/green/yellow cannot be seen. All that can be seen looks like an inoperable set of traffic lights. However, as you get closer to the track the signal colors become visible. Drivers find this to be disconcerting and ask why the second set is not visible. Well, here's the story:

The outside set of traffic lights is designed to act as any traffic light that controls traffic flow through an intersection act. The inside set of lights are designed so that they will not be visible unless a car is in close proximity to the tracks. They only control cars in the track area. Consequently, the inside set may change colors differently from the outer set of lights. If they were both visible at the same time that would really be upsetting. So, the next time you travel through this intersection don't worry that you can't see the inside set of lights while you are outside of the intersection.

Important Detour – Speaking of North Scituate, keep in mind that work has started on the new bridge over Bound Brook at the North Scituate Greenbush Station. This work will close Country Way all summer. The detour for Country Way will use Beechwood Street to get to and from North Scituate. Keep this in mind if you patronize any of the North Scituate businesses.

Greenbush Ridership — As you can see, the average ridership is still increasing a bit. We think that the price of gas will probably cause this upward trend to continue. It is our understanding that ridership on all of the MBTA lines has increased in the last six months. It is interesting to note that four of the "cars" above are actually bicycles. But, in the spirit of "full disclosure," we counted them as cars.

Tom Keeffe inspects water valves at the storage yard.

People You Might Meet on the Little Harbor Project – This week we'd like to highlight one of the key people behind the scenes of the Project, Thomas Keeffe. Tom is an engineer with Tutela Engineering Associates, Inc. and is the engineering resource for the Water Department's work on the Little Harbor Project. Tom is a civil engineering graduate of UMass Lowell. He has been with Tutela for 20 years and is a Project Manager reporting directly to the Water Commission. He has worked on projects within the Town of Cohasset for about 15 years.

When we caught up with Tom last week, we learned some very interesting things about him. His experience covers a wide range of civil engineering design projects from environmental, storm water, wastewater treatment, and potable water systems to the construction of such systems. He did discuss one of the more unique projects he has worked on. His firm had a town, other than Cohasset, as a client that had a problem with an illicit sanitary source somehow getting into the storm water drainage system. The way they found they found the illicit connection to the storm drains was to track caffeine in the storm water to its source. (Apparently minute traces of caffeine are a significant marker for residential waste. Who would have thought?) An interesting aspect of this test was that the workers had to avoid caffeine during the testing to avoid cross-contamination that would skew the test results.

In recent years Tom and his firm have provided the engineering resources for the Water Department as they upgrade their facilities throughout the Town, both in the Little Harbor area and elsewhere. Although it is out of our normal line of vision, they worked to completely upgrade the instrumentation and controls in the plant to improve the supply and quality of the water system. We have found Tom to be an excellent engineering resource, easy to work with and very diligent in the quality of his work.

Those early Celtics

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

I see where the latest meeting between the Boston Celtics and the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA finals has tapped into a pool of nostalgia and spilled out such names as Kareem, Magic, and Larry Bird.

They don't go back far enough.

In my day, the Lakers were from Minneapolis — which makes more sense since Minnesota is known as the Land of Lakes — and the names were George Mikan, Bill Russell, and the Couse.

I saw my first Celtics games as a Patriot Ledger office boy in the '40s. I covered them occasionally as an AP staffer in the '50s. I covered them extensively as an AP stringer in the '60s and '70s.

One of their stars was Chuck Connors, who hung up his jock strap to become TV's "Rifleman."

They were a pretty shaggy dog outfit, those early Celtics.

One of their stars was Chuck Connors, who hung up his jock strap to become TV's "Rifleman." Another was Tony Lavelli of Somerville and Yale, who used to entertain the fans on the accordion at half time, an opportunity that was written into his contract.

The Ledger had a guy named Red Caulfield covering them for a while. Every now and then, the Celts would come up a man short for a practice scrimmage and Coach Honey Russell would suit up.

Once they were two men short and the coach inserted Caulfield, who came back to regale us with stories of how he made a fool out of Dutch Garfinkle, the Celtics star, if there was one.

The reigning marquee star of the Basketball Association of America (as the NBA was known then), the Kobe Bryant or Kevin Garnett of his time, was George Mikan, the center for the Minneapolis Lakers. He stood 6-foot-10 or 11. In today's game, he'd probably be a small forward.

George's favorite move was to set up in the pivot with his back to the basket and either dish off to a teammate or score himself with a devastating hook shot. He led the league in scoring three times as Minneapolis won five titles in six years.

The bane of George's existence, if there was one, was a Celtic named George Nostrand, who used to beat the Laker George back to his favorite spot and deny it to him, leaving George so frustrated that he would score only 29 instead of his usual 30 points.

The star of one of those early Celtics teams was a large, lumbering center and prolific scorer named Ed Sadowski, or Big Ed as he preferred to be called.

It's a shame that basketball is played with only one ball because when Big Ed was on the court, his teammates rarely saw it.

The story is told that the Celts were once in the midst of a rally in which everyone was handling the ball except Big Ed, who called a time out and summoned his lesser teammates around him.

"All those people come to see Big Ed score," he said. "Big Ed can't score without the ball. Give Big Ed the ball."

They did and the rally died.

Or so the story goes.

Surviving suburbia, happily so

THE FAR SIDE OF PERFECT

DIANE K. DANIELSON

Yet, no matter how much I cling to my urban roots, whether I like it or not, I've become a suburbanite.

When the Sex and the City movie opened last month, I was surprised to have only a passing interest. After all, I'd spent six years of Sunday nights sipping Chardonnay and navigating the single life along with Carrie and Co. Perhaps my lack of interest had something to do with my two-year anniversary in suburbia. As Carrie might ponder, "If you take the girl out of the city, can you ever really take the city out of the girl?"

This is exactly what crossed my mind when I first realized that city life was no longer working for me and my son. My friends, however, were much more concerned with whether there was takeout sushi and Starbucks in the suburbs. I assured them that I would still be able to get all four of my favorite food groups, the other two being wine and ice cream. Yet, they had even more worries. It seems they believed in a "suburban legend" where my moving to the burbs would result in a sudden desire to "Lily-Pulverize" my mostly black and grey wardrobe; trade in my car for an SUV; and adopt a bleached-blonde bob haircut, which they fondly refer to as the "Hingham Helmet."

It turns out that they had little to fear because the handful of colorful clothes purchased in an early attempt to blend in with the natives had long ago been relegated to my golf wardrobe (for me, black is always going to be the new black). And gas prices, along with a disdain for car salesmen, have squelched any passing thoughts of an upgrade. To top it off, I ended up dying my dark-blonde hair even darker to better match not only my low-key life style but also my natural hair color, which hadn't been seen in well over 25 years. (Note to self: If Sarah Jessica Parker couldn't even pull off dark roots, what the heck was I thinking?)

Yet, no matter how much I cling to my urban roots, whether I like it or not, I've become a suburbanite. I finally understood this when planning a recent girls' night out. As the conference calls, emails, and rapid-fire text messages circulated, my recommendations were all being talked and/or texted over. It wasn't until we (or I should say "they") made a decision, that I realized they were applying an urban rule of thumb: By the time a suburbanite had heard of a restaurant or night spot, then it's definitely not the place to see or be seen.

While I felt bad for the restaurants I had accidentally relegated to the "so last year" list, I knew that my friends had a point. Date night for me these days seems to always involve a trip to Home Depot; and most of my weekends are spent driving through Dunkin' Donuts rather than brunching and strolling on Newbury Street. In retrospect, I never really had time for Newbury Street. As for taking advantage of the city's shops and cultural events, I'm a reluctant shopper at best; and, I'll let you in on an urban secret: People who live right down the street from museums never actually go to them.

So here I am, two years later, happily ensconced in suburbia. I've discovered that I like running into someone I know every time I leave my house, and don't mind that my social life revolves around soccer and baseball games. I also enjoy the little things, like not having to parallel park. Or, when you're having trouble turning left into oncoming traffic, people actually stop to let you go. The icing on the cake though is that when they signal you to take that left, it's with a friendly wave and not their middle finger.

Nevertheless, there is still some urbanity left in this gal because while my car may eventually turn up in a "suspicious vehicle" report (too old and too small to be indigenous), at least I'll avoid the whole stolen pocketbook from the unlocked car bit. Obsessively locking my house and car is one city habit this former downtown gal has yet to break.

Happy Father's Day from Mrs. Cook's class

My dad is great! My dad is tall and skinny. His hair is thick and it's as black as my cat, Spooky. He is a hard worker and he's very friendly and helpful. My dad owns Milton South Shore Landscaping Company. The company mows lawns, trims bushes and puts leaves in the leaf machine. At home he pays the bills and sometimes he cooks. When I have a fever my dad puts an ice pack on my head. He helps me with my homework and he gives me advice. If I have a problem he makes me feel better. I feel special when my dad picks me up at school and when he tells me "Good job!" He makes me feel loved when he first sees me because he gives me a kiss and a big hug. Before I go to sleep he gives me a kiss and says, "Goodnight." I know my dad loves me. I love my dad!

Domenic Albanese

I have the best dad. He has black spiky hair and the color of his eyes, are like mine – they look like fudge. My dad looks friendly and he looks nice. He is fun, enjoyable and very loving. He works for Collection Company of America with computers. For fun my dad is an actor and sometimes he's in plays. He's very good at it. At home my dad cleans the kitchen, sometimes does the dishes, and he makes everyone happy! He helps me with my homework books if I'm falling asleep and enjoying life. I enjoy swimming, gardening, and snuggling with him. My dad makes me feel special and loved when he calls me "G-race" and when he gives me a super-deluxe hug, and when he kisses me goodnight. I love my dad!

Grace Alves

My dad is awesome! My dad has hazel hair, blue eyes and he is tall. My dad is kindhearted, funny, peaceful and a little weird sometimes…but not usually in public. My dad works for a company called John Hancock. He works in real estate. Sometimes he takes us with him to different places on his business trips. At home he keeps me and my sister entertained by acting like a comedian. I love when he makes us breakfast in the morning – it tastes gourmet. He helps me with math when I need it, and helps me when I'm researching on the computer. I enjoy going on trips, playing games and having fun playing basketball with my dad. HEALTH NOTES

Senior Center has outgrown its space

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

" We speak of an idea or process that we're impatient with in terms of its "getting old." Such is exactly the connotation that's applied to many of our elders. We tend to be impatient with their slow walk, their deliberate speech, etc. Well, cheer up; it's going to happen to you. And not only that, the ranks are swelling, relatively. In 1960 the population of Massachusetts was about 5 million Today, it's nearly 7.5 million. And the numbers of people over the age of 50 has grown. Now about a third of the people in Massachusetts are 50 years of age or older.

That's why the Massachusetts office of Elder Affairs is so important. In Cohasset anyone above 50 is covered by the Elder Affairs blanket. They receive a monthly newsletter designed to assist elders and their families with answers to questions about services and opportunities available to seniors and their caregivers in Massachusetts. You can obtain information on caring for an aging parent, securing help for an elderly neighbor, getting nutritious meals delivered to a senior's home, getting help parenting a grandchild, or learning more about prescription drug programs for elders and dozens of other necessary services.

Through the statewide elder network, the Executive Office of Elder Affairs provides services locally via the Cohasset Elder Affairs (CEA) office at the Community Center at 3 North Main St. This network reaches out to elders in need of homecare and caregiver support, nutrition programs, protective services, health and wellness services, housing options, health information, counseling and a host of other services.

The building is too small to house both Community center activities and Elder Affairs.

With two full-time staffers and three part-time staffers, the CEA manages 156 volunteers who provide service to more than 450 Cohasset elders, most of whom use the services more than once a week. Few organizations provide as much support directly to their clients as Elder Affairs.

Any elder person in Town contacting CEA can expect to receive correct answers to his or her questions be they tax questions, legal assistance, health benefit counseling, finding the right service provider from minor home repair, to help getting to their doctor's appointment.

A major problem with increased numbers of seniors receiving services, meals both at the Community Center building and at their homes, is the lack of space. It's time now to consider finding another place. The Community Center has its own clientele, serving the needs of children, daycare, and other youth services in addition to numerous programs for young, and middle adult parents and no longer has sufficient room. The building is too small to house both Community center activities and Elder Affairs.

The Town needs a better place for its seniors. Many towns have dedicated buildings for the purpose. Scituate has voted big bucks for a center for their elders. But in Cohasset, little has been done for a segment of our population that in size is now larger than our school population. Last year, elders were served 3,360 meals that they had to eat off paper plates.

It's time now for needy elders in Cohasset to have a place of their own and stop being treated like somebody else's problem. In a few short years, the Baby Boomers will enter the elder population. It is important to be equipped for the influx of this new wave.

But even more important is the fact that in the future, new science is being used to deal with problems of the elderly such as senile dementia. We'll speak of these developments in a future article because they affect more people at younger ages than we realize.

The Board of Health would like to hear from folks who have ideas about a new facility for elder affairs. Give us your thoughts.

Choosing what to drive and when

TOWARD A SUSTAINABLE COHASSET

huge strides would be made in the availability of zero-emissions vehicles. But in the end, it was time to make a change.

Determining what vehicle to get has been a long, arduous process. Part of the issue is that there aren't a whole lot of appealing alternatives. Hybrid electric, diesel/biodiesel, ethanol and natural gas are the technologies that exist on the market, but all have pretty significant disadvantages. One issue is practicality. The closest filling station for E85 (ethanol) or B20 (biodiesel) is 30 miles from Cohasset. Another issue is availability. To get one of the small, clean diesels in the U.S. is almost impossible (while they are readily available in Europe), and waiting lists still exist for hybrids. And all technologies still have serious environmental (e.g. hybrid battery disposal) and societal (e.g. food supply/pricing issues related to ethanol production) ramifications.

Given what is available, we have the responsibility to weigh all of the options and make our own choices. My best advice is to research and filter the information, much of which is oftentimes contradictory. A fine place to start is Yahoo! Auto Green Center. There is a nifty mileage and emissions calculator that allows you to compare makes and models.

Determining what vehicle to get has been a long, arduous process. Part of the issue is that there aren't a whole lot of appealing alternatives.

I have come to realize that the flip side to the hassle of not having an easy way out with a clearly superior alternative fuel automobile could be a good thing. Instead of continuing on as happy motoring Americans, feeling entitled as we always do, we will be forced to take pause and make some deeper, more thoughtful behavioral changes.

With head spinning, I finally decided my best short-term, stopgap solution was to simply downsize. I chose a Volkswagen GTI. My requirements were simple: better gas mileage, improved emissions ratings, excellent safety features, room for three booster/car seats and a trunk that will hold a decent size dump run. But no doubt, it's a small car compared to what we had. We will be forced to edit. But this is precisely how I am trying to live my life anyway, so now my vehicle is more in alignment with my life vision.

Am I satisfied with my car buying decision. Well, no, not really. I would like a zero emissions vehicle. I would like the entire country's train and public transportation system to be revamped. Locally, I would like safe bike lanes on all major thoroughfares through town. I would like bike racks throughout town. I would like to car share. I can go on.

After I got home from the dealer, admired the car in the driveway, got a little giddy from the consumer high (no, I am not immune), I pumped up the tires in my bike. And the tires in my jog stroller. Between these three sets of wheels and my determination to alter my driving behaviors, I continue on the journey of facing the challenges of our rapidly changing world.

JoAnn Mirise lives and works in Cohasset.

Sustainable Cohasset to meet

Sustainable Cohasset will meet at 7:30 p.m., on Tuesday, June 24, in the Bartow Room at St. Stephen's Church. A light supper will be served. A one hour documentary, "Kilowatt Ours," will be shown and followed by discussion and project planning for the following year. Regular monthly meetings will resume in September on the last Tuesday of each month.

During the summer months, Sustainable Cohasset members will be available at the Farmer's Market table every Thursday afternoon selling reusable cloth bags and Mrs. McCarthy's eggs. Members will also be in attendance at Holly Hill Summer Film Festival. All are welcome.

Rare chance to tour the Bellarmine House

On June 20 and 21, the Cohasset Historical Society will host a rare opportunity to tour the Bellarmine House, located at the end of Howard Gleason Road. In architecture, in local history and in panoramic views, the Bellarmine House, owned by the Jesuits of Boston College, is one of a kind.

The home was designed and built in 1880 by well-known architect Henry Hobson Richardson, who helped develop the Arts and Crafts architectural style. The estate, which sits on 8.5 acres of nearly unspoiled land originally landscaped by renowned landscape architect Frederick Law Olmsted, overlooks Cohasset Harbor to Whitehead Island, the Glades, Minot Light is discernable in the distance and then the open sea beyond.

A wine reception will be held in the evening of Friday, June 20 from 6 to 9p.m. The Cohasset High School Jazz ensemble will provide musical ambiance for the event. A silent auction will round out the event. Tickets are $30 for historical society members and $35 for non-members.

The next day, Saturday, June 21, the public is invited to view the house and enjoy the grounds from 10a.m. to 2p.m. Tickets are $10 for society members, $12 for non-members.

The tour will feature a few of the rooms in the mansion. Attendees can drink in the paralleled vistas of Cohasset's harbor and the shore as well as the beautiful walks and terraces on the eight-acre grounds.

During both times, tours of the house and its substantial grounds will be offered. Call the Cohasset Historical Society 781-383-1434 to make reservations.

Treat's Pond easement's purpose in question

To understand the issue at hand a bit of history is required. In 1964, the former property owner Elizabeth Bigelow granted the town an easement to Treat's Pond and its drainage pipe. In its simplest terms, the town was given the right and responsibility to maintain Treat's Pond as a marsh pond. The easement granted to the town is vague, but it does include the pond itself and the associated drainage pipe that runs from Treat's Pond to Sandy Cove.

"The easement and restriction is given for the promotion and development of the natural resources and open spaces (in the town) for conservation purposes," states the deed of easement.

In the late 70's the Bigelow property was subdivided into several lots; each lot the drainage pipe went through noted the drainage ditch and pipe in its deed.

For decades, the Department of Public Works with a backhoe has accessed Sandy Cove to clear the pipe on an occasional basis (usually after a significant rainfall or storm) via Lothrop Road, a paved private road. The clearing of the pipe allows the pond to drain and, according to residents, is effective in alleviating flooding.

But, the town does not have an easement to traverse Lothrop Road to gain access to the Sandy Cove and the pipe's outfall. Except in emergency circumstances, Charlie Higginson, owner of a Lothrop Road property, has requested the town cease using the private way and begin using their valid easement, roughly located off an Atlantic Avenue private driveway. He placed a chain across the access point to deny access.

Now, the town's valid easement, not used in many years, is overgrown with vegetation and is home to wildlife. At least one of the property owners the easement crosses, John Connolly of 85 Atlantic Ave., does not want to see the town utilize the easement for the purpose of clearing the drainage pipe.

"I would not look favorably on cutting back of any vegetation," said Connolly, citing drawback on appearance and wildlife in the area. He stated he believed the town's easement pertained to the pond, but not the pipe.

"There is a pattern of access that has been successful for the last 30 years," Connolly said, referring to Lothrop Road.

Despite the presence of a valid easement to the town, it's less clear what rights the easement grants to the town. Attorney Ross said the deed is vague, so it could be interpreted in many different ways.

"The question is how did (Mrs. Bigelow) want (Treat's Pond) to be maintained," said Selectman Fred Koed. "At a minimum, it seems for years the intent has been interpreted to keep the pipe clear."

Ross suggested the town work with the property owners the easement falls on to clarify what the deed means.

Mindy Evans of Sohier Street was concerned if the town sought another access point/easement and did not use the easement granted by Bigelow it could set a precedent in subsequent town/resident easement issues.

Ross said no legal precedent would be set, it would only be a question of town policy.

In the background of all this discussion is an ongoing and long-standing flooding issue affecting several houses on Atlantic Avenue and an Army Corps of Engineers proposed project to "restore the marsh to a saltwater ecosystem." The town has received federal funding support for the project, but Town Meeting ruled not to obligate the town financially just yet. A resolution of support, but need for more information and review, was determined at Annual Town Meeting in March.

Yet, in the Army Corps of Engineers proposed project, the Treat's Pond/Sandy Cove easement is not recommended to be utilized. Instead, the engineers recommended installing an outlet pipe over Whitehead Road properties or to the harbor.

On Monday night (June 16) a meeting will be held to discuss the flooding issues and possible solutions at Treat's Pond/Atlantic Avenue in conjunction with the flood control master plan.

The ability to clean the drainage pipe could be critical to the resolution of the flooding issues depending on how the town chooses to deal with both the proposed Army Corps project and the stormwater problems plaguing the area.

Despite lengthy discussion, no clear solution was forthcoming.

"I think we have a little more homework to do, but I learned a lot tonight," said Selectmen chairman Ted Carr.

Treat's Pond/Atlantic Ave. flood control meeting

As the flood control master plan process enters its final stages, the town has scheduled public hearings to allow residents to hear from engineers and contribute their own information.

On Monday, June 16 at 6:30p.m. at the Town Hall auditorium the discussion will focus on Atlantic Ave./Treat's Pond flood issues. All residents (in and outside the area of interest) are encouraged to attend and participate.

A third night, date to be determined, will be held to hear ongoing flooding issues in other areas of town.

If a resident's property is suffering from flooding issues, Town Manager Bill Griffin encouraged interested citizens to check out the "Flood Control Master Plan Map" linked off the homepage of the town website (www.townofcohasset.org) to see if their neighborhood is highlighted as a flood prone area.

Treat's Pond/Sandy Cove water sampling

During the course of Monday night's discussion, Selectmen Ralph Dormitzer, who had recused himself from the discussion because his residence is in close proximity to Treat's Pond, spoke several times from the audience as a private citizen. At one point he referenced recent water sampling done at the pond and Sandy Cove.

The Board of Health sampled the water in Treat's Pond and near the drainage pipe outfall during the week of May 19 at Dormitzer's request.

"If the pipe is left open on a regular basis, the beach will continually be polluted," said Dormitzer. He said the enterococci results were all over the state swimming standard of 104 colony forming units per 100 milliliters (cfu/100 ml) of bathing water or below.

When reached on Tuesday, Health Inspector Tara Tradd said the results did not rise to the point of a public health concern, or lead to a beach closing.

"Treat's Pond is not a public health concern because it is not a recreational water body," meaning it is not used for swimming or boating, said Tradd. She attributes the stagnant nature of the pond and the presence of water fowl as contributing factors to the high enterococci results. On May 19, a water sample was taken before the drainage pipe was opened. The enterococci levels were 2400 cfu/100 ml.

Subsequent samples taken near the drainage pipe outfall over the next few days fell between 160 and 290 cfu/100 ml. Although the results are over the state swimming standard, Tradd said there was no reason for beach-goers to be concerned.

"Once the water from the pipe hits the ocean the dilution rate is so great there is no longer a threat to swimmers," said Tradd. "The numbers don't always tell the whole story."

Tradd did caution Sandy Cove beach users to stay out of the trench where the pipe is located and may suggest to the Board of Health that caution tape or some other kind of warning be posted near the outfall.

Enterococci results taken from Treat's Pond after the pipe was open were significantly lower—340 and 290 cfu/100ml.

"Historically, Sandy Cove consistently has clean water" said Tradd, adding she recalls only one time in recent memory when the beach was closed and that was a case when a good portion of the state's beaches were closed.

"The beaches look great," said Tradd. The sample taken on the Sandy Cove this Tuesday, June 10 (not near the pipe outfall) was a nearly perfect 2 cfu/100ml.

Reaching a consensus on Common curbing

With the Little Harbor water and sewer project making its way to the streets surrounding the Common in the late summer, the town will need to make a determination on how to re-curb the area. Although initially discussed in early May, there hasn't been any more said about it since. At the initial meeting it was discussed the Selectmen would have to come to a consensus by mid-June.

New water and sewer lines will be installed on North Main Street and new water lines on Highland Avenue. After the new piping is put in, the roadway will be reclaimed and paved with a new asphalt base and topcoat. Over the years, the roads surrounding the common have been paved over and over; this process will remove all the asphalt that has built up over the years.

With the asphalt built up, the streets are approximately the same level as the curbs and the land on the Common side of the curb making it very easy — and welcoming — for cars to park. When the paving is reclaimed, the road could be as much as one foot lower than it is now.

Town engineers Tom Gruber and Mark Brennan offered the Selectmen several options for the curbing that may make the area safer, more aesthetically pleasing while maintaining parking.

To understand the issue at hand a bit of history is required. In 1964, the former property owner Elizabeth Bigelow granted the town an easement to Treat's Pond and its drainage pipe. In its simplest terms, the town was given the right and responsibility to maintain Treat's Pond as a marsh pond. The easement granted to the town is vague, but it does include the pond itself and the associated drainage pipe that runs from Treat's Pond to Sandy Cove.

"The easement and restriction is given for the promotion and development of the natural resources and open spaces (in the town) for conservation purposes," states the deed of easement.

In the late 70's the Bigelow property was subdivided into several lots; each lot the drainage pipe went through noted the drainage ditch and pipe in its deed.

For decades, the Department of Public Works with a backhoe has accessed Sandy Cove to clear the pipe on an occasional basis (usually after a significant rainfall or storm) via Lothrop Road, a paved private road. The clearing of the pipe allows the pond to drain and, according to residents, is effective in alleviating flooding.

But, the town does not have an easement to traverse Lothrop Road to gain access to the Sandy Cove and the pipe's outfall. Except in emergency circumstances, Charlie Higginson, owner of a Lothrop Road property, has requested the town cease using the private way and begin using their valid easement, roughly located off an Atlantic Avenue private driveway. He placed a chain across the access point to deny access.

Now, the town's valid easement, not used in many years, is overgrown with vegetation and is home to wildlife. At least one of the property owners the easement crosses, John Connolly of 85 Atlantic Ave., does not want to see the town utilize the easement for the purpose of clearing the drainage pipe.

"I would not look favorably on cutting back of any vegetation," said Connolly, citing drawback on appearance and wildlife in the area. He stated he believed the town's easement pertained to the pond, but not the pipe.

"There is a pattern of access that has been successful for the last 30 years," Connolly said, referring to Lothrop Road.

Despite the presence of a valid easement to the town, it's less clear what rights the easement grants to the town. Attorney Ross said the deed is vague, so it could be interpreted in many different ways.

"The question is how did (Mrs. Bigelow) want (Treat's Pond) to be maintained," said Selectman Fred Koed. "At a minimum, it seems for years the intent has been interpreted to keep the pipe clear."

Ross suggested the town work with the property owners the easement falls on to clarify what the deed means.

Mindy Evans of Sohier Street was concerned if the town sought another access point/easement and did not use the easement granted by Bigelow it could set a precedent in subsequent town/resident easement issues.

Ross said no legal precedent would be set, it would only be a question of town policy.

In the background of all this discussion is an ongoing and long-standing flooding issue affecting several houses on Atlantic Avenue and an Army Corps of Engineers proposed project to "restore the marsh to a saltwater ecosystem." The town has received federal funding support for the project, but Town Meeting ruled not to obligate the town financially just yet. A resolution of support, but need for more information and review, was determined at Annual Town Meeting in March.

Yet, in the Army Corps of Engineers proposed project, the Treat's Pond/Sandy Cove easement is not recommended to be utilized. Instead, the engineers recommended installing an outlet pipe over Whitehead Road properties or to the harbor.

On Monday night (June 16) a meeting will be held to discuss the flooding issues and possible solutions at Treat's Pond/Atlantic Avenue in conjunction with the flood control master plan.

The ability to clean the drainage pipe could be critical to the resolution of the flooding issues depending on how the town chooses to deal with both the proposed Army Corps project and the stormwater problems plaguing the area.

Despite lengthy discussion, no clear solution was forthcoming.

"I think we have a little more homework to do, but I learned a lot tonight," said Selectmen chairman Ted Carr.

Treat's Pond/Atlantic Ave. flood control meeting

As the flood control master plan process enters its final stages, the town has scheduled public hearings to allow residents to hear from engineers and contribute their own information.

On Monday, June 16 at 6:30p.m. at the Town Hall auditorium the discussion will focus on Atlantic Ave./Treat's Pond flood issues. All residents (in and outside the area of interest) are encouraged to attend and participate.

A third night, date to be determined, will be held to hear ongoing flooding issues in other areas of town.

If a resident's property is suffering from flooding issues, Town Manager Bill Griffin encouraged interested citizens to check out the "Flood Control Master Plan Map" linked off the homepage of the town website (www.townofcohasset.org) to see if their neighborhood is highlighted as a flood prone area.

Treat's Pond/Sandy Cove water sampling

During the course of Monday night's discussion, Selectmen Ralph Dormitzer, who had recused himself from the discussion because his residence is in close proximity to Treat's Pond, spoke several times from the audience as a private citizen. At one point he referenced recent water sampling done at the pond and Sandy Cove.

The Board of Health sampled the water in Treat's Pond and near the drainage pipe outfall during the week of May 19 at Dormitzer's request.

"If the pipe is left open on a regular basis, the beach will continually be polluted," said Dormitzer. He said the enterococci results were all over the state swimming standard of 104 colony forming units per 100 milliliters (cfu/100 ml) of bathing water or below.

When reached on Tuesday, Health Inspector Tara Tradd said the results did not rise to the point of a public health concern, or lead to a beach closing.

"Treat's Pond is not a public health concern because it is not a recreational water body," meaning it is not used for swimming or boating, said Tradd. She attributes the stagnant nature of the pond and the presence of water fowl as contributing factors to the high enterococci results. On May 19, a water sample was taken before the drainage pipe was opened. The enterococci levels were 2400 cfu/100 ml.

Subsequent samples taken near the drainage pipe outfall over the next few days fell between 160 and 290 cfu/100 ml. Although the results are over the state swimming standard, Tradd said there was no reason for beach-goers to be concerned.

"Once the water from the pipe hits the ocean the dilution rate is so great there is no longer a threat to swimmers," said Tradd. "The numbers don't always tell the whole story."

Tradd did caution Sandy Cove beach users to stay out of the trench where the pipe is located and may suggest to the Board of Health that caution tape or some other kind of warning be posted near the outfall.

Enterococci results taken from Treat's Pond after the pipe was open were significantly lower—340 and 290 cfu/100ml.

"Historically, Sandy Cove consistently has clean water" said Tradd, adding she recalls only one time in recent memory when the beach was closed and that was a case when a good portion of the state's beaches were closed.

"The beaches look great," said Tradd. The sample taken on the Sandy Cove this Tuesday, June 10 (not near the pipe outfall) was a nearly perfect 2 cfu/100ml.

Reaching a consensus on Common curbing

With the Little Harbor water and sewer project making its way to the streets surrounding the Common in the late summer, the town will need to make a determination on how to re-curb the area. Although initially discussed in early May, there hasn't been any more said about it since. At the initial meeting it was discussed the Selectmen would have to come to a consensus by mid-June.

New water and sewer lines will be installed on North Main Street and new water lines on Highland Avenue. After the new piping is put in, the roadway will be reclaimed and paved with a new asphalt base and topcoat. Over the years, the roads surrounding the common have been paved over and over; this process will remove all the asphalt that has built up over the years.

With the asphalt built up, the streets are approximately the same level as the curbs and the land on the Common side of the curb making it very easy — and welcoming — for cars to park. When the paving is reclaimed, the road could be as much as one foot lower than it is now.

Town engineers Tom Gruber and Mark Brennan offered the Selectmen several options for the curbing that may make the area safer, more aesthetically pleasing while maintaining parking.

Third time no charm

Skippers lose shot at third straight state championship to top rival

By Joel Racicot
JRACICOT@CNC.COM

"Those were two back breaking goals at the end of the second period."
— Cohasset head coach Stew Curran

The Cohasset High boys lacrosse legacy is already etched in stone. Over the last four seasons the Skippers have made a remarkable four state title appearances, winning two. But Wednesday wasn't the Skippers day. Instead, their natural rivals to the south, from Minot Beach, Greenbush and the Harba', finally got King Kong off their back.

It wasn't even close, as the Sailors took the first minutes of the game and never looked back, during a 17-5 win in the Division 3 state championship at Veterans Stadium in Quincy.

"At halftime, when we were winding down the darn clock, I said this game was won in the first ten minutes when [Jake] Gray made four or five lights out saves," said Cohasset head coach Stew Curran. "It's the difference of being up 4-0 or being down 5-1, and it makes a big difference. It's a game of momentum and once they put the pedal to the medal in the second half they continued to execute."

Gray played twice his size in net with 17 saves, and Scituate junior Greg Reynolds was electric on offense scoring seven goals.

"The monkeys gone," said Scituate coach Rick Bagby. "They deserve it, all these seniors and four year players. They sacrificed what could be their glory for the sake of the team. I ask them to do certain roles and they just do it."

Scituate undoubtedly had more motivation heading into the final. They lost to Cohasset the last two years, in the state semifinals in 2006 (13-11) and in the state championship in 2007 (15-14).

The loss of Tim Mahoney, a teammate, classmate and good friend, who was killed in a car accident in Cohasset back in February, also ignited their fire.

"I know they had a lot of spiritual support from the Mahoney brother, Timmy," Curran said. "He was missed by these guys and they played from the outset, they really played for Tim."

When asked about his team's energy in the opening minutes, Bagby simply replied, "We're playing for Tim."

Cohasset got on the board first on a Mike Grimm goal at 8:28 in the first period. But, Scituate struck back seconds later, as Pat Mahoney, Tim's older brother scored at 8:15, tying the game 1-1.

Scituate went on to score five of the next six goals to take a 6-2 advantage late in the half. A Mark Flibotte goal with 1:42 cut the Sailors lead to 6-3.

FROM SKIPPERS, PAGE 19

The first was on a man up goal by Kyle Crowley and the second a fast break goal by Alex Ferris, with just 14 second left in the half.

"Those were two back breaking goals at the end of the second period, one was a man up, one was a fast break, and your going into the halftime break really doubting what you can do," Curran said. "Take those two away, it's really a big difference."

The Scituate tiger zone defense proved very effective on Grimm and Flibotte. After the first meeting of the year, when Cohasset won 12-10, and Scituate couldn't contain either player, Bagby adjusted. The next time the two teams played, in the First Annual Chowda Cup, Scituate won 10-6.

Containing both players was key.

"They played their hearts out (Flibotte and Grim) but they were drawing so much attention and double teams that it really slowed them down," Curran said. "They were less than effective today because of it. Rick does a good job getting his defenders ready to go."

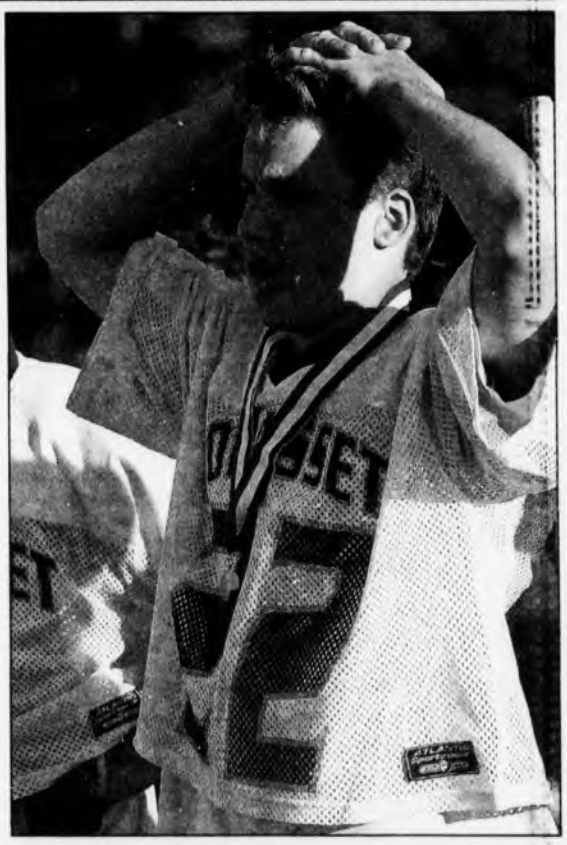
"It frustrated them last time," Bagby said about his team's defense. "We knew we would score goals, it was a matter of shutting them down."

Scituate carried the second quarter momentum into the second half, outscoring Cohasset 4-1 in the period, to take a 12-4 advantage into the final frame.

"The first four, five minutes of the second half were critical," Bagby said. "We came out very strong. That sort of dictates the half and we rolled from there."

It was a perfect end for many of the Scituate players, some of who had lost in the state title game in hockey and basketball during the winter season.

"I mean, not a day goes by I don't think about blowing the chance we had in hockey," said Scituate's Pat Mahoney. "So it feels really good to bring it home in lacrosse."



For first year-lacrosse player, and Scituate senior Steven Ferriter, this win wasn't about redemption from last year, or missed opportunities in the winter. He was just pumped to end his high school career as a winner.

"It feels pretty good," he said. "We were just really motivated to win."

As the Cohasset players filed on the bus, Curran shed some light on what has been an incredible run.

"It's unprecedented," he said about what the program has accomplished over the last four years. "We really wanted to win it though. Since we've been practicing back on March 17, we have been thinking, threepeat. We didn't put it on the jersey because it was in the back of our head."

When asked what he would say to his guys on the bus, Curran replied with, "Enjoy the day, tomorrow is a new day. We have a lot to be proud about and again, this is the best run of four years Cohasset has had in any sport."

South Shore Athlete of the Month for May:
Marshfield senior Chris Walker is one of the most feared attackmen on the South Shore lax scene and for good reason. Already the owner of Marshfield High's single-game (14) scoring record, Walker broke the MHS single-season scoring mark this month with an eight-point (five goal, three assist) performance against Whitman/Hanson. The lax captain compiled 119 points in the regular season this spring, besting the previous record of 113 set by 2000 MHS grad Sean Morris. Walker's play helped guide his Rams lax squad to an Atlantic Coast League North Div. title (11-1) and berth in the Div. 1 East Tourney.

Connecticut College Spring All-Academic Team

Cohasset's Faber among elite 48

COURTESY PHOTO

Cohasset native Ashley Faber.

The New England Small College Athletic Conference (NESCAC) has announced its 2008 Spring All-Academic Team Selections. 48 Connecticut College student-athletes have been recognized for their performance in the classroom. To be honored, a student-athlete must have reached junior academic standing and be a varsity letter winner with a cumulative grade point average of at least 3.35. A transfer student must have completed one year of study at the institution.

Tri-captain Matt Flanagan and each of the five senior members of the 10-6 Camel men's lacrosse team were named to the All-Academic team. Elizabeth Hawkins, an All-New England Crewmember for the Connecticut College sailing team that has qualified for the National Fleet Racing Championship, was one of six sailors named to the squad. Senior women's tennis captain Danielle Coleman (Westfield, N.J.), a prominent contributor to what has arguably been the most successful era of Camel women's tennis, is making her second consecutive appearance on the team.

Women's rowing co-captain Jess LeClair (Windsor Locks, Conn.) was joined by seven of her teammates on the All-Academic team. The Camels enjoyed another productive season on the water, winning a bronze medal in the varsity four at the Eastern College Athletic Conference (ECAC) Championship. Keith Drake, a three-time national qualifier between the Camel cross country and track and field program, was selected to the squad.

Women's Lacrosse tri-captain Lindsey Coit (South Portland, Maine), a two-time All-NESCAC performer and Intercollegiate Women's Lacrosse Association (IWLCA) All-Region standout, was joined by five of her teammates on the All-Academic team. Lauren Brug (Ventura, Calif.), the leading scorer for the Camel women's water polo team and a campus Housefellow, was named to the squad. Brug exploded with 64 goals in her senior season, earning her second consecutive appearance on the Northern Division All-Conference squad.

Fran Shields, the Katherine Wenk Christoffers '45 Director of Athletics and Chair of Physical Education was impressed with the academic performance of the Camel student athletes.

"We are very proud of these students' accomplishments," Shields stated. "On the field and in the classroom, it was a successful season for our programs and student athletes."

COHASSET SPORTS NOTES

Clark Road Race

Saturday, June 14, 2008 the seventh annual "Clark's Fun Run" will take place at The South Shore Music Circus. The days events include a one mile kids run (family run) at 9 a.m. with each participant receiving a medal and a t-shirt.

At 9:30 a.m. the 3.5 mile walk goes off and at 10 a.m. the 3.5 mile road race starts. Each participant will receive a t-shirt with their registration. The 3.5 mile course is scenic but challenging including the town common and Sandy Beach. Over the past seven years the Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund has donated over $100,000 dollars to the community.

Some of our projects include the purchase of two AED's for the middle high school, the construction of a new basketball court outside the Deer Hill Elementary School, the purchase of new athletic benches for the Clark Chatterton Athletic Complex at the middle high school, funding provided for the post prom activities for the senior class at the high school, bus transportation for Cohasset Metco athletes, funding for The Presidential Classroom, and funding for the Cohasset Scituate Swim Program.

Last year's race proceeds went to the purchase of a new electronic scoreboard at the Beechwood Baseball Field in Cohasset. The mission statement of the Clark Chatterton Memorial Fund is to provide educational and recreational opportunities for the children and families in Cohasset.

The road race is an opportunity for families to enjoy the beautiful town of Cohasset and to participate in an organized fun event promoting physical fitness and community support. This year Cohasset Triathlon Race Director Bill Burnett has offered his assistance in helping to plan for the day and providing support to the committee by raising the awareness of the race and drawing participants to the event, we do appreciate his help in making this a community event.

All of the race proceeds will be donated to the Cohasset Sports Partnerships "Got Turf" campaign which is raising funds to replace Alumni Field at The Clark Chatterton Athletic Complex with a turf field. If you have any questions or would like a registration form or would like to make a donation please feel free to contact Debbie Beal at dbeal@cohassetk12.org or 781-383-6100 ext 148.

You will learn everything you need to know to handle a small boat, including principles of sailing, rules of the road, safety on the water, knots and how to read the weather. The classes run for six weeks on either Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday evenings, 5:30 - approximately 7:30 p.m. Each class has a maximum of three members.

The South Shore YMCA will begin registration for their Summer Strypers swim team (formerly known as The Sharks) on June 10th, 12th (SSYMCA Members) and 17th (non members). There will be a compulsory parents meeting and equipment night (suit and flippers) on Monday June 16th at the Hanover facility.

The Summer Strypers welcomes children ages 5-18 and will offer practice groups at both the Quincy and Hanover/Mill Pond facilities. The team is recreational in focus and has an emphasis on fun, friends and improvement. This provides an excellent introduction to the fundamentals of competitive swimming. It is also a fantastic vehicle for swimmers new to the previous short course season to showcase the things they learned and the improvements they made.

This team attracts current Strypers swimmers but is largely comprised of swimmers new to competitive swimming. All swimmers must be able to swim one length of legal freestyle and backstroke. Swimmers will have practices available Monday through Thursday with meets generally held on Fridays. The program will run from Monday June 23 until Sunday August 9.

For more information please consult the South Shore YMCA Summer Program Guides and contact Strypers Head Coach Tim Mulvihill at 781-829-8585 ext 242.

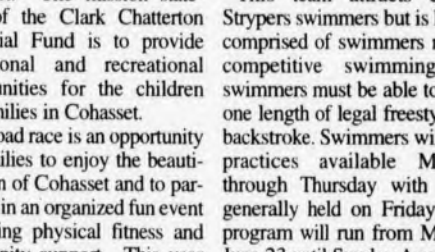
Hey Girls…Gotta Lotta Game?

Calling all girls! Home from college? Want to get back into the game? Come join the fun, see old friends, meet new ones and get a chance to participate in full court recreational games. This is a pick-up league without set teams. Each week, teams are created with players in attendance with an effort to evenly divide skill, speed, and height. There are no officials. It is a very laid back atmosphere where all ages and skill levels are welcome.



This program is open to both YMCA members and non-members ages 15 plus. For more information call 781-829-8585, ext 260 or send an email to lmontoya@ssymca.org. Thursdays 8:00 – 10:00 p.m.

Utah spa serves up scenery, hiking and relaxing treatments

Fran Golden
GATEHOUSE NEWS SERVICE

St. George, Utah -

It's the red that really gets you, as in the red rock mountains and canyons and formations of the Mojave Desert landscape.

The setting of the Red Mountain Spa in St. George, Utah, about a two-hour drive through the desert from Las Vegas, is simply spectacular.

New arrivals at the spa may find themselves standing with their jaws open as they take in the red mountains reaching into blue sky.

Some of the surrounding terrain may look familiar. Many a Western movie was filmed in these parts -- the spa is adjacent to Snow Canyon State Park, where they shot the final scenes of "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid."

Given the scenery, it is not surprising that Red Mountain, as a destination spa, is known foremost for its comprehensive hiking program, which includes daily hikes at three experience levels -- from beginner to advanced -- to explore the red limestone rocks and spires, lava flows, caves and desert flora of Snow Canyon.

There are also excursions to hike or mountain bike to see the amazing towering cliffs of Zion National Park and the stunning sandstone pinnacles of Bryce Canyon National Park -- both parks are within an hour's drive of the spa.

You can hike and bike and do other outdoor adventure activities such as horseback riding in Snow Canyon, kayaking and rock climbing. Or you can choose to spend your time relaxing your mind, body and spirit at the 55-acre resort.

In fact, Red Mountain began in 1983 as a few rustic huts designed for hikers who wanted to tackle the desert landscape. It expanded in 1999 into a destination spa and more recently (in 2006) into a fancier destination spa combining outdoor adventure and luxury pampering -- with the addition of a gorgeous facility, Sagestone, located in a striking three-story geodesic dome.

The property adopted the slogan, "Find yourself between a Rock and a Soft Place," which is just about right.

Cycling enthusiasts will find plenty of challenges in the terrain near Red Mountain Spa.

You can hike and bike and do other outdoor adventure activities such as horseback riding in Snow Canyon, kayaking and rock climbing. Or you can choose to spend your time relaxing your mind, body and spirit at the 55-acre resort.

The Native American Card Reading ($150) caught my eye on the extensive menu of daily activities. And so I found myself in a small room outfitted with feathers and other American Indian tokens.

The blonde and brassy reader started our session by lighting pungent cedarwood and performing a short ceremony where she brushed me with an eagle feather to rid me of bad spirits. She drummed and chanted -- she said she learned all this from American Indians.

Once the cards came out, she urged me to hush so she could "intuit." Her reading included my love life, and even if she seemed to offer more talk about my inner spirit than practical advise, the session was at least entertaining.

But I preferred my second American Indian-inspired choice: the Four Directions Body Treatment, delivered again by a tall, blonde woman, this time at the Sagestone spa.

The treatment (75 minutes for $160) embraces the four directions of the Medicine Wheel, and began with a "smudging," again with a feather, to get rid of my negative energy. Then I was rubbed with cornmeal and tobacco for exfoliating, rinsed in a shower, had a full body massage using cedarwood oil and a sweetgrass herbal wrap "to bring peace and good spirits to the healing."

I reflected on little of this as I relaxed post treatment, pleasingly empty-minded on a chaise lounge, staring at the breathtaking red scenery through the floor-to-ceiling windows of the spa's relaxation room.

The Sagestone spa's menu of more than 50 beauty and relaxation treatments also has offerings inspired by Asia and India. Separate men's and women's locker facilities are outfitted with steam rooms.

Fitness seekers at Red Mountain Spa will find a menu of more than 50 complimentary classes weekly, including such fun offerings as Blast from the Past, a retro aerobics class modeled on the Jane Fonda era. There are aqua classes including Off the Deep End, an invigorating deep-water workout. And there are strength classes, a variety of yoga classes and Power Pilates.

In Kundalini Yoga, I tried to "find the primordial energy at the base of the spine." And I learned to breathe and chant "Raa Maa Daa Saa," which means "sun, moon, earth, infinity." It was relaxing if not involving much effort.

The spa also offers a selection of healthy living sessions -- for $70, for instance, you can visit with a motivation coach to get you started on a fitness path.

In addition to the adventure-oriented outdoor program, there are cerebral offerings such as geology and archeology walks, stargazing and

Desert-style Luxury

Red Mountain Spa accommodates up to 210 guests in 82 guestrooms and 24 new luxury villas, all done up in earth-tones and contemporary furnishings with big bathrooms.

The resort boasts indoor and outdoor pools, a fitness center where the classes and health consultations are held, a training center with Cybex strength equipment, cardio machines and free weights, and the Canyon Breeze Restaurant and Canyon Cafe for meals and culinary classes.

All this is located in a series of small terra cotta-colored buildings connected by paths and lava bed gardens with indigenous plants. You may see a rabbit cross your path. Newbies will need a map to get around.

Food at Red Mountain Spa is simply fantastic. Chef Chad Luethje, who was raised by vegetarian parents and has cooked twice at the James Beard House in New York, has developed Adventure Cuisine menus that include herbs from the resort's organic gardens and wild game. It is healthy food with a Southwest slant, though you would never know it. The dishes range from hearty offerings like beef tenderloin with sweet potato pancake to green cuisine like roasted Japanese eggplant filled with squash and garbanzo beans. Breakfast and lunch are buffet style and include hot and cold selections. Dinner is sit-down with a full menu and accompanying salad bar.

Single travelers can sit at a communal table in the dining room. Couples, of which there are many at this spa, will have no problem finding a table for two.

No roughing it at this spa.

Whaling history comes alive at Mystic Seaport

Mystic, Conn. -

"Thar she blows! Thar she blows!" was the cry from Captain Ahab. "Man the boats," he yelled. I jumped to my feet, ready to do battle with the Great White, but the rest of my hapless crew just sat there. It was then I remembered that I was not aboard the Pequod, and that Captain Ahab was actually an actor reading from Herman Melville's epic, "Moby Dick," in a 24-hour readathon.

Get onboard the Charles W. Morgan at Mystic Seaport.

Folks are still intrigued with a profession where men would be at sea for two to five years, filling oak casks with oil from their latest whale kill. And, fortunately, Mystic is home to the Charles W. Morgan, the only remaining American whaler. Since the whaler will be undergoing a three-year overhaul beginning in November, now is the time to get onboard.

IN NEW ENGLAND

Built in 1841, the Morgan worked a remarkable 80 years when most ships had a sea life of 20 years. About 100 feet long, she had the capacity to hold 3,000 barrels of oil from 50 to 70 whales. Docked on the Mystic River, the Morgan's black hull and white sails still look strong enough to navigate the open waters - instead she is open to visitors daily and occasionally does sunset cruises.

Below deck, between the spacious captain's quarters in the back of boat and the crew's cramped bunks in the fo'c'sle, is the blubber room. Blubber was cut and stacked in 4-foot-long pieces, waiting to be thrown into an oven on the upper deck called the tryworks. This brick fireplace burned night and day until every drop of oil was rendered ("trying out"), covering the ship and all the sailors in a thick black cloud of oily, acrid smoke.

With these facts told to me in lurid detail by a Morgan guide as we rested against the boat's tryworks, I was beginning to feel a little clammy. Fortunately, on terra firma you can visit Mystic Seaport's recreation of a working 19th century sailing village with all the requisite shops, and an opportunity to cool off with an old-fashioned root beer, no blubber in sight.

CEF funds interactive white boards

By Catherine O'Callaghan
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

"The community's support behind the Cohasset Education Foundation, has enabled us to fund programs that enhance our schools and provide the necessary tools and programs our students need."
— Chris Oddleifson, president of CEF

Cohasset is joining the move of schools around the country by investing in interactive learning tools. Cohasset Education Foundation recently announced the approval of their largest grant to date to purchase 12 Promethean White Boards for Cohasset Middle High School. Students at Cohasset Middle/High School will be able to put down their pencils and interact in their classrooms using a computer stylus or pointer. The white boards will be connected to a computer and a projector and enable teachers to utilize Web sites, shared class lessons and video libraries like Safari Montage Video, funded by the CEF in 2007, among other resources. The white boards will be installed in an English classroom, two mathematics classrooms, an art room, two foreign language classrooms, three social studies classrooms, two science classrooms and the library in Cohasset Middle High School. They will allow teachers to present lessons that utilize a variety of resources increasing student motivation and learning in all content areas. CEF will present a check to Cohasset Public Schools this month for $54,320, which covers the purchase of the 12 Promethean White Boards, their installation and staff training.

Schools nationwide are endorsing this type of interactive learning, bridging the gap caused by the advent of technology. These white boards provide the interaction that is a necessary part of the learning process. Students are becoming more involved in the classrooms and teachers are able to access additional materials to enrich the curriculum with the interactive white boards. Students and teachers can draw, write, answer questions or make a selection from their desks. The information is then projected on a large screen, similar to a blackboard. The students and teachers can work together on lessons, assignments and projects. Most of the things that can be done on a desktop can be done using the white boards. Students no longer need to sit by themselves in front of a computer. They can now use the computer in a classroom setting, working and learning with other students and instructors.

The CEF awarded a grant to the Deer Hill School for a Promethean White Board in January 2007. Cassandra O'Brien, instructional technology teacher at Deer Hill School said, "The Promethean White Board has revolutionized the way I teach my computer classes. The students even beg to take quizzes with the 'activotes'."

Schools in the area are taking up fundraising programs to purchase white boards similar to the ones funded by the CEF. Hingham Education Foundation recently started a campaign to "Get Smart" to purchase white boards for their public schools. Wayland Public Schools Foundation recently purchased electronic white boards for the high school's math and English classrooms. Cohasset Education Foundation noted the success of the pilot Promethean White Board installed at Deer Hill last year and approved the grant for additional white boards for Cohasset Middle/High School.

"The community's support behind the Cohasset Education Foundation, has enabled us to fund programs that enhance our schools and provide the necessary tools and programs our students need," said Chris Oddleifson, president of CEF.

White boards are becoming a staple teaching tool in public and private schools. Since 2000, the sale of white boards has increased, with more than 148,000 boards sold nationwide this year

Cohasset Education Foundation has raised $680,000 over the past two years. The foundation has awarded more than $209,000 in grants benefiting Osgood School, Deer Hill School and Cohasset Middle/High School. Its endowment fund is currently valued at over $300,000.

Officer Regen Steverman receives Meritorious Award

On Jan. 23, 2008, Cohasset Police Officers were involved in a manhunt in the area of Jerusalem Road and Forest Avenue. Officers were attempting to locate a male who had fled from a motor vehicle after committing an unarmed robbery. This male was also wanted on four outstanding arrest warrants, including warrants for assault and battery with a dangerous weapon (baseball bat), Home Invasion, Resisting Arrest, and other crimes of extreme violence.

During the search for this male, Cohasset Police Officer Regen Steverman was positioned on Old Coach Road. The suspect was flushed out of the woods by police K-9 officers. As officers were closing in on the suspect, he stole a vehicle from a driveway. Now even more desperate, and behind the wheel of a stolen vehicle, the suspect sped directly at approaching officers, including Steverman. A quick thinking Scituate Police Detective Lieutenant rammed the stolen car off the road and disabled it, preventing officers from being struck by the car. Officer Steverman drew her firearm and ordered the suspect from the stolen vehicle. The suspect refused to exit the car. Officer's broke the driver's window of the car and pulled the suspect from behind the wheel. The suspect violently resisted arrest, but was subsequently placed into custody by Officer Steverman and others.

Officer Steverman charged the suspect with Assault with the Intent to Murder, Assault by means of a Dangerous Weapon (a motor vehicle), and a host of other crimes. The suspect was indicted by a Norfolk County Grand Jury and remains in custody awaiting trial.

"Officer Steverman displayed a high degree of professionalism, proficiency, and ability, during an extremely critical situation," said Police Chief James Hussey.

CPD confers Excellence Awards

On Feb. 10, 2008, the Cohasset Police Department received a report of a commercial burglar alarm at a local liquor store. The first officer to arrive at the liquor store was able to broadcast that witnesses were reporting that three males had broken into the rear of the store and attempted to steal a safe. The suspects were scared off by the audible alarm and subsequently fled the scene in two separate vehicles, northbound on Route 3A.

Sergeant John Conte observed the vehicles pass him on Route 3A near the intersection of Lower King Street. Sgt. Conte, with the help of Police Officer Yannizzi attempted to stop the breaking and entering suspects. Two male suspects in a single car were successfully stopped by Officer Yannizzi at the intersection of Route 3A and 228 in Hingham. Officer Yannizzi arrested the two without incident. The third male suspect, who was driving a stolen cargo van, refused to stop for Sgt. Conte, and a pursuit was initiated. Sgt. Conte pursued the stolen van through Hingham, Weymouth, Quincy, Dorchester, and South Boston. During the pursuit, the suspect rammed a Quincy Police cruiser. The pursuit ended with the operator of the van crashing into a telephone pole near Day Blvd. in South Boston.

With help from Boston Police, Massachusetts State Police, Weymouth Police, Hingham Police, and Quincy Police, the driver of the stolen van was apprehended after a foot chase. He was charged with multiple motor vehicle crimes and breaking and entering.

When looking over the officers' report, Hussey recognized one of the names from his time in youth service in the 1970s. One of the suspects has over 100 entries for breaking and entering, he said.

"These were career robbers, three very serious criminals," said Hussey. "As a result of the outstanding work by Sgt. Conte and Police Officer Yannizzi, three career criminals were taken off of the street."

SALOME'S STARS
FOR RELEASE WEEK OF
JUNE 9, 2008

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Cheer up, Lamb. Your emotional impasse will lift once you allow your highly tuned sense of justice to guide you on what to do about an associate's questionable behavior.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) News about a project you hoped to work on might need more clarification. Take nothing just on faith. Draw up a list of questions, and insist on each being fully answered.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) Giving your time to help others is fine. But don't lose sight of your own needs. Make plans for an energy-restoring getaway with that very special person in your life.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Congratulate yourself on getting that difficult job done to everyone's satisfaction. This could be the first of many such challenges you might be offered down the line.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) With your enthusiasm soaring again, you feel ready to tackle a tough new assignment. Good for you! And remember: Don't be too proud to accept help when it's offered.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Cupid rules the week for single Virgos eager to make a romantic connection. Meanwhile, Virgo couples experience renewed commitment in their relationships.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Home and work issues vie for your attention through early next week. Rely on your Libran sense of balance to keep you from being overwhelmed by either side.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Creative projects might have to go on standby as you tackle other matters making demands on your time and energy. Things should ease by the middle of next week.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Your energies are high, and so are your aspirations. But be careful not to let work dominate the week. It's also important to spend time with family and friends.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's a good time to set aside your pride and stop nursing those hurt feelings. Instead, consider restoring relationships you want to have back in your life.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You might be miffed at not being shown more appreciation for your hard work. But don't brood over it. Recognition comes in its own time and in its own way.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) With your inner creative juices starting to boil and bubble, this is a good time to launch a new arts-related project, or go back and restart the one you had set aside.

BORN THIS WEEK: You have a way of seeing the best in people, which helps encourage them to live up to your perceptions.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Bible Study series continues on Tuesdays at 7:30 p.m. on Practical Christianity. Some Christians commonly view the Old Testament as a storybook-full of fascinating tales, yet ancient and irrelevant to modern reality. This exceptional 10-week study from Insight For Living with Chuck Swindoll will help you blow the dust off these timeworn chronicles and discover enduring truths that relate directly to you, while translating into reliable patterns for godly living. Experience familiar passages as never before, and find fresh inspiration in the memorable scenes revisited. Follow the examples of faithful Old Testament heroes such as Abraham, Joseph, David, and many others as you learn to apply timeless biblical principles to your everyday life. Please join us.

Our mission statement is: "Equipping God's people for living out the Good News to be the hands, feet, voice and heart of Christ in our community and in the world." How should we accomplish this? Come hear sermons to find out.

Obituary

Jean Thompson

53-year resident of Cohasset

Jean (Johnson) Thompson, 79, of Cohasset died June 3, 2008, from complications of leukemia.

A 53-year resident of Cohasset, Mrs. Thompson graduated from New England Deaconess Hospital School of Nursing in 1950. She worked 15 years as the office nurse for pediatrician Dr. Robert T. Sceery, something she often described as "a dream job." For 10 years prior, she served as the nurse at Cohasset High School, assisting students with all manner of medical issues. She had a special affection for babies. "My greatest joy in life," she once remarked, "is children – my own and everyone else's."

Particularly after retirement, she was an active member of Second Congregational Church and devoted much energy to volunteer efforts including at the Cohasset Food Pantry, the Consignment Shop and serving on the Board of Elder Affairs. She also served as a town election worker.

Jean Thompson

Part of her courtship with her husband took place at Fenway Park, and she became a dedicated Red Sox fan and, some years later, a follower of the New England Patriots. Other interests included flower gardening, reading, playing Scrabble and keeping up with the news.

Her kindness, concern for others and gentleness of heart will be missed.

Wife of more than 50 years of the late Robert M. "Bob" Thompson, a Cohasset High School science teacher who died in 2002, she leaves two sons, Robert Thompson Jr. of Westborough and Douglas Thompson of Ashland; four grandchildren, Matthew of Arlington, Va., Ethan of Ashland, Shaun of Westborough and Alea of Ashland; and many friends.

A memorial service was held at Second Congregational Church of Cohasset.

Memorial contributions may be made to Second Congregational Church Memorial Fund, 43 Highland St., Cohasset, MA 02025; Cohasset Food Pantry c/o St. Anthony Parish, 129 South Main St., Cohasset, MA 02025; or Friends of Cohasset Elders, 3 Main St., Cohasset, MA 02025.

Cohasset tennis benefit for Children's Hospital

Save the date for Cohasset's longest-running tennis tradition, which swings into action again this summer to benefit Children's Hospital Boston beginning Friday, July 18th through Sunday, July 20th. The popular weekend tennis tournament dates back to the 1950's, when Cohasset's legendary philanthropist Jesse Cox gathered family and friends for a charitable game of tennis to benefit some of the neediest children and their families at Children's Hospital.

The event was a tremendous success and soon became an annual summer tradition. In the past 10 years alone, more than $100,000 has been raised to benefit patients and their families at the hospital, earning the Cohasset Tennis Benefit a commemorative plaque in the Children's lobby. This year all proceeds will help fund the Pediatric Trauma Program, with 100 percent of the proceeds paying for transportation, lodging and personal care packages for families of trauma patients.

This summer's benefit kicks off with an evening reception on Friday, July 18th at the Lightkeeper's Residence on Cohasset Harbor. On Saturday, July 19, tennis players of all abilities, from beginners to advanced, are evenly matched and play on some of the most spectacular private courts throughout Cohasset. Finals for three levels of play (social, intermediate and advanced) take place on Sunday, July 20th on the grounds of the Roy estate, formerly the home of Cohasset Tennis Benefit founder Jesse Cox.

For reception, tennis and registration information, or to learn about sponsorship opportunities, log on to www.cohassettennisbenefit.org.

A little magic, 'A Little Night Music'

Christine Ebersole to join Boston Pops for Sondheim revival

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Later this week, Christine Ebersole will be on stage with Keith Lockhart and the Boston Pops in a concert version of Stephen Sondheim's "A Little Night Music," but the two-time Tony Award winner also has her mind on this year's Tony Awards Sunday night at New York's Radio City Music Hall. After all, it was just last year that Ebersole won her most recent statuette for "Grey Gardens," and she has some favorites this year.

"I haven't seen a lot of shows this season, but I'm rooting for 'August: Osage County' for Best New Play. It is simply brilliant and I also love that the cast, many of whom are nominees, is from Steppenwolf in Chicago and not made up of stars," said Ebersole last week by telephone from her home in Maplewood, N.J. "I'm also hoping that Patti Lupone gets this year's award for Best Actress in a Musical for 'Gypsy.' I haven't seen her in that show yet, but she's the hardest working woman in show business."

Some might say the same of the 55-year-old Ebersole, a mother of three children — ages 11, 12, and 15 — whose credits include 11 Broadway shows, movies like "Tootsie," "Richie Rich" and "Amadeus," and even a season as a regular on "Saturday Night Live." Between 2005 and 2007, first off-Broadway and then in a rare Broadway transfer, Ebersole earned universal acclaim for the dual role of the eccentric mother-and-daughter pair Edie Beale and Little Edie Beale in the musical stage adaptation "Grey Gardens," based on the 1976 documentary of the same name.

"It was the greatest event of my career. I believed in the project from the very beginning at the Sundance Institute where we did the first workshop. It touched people's hearts and really moved them. It was one of the rare instances of something that transcended art and became something spiritual. When I was playing Little Edie (a cousin of Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis), I really felt like I was being aided by her spirit."

Ebersole was also aided in "Grey Gardens" by co-star

Christine Ebersole

Mary Louise Wilson, who took home her own 2007 Tony Award for Best Featured Actress in a Musical, and who is also appearing this week in "A Little Night Music," along with soap opera actor Ron Raines ("Guiding Light") and the Fellows of the Tanglewood Festival Chorus, at Boston's Symphony Hall.

"Working with the Boston Pops is just gigantic," says Ebersole, who previously appeared in a Pops tribute to Leonard Bernstein two years ago. "The whole experience is crazy. I was cast first, but when I heard that Mary Louise and I would be working together again I was very happy."

The material pleased the performer as well. "I will do anything that involves Stephen Sondheim's music. I'm playing Desiree Armfeldt, which is a part written for Glynis Johns, who is not really a singer. I have only one solo, 'Send in the Clowns,' but that's fine with me. The whole score is so sumptuous and rich," says Ebersole. "This show has never been revived on Broadway since 1973, when it won the Tony Award for Best Musical, so I turned down movie and television offers to do it with the Boston Pops this week in Boston and later this summer at Tanglewood.

Christine Ebersole will appear with The Boston Pops in a concert version of "A Little Night Music," June 12-14, at Symphony Hall, 301 Massachusetts Avenue, Boston. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 888-266-1200, or go online at boston-pops.org.

South Shore students advance to semi-finals in Pops' Sing-Off

Six students from Braintree, Norwell and North Quincy High Schools have advanced to the semi-finals in the Boston Pops' first High School Sing-Off: A Best of Broadway Challenge.

The students were among 22 contestants who performed songs from musical theater June 2 in Boston's Symphony Hall in hopes of ultimately performing with Keith Lockhart and the Boston Pops on the Charles River Esplanade July 3rd and 4th.

Soloist Caroline Cronin, 16, from Norwell, a student at Norwell High School, sang "Astonishing" from "Little Women." A quintet comprised of Adam Randall, 17, siblings Meghan Ryan, 15, and Michael Ryan, 17, all from Braintree, along with sisters Brianna Shetler, 15, and Kirsten Shetler, 17, of Quincy, students at North Quincy High School, sang "One Day More" from "Les Misérables."

The six semi-finalists will perform with the Boston Pops June 17 and 18 — three each evening. Three of them will move forward to the final round.

Two finalists will perform with the Pops July 1, and the High School Sing-Off winner will perform during the Boston Pops Fireworks Spectacular on July 4 on Boston's Esplanade.

Goodbye, Boston

'She Loves Me' is Nicholas Martin's parting gift

By R. Scott Reedy
CORRESPONDENT

Local theater lovers may be forlorn that Nicholas Martin is ending his 8-year run as artistic director at the Huntington Theatre to take the same post at the Williamstown Theatre Festival, but perhaps they should take some solace in his farewell production — the gorgeously rendered "She Loves Me," a musical comedy about anonymous pen pals and a love letter for Boston with no "Dear John" overtones anywhere to be found. That is, unless you want to read something into the fact that Martin's final Boston production is transferring intact to the Berkshires only days after it closes at the Boston University Theatre. No need to fret, however — Martin isn't a two-timer. He's just a gifted, and efficient, director who got the Huntington and Williamstown to share expenses for James Noone's beautiful sets and Robert Morgan's brightly stylish costumes.

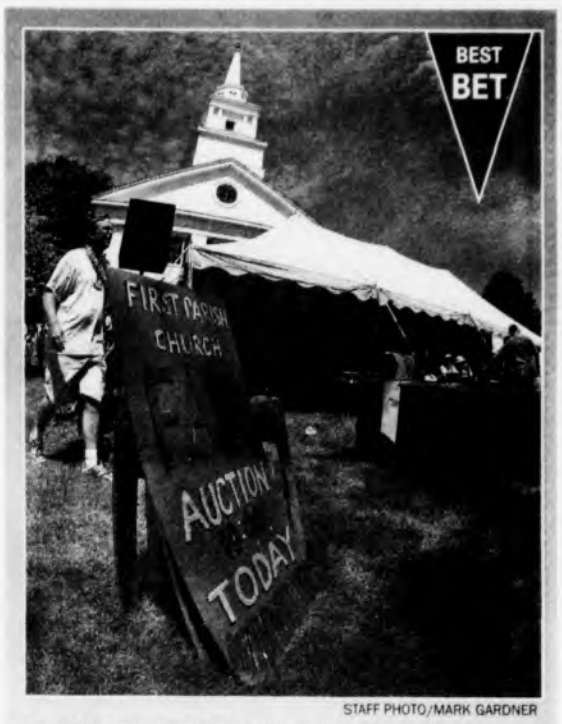
The Nicholas Martin era at the Huntington won't soon be forgotten. His direction of Kate Burton in the classics "Hedda Gabler" and "The Cherry Orchard;" a pre-Broadway revival of "Butley," starring Nathan Lane; the wildly different, but equally worthwhile "Betty's Summer Vacation" and "The Rose Tattoo," both with Andrea Martin; and Christopher Durang and Debra Monk in Durang's own "Laughing Wild" are but a few of the unforgettable theater memories Martin has given Boston audiences.

His latest, the wonderfully entertaining 1963 musical comedy from the legendary team of Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick ("Fiddler on the Roof"), with a book by Joe Masteroff, is in league with Martin's best work and features a talented cast led by Brooks Ashmanskas, who was a memorable comic foil for Victor Garber in last season's splendid "Present Laughter." This time around, Ashmanskas has the lead as Georg Howack, a perfume counter professional in 1934 Budapest, and runs with it all the way to a near-perfect take on the show's bouncy and winning Act II title song.

Based on the play "Parfumerie" by Miklos Laszlo, which was adapted into not one, but two feature films — 1940s "The Shop around the Corner," starring Jimmy Stewart and Margaret Sullavan, and 1998's "You've Got Mail," with Tom Hanks and Meg Ryan — the musical centers on the unlikely correspondence-based romance between co-workers who can't stand each other when they're on the clock.

In the role of Amalia Balash, originated on Broadway by Barbara Cook, Kate Baldwin has an acting style that is well-matched to Ashmanskas and a voice that, while not quite the equal of the crystalline Cook, is well-suited to classic show tunes like "I Don't Know His Name," "Will He Like Me," and "Vanilla Ice Cream." A 13-piece orchestra, led by Charlie Alterman, hovers over the proceedings on a second tier of the set, providing first-rate accompaniment.

The rest of the cast is top-notch, too, including Tony Award-winner Dick Latessa ("Hairspray") as the curmudgeonly store owner; Mark Nelson as the longtime employee just looking to hang on until the end; and Jeremy Beck as the delivery boy hoping to change careers without changing companies. Two stand-outs among the supporting players are Jessica Stone as Ilona Ritter, the store clerk who is in the market for a man but isn't always the wisest shopper; and Troy Britton Johnson as suave ladies' man Steven Kodaly, whose slick veneer is often transparent. Stone is delightful and touching on "A Trip to the Library," which finds Ilona explaining the improbable route that finally led her to the man of her dreams. And Johnson, in a role created by quintessential Broadway leading man Jack Cassidy, turns a firing into a fanciful farewell in Act II's "Grand Knowing You."



With "She Loves Me," Martin bids his own fanciful farewell to Boston. He will be missed.

The Huntington Theatre production of "She Loves Me" will be at the Boston University Theatre, 264 Huntington Avenue, Boston, through June 15. For tickets and information, visit the box office, call 617-266-0800 or go online at huntingtontheatre.org.

WHY YOU SHOULDN'T TRANSFER YOUR ASSETS.

Has someone told you, you need to give your assets away to protect them?
If you transfer your assets, you will:

- Lose control of them forever
- Be dependent on those you transfer them to.
- Create additional taxes to those you transfer to.
- Risk losing them to your children's bankruptcy, lawsuits or to your children's spouses in divorce
- Lose significant tax advantages
- Risk becoming ineligible for Medicaid for 60 months or more.

Asset protection planning includes many complex laws including tax law, trust law, Medicaid law, probate law and contract law.

Make sure your attorney is qualified to protect you.

We have developed unique asset protection trusts that:

- Allow you to control your assets until death
- Allow you to retain all income from your assets.
- Has a "trap door" to access assets if needed.
- Enable you to protect your assets from the nursing home
- Ensure you qualify for Medicaid in the shortest period of time possible (often less than three years).
- May protect your IRAs without having to liquidate and pay tax.

Surviving and thriving

Cohasset native pens book on overcoming tragedy

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

When Jerry White, then a college junior, stepped on a landmine in Israel, he lost a part of his right leg. But, what he gained was a life's purpose and the strength to help others.

White, a Cohasset native, has harnessed his life experience as a survivor of a landmine explosion and the stories of hundreds of other survivors of all different types of tragedy around the world to write a book, "I Will Not Be Broken: Five Steps to Overcoming a Life Crisis."

"I have met so many victims of tragedy who not only survive, but grow stronger and thrive," said White. His book is a recipe for overcoming adversity in one's life — no matter what form it takes. Through his work with Survivor Corps he has found the keys to living well after tragedy to be similar across borders, cultures and no matter if the tragedy was a cancer diagnosis or war.

In his book, he shows there is a way back to hope and fulfillment after tragedy.

"The power of the human spirit is the most inspiring," said White.

Back in his hometown to visit his mother Mimi White of Sheldon Road, White signed books and talked to residents at an event this past weekend.

The book goes hand in hand with White's ongoing and tireless efforts to unite survivors around the world through Survivor Corps, an organization he founded and serves as executive director. The net proceeds of the book will go to Survivor Corps efforts around the globe.

White said "life is a landmine," it is impossible to predict when or what life will throw at us.

Coming soon!

Old Colony Square is on the horizon

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Worried they had seen little action as to the construction of the shopping plaza in the Transit-Oriented District, the Planning Board asked the developers to come before them to give an update.

According to Planning Board Chairman Al Moore, the report was positive and the developers plan to begin work on the site this summer. The currently barren five-acre site, adjacent to the MBTA station right over the Hingham line, will be transformed into a flourishing mixed-use development with restaurants, shops and apartments.

The developer, Connell Cohasset Greenbush LLC, an affiliate of New Jersey-based Connell Real Estate & Development Co., brought forth plans for the town's first — and only — transit oriented overlay district, or TOD. The mixed-use project received site plan approval from the Planning Board in the fall.

The complex will create a new entrance gate to the Cohasset community. The shopping plaza, dubbed "Old Colony Square," will be a two-story complex with 33,000 square feet of first floor retail/commercial space in conjunction and 22,000 square feet of residential space on the second floor.

The project site was formerly housed a boat storage yard and a small retail center.

Architectural renderings of the project show varying roof heights, different storefront façades, cupolas and a clock tower centerpiece. During the site plan review, the developers indicated they would look for smaller retailers, not big

Cohasset Carillon in a class by itself

Summer concert series begins June 29

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

During eight Sundays of the summer, the Cohasset Common and village is turned into a concert hall where the sounds of 57 bells high above the village play some of the most beautiful music anywhere.

Next Sunday, June 29, will begin the Cohasset Carillon summer recital series. The Carillon is a unique musical instrument (one of only 150 in North America) that has history, charm and versatility.

Tucked into the Gothic stone tower of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, the instrument was cast as a 23-bell carillon in 1924. In the 1920s and 1930s thousands would flock to Cohasset to hear the carillon.

Given as gift to the town from Jane W. Bancroft in memory of her mother Jessie M. Barron, the carillon has been expanded over the years. In 1925, 20 more bells were added, and the eight lower bells were installed in 1928. On the 65th anniversary of the carillon in 1989, the carillon was renovated and enlarged to 57 bells.

Now, it is the largest carillon by number of bells in New England and is one of the few carillons in the world with a range sufficient to permit the performance of every piece composed for carillon.

Police address Music Circus concerns

New exit strategy to be piloted this weekend

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Each year, the South Shore Music Circus brings thousands of people to Cohasset. At every show, it is always an adventure getting those patrons out of the parking lot.

With the start up of the Greenbush train, the Police Department and the Music Circus staff got together to talk about potential issues with the train and how to maintain safety standards with hundreds of cars exiting at the end of the night. A MBTA train crosses the Sohier Street grade crossing at approximately 10:40p.m., about 10 minutes after shows let out.

In the past, cars have been directed both east- and westbound on Sohier Street.

"We'd sending a lot of cars over the railroad tracks," said Police Chief James Hussey, then most cars heading to Route 3A would need to cross the tracks again to get to where they want to go.

A new exit strategy was proposed to make Sohier Street a one-way street, directing all traffic toward Route 3A using both lanes of Sohier Street.

However, at least one Sohier Street resident, is concerned about fire and police response times in the event of an emergency on Sohier or the Fairoaks neighborhood. Bill White of 162 Sohier St. directly adjacent to the Music Circus, expressed concern about fire trucks or ambulances getting through the traffic after the show in a timely manner.

"It is an increase in risk for me for ambulance or fire trucks to get to my house. Sometimes a couple of minutes makes a difference," said White. "I'm not saying it can't be done, I would just like to see a plan to ease my mind."

Hussey invited White and any other interested residents to a meeting at the Town Hall on Wednesday morning at 11a.m. White was the only resident to attend. South Shore Music Circus General Manager Vince Longo also attended.

Hussey said White's concerns were well taken and would look into developing a clear response plan in conjunction with the fire department in case of an emergency following the Music Circus show.

However, Hussey said he believed the medical or fire response teams would not be delayed. If a call for a medical emergency came in, the police details on Sohier Street would know about it almost immediately. The three-to-four minutes before the fire department arrives on Sohier Street would give the officers the lead time they would need to clear a path for the ambulance and fire truck on the street.

Longo estimates it would typically take less than 15 minutes to clear the parking lot after a show. There would also be cones at Fairoaks Lane alerting those residents about the one-way pattern and not to make a left onto Sohier.

Hussey said the police department planned to run their first pilot test of the new traffic pattern at this weekend's Music Circus show.

"The idea is to keep everyone safe," said Hussey. "We'll test it and see what happens. Let's see if it works the way we think it's going to work."

Hussey said if the traffic pattern tests go well, they could run a response time test to make sure a fire truck or ambulance could respond in a timely manner to Sohier Street in the event of an emergency.

Hussey thanked White for sharing his concerns; "it makes us to our job better."

Hussey said it has been the practice for four or five detail officers to be assigned to Music Circus shows. That will not change but the officers may be deployed differently at the conclusion of the show. The Music Circus covers the cost of the detail officers. The new traffic pattern is not going to add any cost to the police department, he said.

Signs will be posted inside the Music Circus to alert patrons of the new traffic patterns. The signs will encourage drivers to use the left hand lane if they want to head toward Scituate and the right hand lane to head toward Hingham.

School Committee gets homework

The School Committee was given some summer reading of their own on Wednesday night. Superintendent of Schools Denise Walsh handed two documents for the School Committee to peruse —"Understanding the Open Meeting Law" and guide to the Massachusetts Public Records Law.

In January, the School Committee violated the Open Meeting Law by improperly going into executive session. There reasons for going into executive session are few and narrowly defined and the reason(s) for going into executive session must be enumerated and voted on before going into executive session.

The document about the Public Records Law, Walsh said, answers the basic question what is a public record and what are the exemptions for public records. Walsh said it would provide the information the committee members may need to answer questions from the public about records.

"The business of education is much different than what's required for a corporation," said Walsh, adding it may provide an understanding and it may raise more questions, either way "it will be helpful."

Teen arrested after party broken up

By Mary Ford
MFORD@CNC.COM

A 19-year-old Cohasset woman was arrested after police arrived at her Nichols Road home finding more than two dozen other teens and young adults, all who had been drinking.

Police were responding to a caller who said there was a large party "getting out of control" at 3 a.m. on Saturday (June 14). When the officer arrived some of the partygoers ran off in different directions. About one-half dozen were standing or sitting in the driveway, one of whom was the host, who told police her mother was away on a business trip, Chief James Hussey said.

There were beer cans and bottles strewn inside the house and in the yard.

Hull, Scituate and Weymouth police provided mutual aid. Fifteen of the partygoers were released to their parents or a responsible adult; 12 were taken into protective custody and brought to the station. All had been drinking and were in varying states of intoxication, police said. Ages ranged from 19-21.

The 19-year-old party host was charged with providing liquor to minors, being a minor in possession of alcohol and keeping a noisy and disorderly house.

The party host is a former Hingham resident. Most of those in attendance were from Hingham, police said.

Altercation

On Tuesday (June 10) a verbal altercation occurred on Deep Run between a resident and a construction worker after the resident's cable service was torn up by the construction crew. Police restored the peace and the supervisor was called down to work out an agreement with the homeowner to resolve the problem and get the service restored.

Motorcycle

An officer was on patrol on Hull Street on Tuesday (June 10) when at about 1:30 p.m. he saw a motorcycle approach without an inspection sticker. The officer pulled the motorcycle over by Lamberts Lane and found out that while the operator had a valid driver's license, he did not have a license to operate a motorcycle. The motorcycle was properly registered, police said. The Westport man is being summonsed to court on the charge of being an unlicensed operator; the motorcycle had to be towed.

Car breaks

Cohasset police are seeking criminal complaints against a 22-year-old Quincy man arrested June 4 in Hingham on charges of breaking and entering a motor vehicle, larceny from a motor vehicle and receiving stolen property. Cohasset police followed up with Hingham detectives after items allegedly found in the suspect's possession belonged to a Cohasset resident whose car had been broken into. The man will face the Cohasset charges of breaking and entering a motor vehicle and larceny under $250.

Suspended license

A 24-year-old Scituate man, stopped for speeding, was arrested for driving on a suspended license and on an outstanding warrant, police said.

On Friday (June 13), at 8:45 p.m., Cohasset police stopped the vehicle for speeding on Route 3A by Coastal Cleaners. A computer check revealed the driver had a suspended license and also had an active warrant on a similar charge.

Ride home

Police gave an intoxicated man that was parked in the Music Circus lot following Friday's show a ride home.

Police said the man was parked the wrong way. Because the motor vehicle was parked, he was not charged with operating under the influence. The Cohasset man was driven home. His car was moved to Ripley Road so it did not interfere with post-show traffic and it was later towed, police said.

Motel party

Police were called to break up a party with about 15 people at a local motel on Sunday (June 15) at 1:15 a.m. Police said the noise was bothering a hotel guest. Police advised the attendees to return to their own rooms for the night.

Larcenies

A walk-in to the police station reported her jacket that had been hanging in her car had been stolen sometime between Saturday and Monday morning when she went out to the car and saw that it was missing. There was no forced entry and police believe at least one of the car doors was unlocked.

Another woman had her pocketbook stolen from her unlocked car. She parked on Ripley Road near Depot Court on June 12 and said the theft occurred between 8:40 and 9:15 a.m. Her license, credit cards and personal papers were all taken.

An iPod and CDs were reported taken from a car on Deep Run last week. The theft appears to be another in a series of car break-ins on that street.

Straits Pond Watershed Association presents new video at annual meeting

The annual meeting that follows is when friends and neighbors from Hull, Cohasset and Hingham, come together to hear what has been going on in regard to the Pond over the past 12 months.

The Straits Pond Watershed Association (SPWA) announces the world premiere of their video "Straits Pond Through The Years And Seasons" which will be viewed at their annual meeting (which will be open to the public). From 7 to 9 p.m. June 25 at Cohasset Town Hall (Basement Meeting ROOM) 41 Highland Ave.

The video (which was funded by a grant from the Hull Cultural Council) represents a year's worth of work by many individuals. It shows/tells about the geology that caused what we now know as Straits Pond and traces its uses and issues to today.

The annual meeting that follows is when friends and neighbors from Hull, Cohasset and Hingham, come together to hear what has been going on in regard to the Pond over the past 12 months.

This year the special guest will be Cohasset Town Manager, Bill Griffin. He will respond to questions asked by SPWA and the audience. He will also talk about how he expects the West Corner bridge/culvert replacement project to be managed and more specifically how he expects traffic to be directed during construction.

Visitors and new members are invited to share their thoughts and opinions about the Pond. Merle Graham, treasurer, will be at the meeting and will gladly answer your questions about membership.

The shopping plaza, dubbed "Old Colony Square," will be a two-story complex with 33,000 square feet of first floor retail/commercial space in conjunction and 22,000 square feet of residential space on the second floor.

box stores, to occupy the storefronts. Coffee shops, drycleaners, small restaurant chains, a fitness center and other independent retailers were offered as examples during the site plan review process.

A separate building situated closer to Chief Justice Cushing Highway (Route 3A) is slated for a 3,400 square foot bank with a drive-thru.

Negotiations with the MBTA for an easement between the two plots of land have delayed the project, said Moore in a phone interview. With that behind them, the developers plan to begin construction as early as this summer. Along with the shopping plaza, there will be an addition of a traffic light on Route 3A.

The project will be the town's first and only transit-oriented district project. The development has done its best to comply with the spirit of the TOD bylaw, as defined in the town's zoning bylaws and as encouraged by the state's "smart growth" initiative. The intent of TOD developments is to encourage sustainable living by locating a high-density, mixed-use center near public transportation. The idea is to take cars off the road and create pedestrian friendly living.

Above the first floor retail in the main building will be 14 to 18 apartments, a combination of one- and two-bedroom units. Two of the apartment units will be qualify as affordable under the state's Chapter 40B to comply with the town's inclusionary bylaw.

On site, the plans call for roughly 200 parking spots.

SCHOOL'S OUT

Hello Cohasset and congratulations to all of the students who finished another year of school. The summer is here and it is sure to be a fun and rewarding one for all. Whether you are going to camp, the beach, the Town pool or just hanging at home, make sure to wear your sunscreen, follow the rules and most of all, HAVE FUN!

TOP GRAD

Congratulations are in order for the following Cohasset student. On Friday, May 30, Peter Sanchez graduated from Lawrence Academy during the school's 215th commencement exercises in Groton, Mass. In addition to his academic efforts, which earned him a commendation as a freshman and high-honors grades in Anatomy and Physiology, as well as in Choreography — as a senior, Peter was a four-year member of the school's wrestling team, serving this year as a captain. He also played for three years on the football team and participated in dance classes for which he both choreographed and performed original pieces.

During his first Winterim, a two-week experiential learning session in March, Peter observed the social behavior of the wolf packs in Yellowstone National Park. In following years, he kayaked, bicycled, and hiked from coast to coast in Baja, Mexico, learning about the local environment and culture, and he kayaked in Yucatan, Mexico, studying the ecology with local naturalists, learning about the area's history, and interacting with the local Mexican communities. The son of Janet O'Donnell and Israel Sanchez of Cohasset, Peter will attend Roanoke College in the fall. Wow to all of your accomplishments Peter, everyone is proud of you, that is for sure!

Danielle Mahar completed her sixth grade year at Thayer Academy Middle School with academic achievement high honors and effort honors.

Cassandra Mahar graduated from Thayer Academy Middle School with yearlong academic achievement high honors and effort high honors.

Here is a special photo that was taken at the Joseph Osgood School Arbor Day celebration. The children are "good citizens" of Osgood according to Bob LeCount and were chosen to represent the school. They are standing in front of the tree donated by the Community Garden Club of Cohasset.

DAFFODILS!

The Scituate Garden Club wants to make Scituate a "lovely yellow town" next Spring and in doing so, also wanted to extend the offer to all of us here in Cohasset. They want daffodils to sprout everywhere.

The Club is selling daffodil bulbs at the bargain price of $28/bag of 100. It is their hope that our citizens will buy a bag and then plant a few bulbs just about everywhere. People are encouraged to buy a bag then plant some on their property and then donate some to their school, their church, their neighborhood association and then plant some at the nearby corner or along the street at the edge of their property.

The towns will really glow all over! The bulbs will be available in mid-Sept. Send your order and a check for $28/bag of 100 to: Scituate Garden Club c/o Peggy Scahill, 40 Driftway E-30, Scituate, MA 02066 Include Name, Address and Phone # (so you can be called in Sept when they arrive). Let's make the towns glow!

HONORED

Anya Gruber and Isabel Robinson, eighth graders at Cohasset Middle School, were honored at the Eighth Annual Scholar Leader Award dinner, held at the DCU Center in Worcester, on May 29, 2008. The Scholar Leader Award is organized annually by the New England League of Middle Schools and the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Middle Level Educators. Anya and Isabel were presented with the award to recognize their academic achievement, providing service to classmates and their school, exemplifying positive attitudes and demonstrating honesty, integrity and leadership in the classroom and in school activities. Nearly 700 hundred guests attended the event, including 128 eighth-grade students representing 64 schools all over Massachusetts. Robert Spear, Executive Director of the New England League of Middle Schools, praised the students for their willingness to help others and for choosing to aspire to excellence in their personal and school lives. Congratulations to both of you, your family and friends are all so proud of you.

"It's really a world class instrument," says Assistant Carillonneur and Cohasset resident Mary Kennedy.

Carillonneur Sally Slade Warner, who has played at carillons all over North America and Europe, attests the Cohasset Carillon is one of the best in the world.

"Carillonneurs fight to come play in Cohasset," says Warner with a laugh. "It is one of the best carillons anywhere."

Part of the reason, she says, is the bells are high quality to begin with and have (and continue to be) well maintained with annual service. A grant from Jane Cook, the original donor's daughter, has enabled the carillon to stay in top-notch condition. The instrument itself has extensive range and the entire catalog of carillon music can be played on it.

"Many people don't realize there is absolutely no electricity in the carillon," says Warner. The carillonneur plays the instrument in a room on the four flights up, with the bell tower directly above. The instrument is entirely mechanical, with each pedal or key attached to a corresponding bell.

The keyboard, which consists of small, rounded manual levers as well as larger pedal keys. Both rows are arranged in the same order as piano or organ keys. Single keys are typically played with a loose fist, with the side of the little finger resting on the key. Chords are played with an open hand.

Warner says it takes skill and practice to make multiple bells sound well together. The reason is each bell of the carillon has five distinct partial tones. A sensitive player can control the tone and volume of each bell to an almost infinitesimal degree with each stroke of the hand or foot, she says.

Neither Warner nor Kennedy can simply pinpoint one type of music they enjoy playing most which speaks to the endless versatility of the instrument. Everything from classical to show tunes to folk music to the Beatles can and is played on the bells.

The carillon can play lively — and well-known — music. Kennedy plays "Zippity do dah" to the delight of her granddaughter. Patriotic songs, songs from the "Sound of Music," Beethoven, "Ave Maria" are just a few of the artists/songs in the carillon's repertoire.

The large openings in the bell tower allow the sound to carry well throughout the village.

"The best place to listen to the carillon is where the listener can see the openings of the tower (without tree or building obstruction)," says Warner. However, depending on wind and weather conditions the music can carry far. How far? Some people have told her they have listened to the bells from the harbor.

Because the carillon is the most public of instruments, teaching and practicing is done on a separate practice keyboard, matching the tower keyboard in size and configuration. It is located in a studio in the parish house. The keys are connected to small hammers, which strike metal tone bars. The sound is much more tinny, but the practice room affords the carillonneur and students the necessary privacy required for the mastery of an instrument that can be heard all over the center of town.

"One of the first things I learned was if I make a mistake, just keep playing," says Kennedy. Both Warner and Kennedy learned to play the carillon from the late Earl Chamberlain, who served as the Cohasset carillonneur from 1938 to 1985.

After four year training under the Chamberlain, Warner spent a year at the Royal Carillon School in Mechelen, Belgium, the original and largest European carillon school. At the close of her studies, she earned her carillonneur certificate. She is a full-fledged carillonneur member of the Guild of Carillonneurs of North America.

Warner inherited the Cohasset Carillon post from Chamberlain in 1985.

The Carillon Summer Concert series will begin its 84th season on Sunday, June 29 from 6 to 7p.m. and continue every Sunday for seven more weeks. The first recital will feature a visiting carillonneur from Denmark, Ulla Laage.

The Cohasset Carillon summer series claims the oldest continuing annual carillon recital series in North America, having begun with the installation of the first bells in 1924. Guest carillonneurs from around the world, as well as Warner, play each Sunday.

Kennedy would like to see the carillon become more of a community asset. Although housed in St. Stephen's because that was the most logical place for it, Kennedy is quick to say the carillon belongs to the town.

"It's the Cohasset Carillon at St. Stephen's," says Kennedy. Currently, the carillon is played on major holidays and special village events, but would like to have more people aware of the unique instrument.

"It is truly one of the finest instruments in the world, we're so lucky to have it," says Kennedy.

To find out more about the Cohasset Carillon summer recital series, please call St. Stephen's at 781-383-1083.

Cohasset Carillon fun facts

- It is the largest by number of bells in New England (57).
- It has a range sufficient to permit the performance of every piece composed for carillon.
- The lowest and largest bell weighs 11,280 pounds and sounds the note 'G.'
- The smallest bell sounds the note 'E' and weighs 29 pounds.
- President Calvin Coolidge came to Cohasset to hear the bell in 1925.

The carillon at St. Stephen's was given as gift to the town from Jane W. Bancroft in memory of her mother Jessie M. Barron.

"Everyone has an explosive moment," said White, a moment where everything changes and it could happen at any time. For some, it's the day they learn they can't have children. For others, it is the moment the war begins. Or the hurricane hits. For White, it was the second a landmine ripped through his leg while hiking through Israel with college friends.

White's "'I Will Not Be Broken' weaves in his own story of survivorship with true stories of survivors from across the world.

"It's the survivor wisdom for everyday America," he said. "It captures the survivor strength, wisdom and hope."

He hopes readers will take in the stories and be inspired by them. "I want them to think, if these survivors can do what they are doing, perhaps I, too, can overcome my particular problem."

White said the survivors' stories he talked to for the book all have some distance from their tragedy allowing them to have a perspective on the "explosive moment" that changed their lives. White says the years between gives survivors a sense of where they were and how they have gotten to right now.

"In your victimized moment, your whole life is turned upside down," said White.

Although White does not make light of the survivors' worst time, he chooses to focus on what happens after the very worst.

"Violence and war don't seem to be abating, the question always is how do we respond," said White, offering staggering statistics including there has been 250 major conflicts since World War II, 40 wars are raging right now and more than 80 million in 80 countries have been victims of armed conflict, genocide, torture and terror.

Despite the terrible events, refusing to stay a victim is essential, White says.

"The Survivor's Pledge is 'I will not be a victim, I will rise above, I will give back to the community and I will change the world, including my own,'" said White. Victims of the Holocaust, genocide, systematic rape, refugees are among those who have taken the pledge and followed through.

The essence of "I Will Not Be Broken" coincides with White's on-going work with Survivor Corps.

"It's how to teach people not to get stuck in the past, but to look to the future and lead happy and peaceful lives," said White. By sharing stories of survivorship in his book, White hopes to further the global network of survivors.

The vision of Survivor Corps is to enable a victim-free world where survivors of inhumanity and violence triumph over tragedy. To enable a world where thousands and then millions of injured people are rebuilding their lives and thriving as leaders in their own communities, raising their voices for peace.

Survivor Corps has created a global network of people helping each other to overcome war and violence. By working together they aim to rise above injuries and give back to the community. They have trained survivor leaders in more than 40 war-torn countries.

What started in the mid-1990s as Landmine Survivors Network has grown and made great strides toward a landmine-free world. The group worked with the late Princess Diana and shared in the 1997 Nobel Peace Prize awarded to the International Campaign to Ban Landmines. Stockpiled landmines in the tens of millions have been destroyed. The landmine casualty rate has gone down dramatically since the 1990s from an annual death toll of 30,000 deaths to a number between 5,000 and 10,000. A total of 150 countries, notably not the United States, have signed a treaty to ban anti-personnel landmines.

"Our first vision was to enable a mine-free world and we are on our way," said White.

Along the way the common thread in talking to landmine survivors was losing a limb was not the hardest struggle; it was losing their place in the world. Over 650 million people around the world have a disability, 500 million of those have no legal rights — the majority end up abused and living in poverty.

Survivor Corps was born to promote a barrier-free world. On that front, they have made significant strides, said White. Last month the Rights of People with Disabilities — the most comprehensive human rights treaty ever negotiated was entered into international law by the United Nations.

In the US, Survivor Corps is beginning a new effort to help veterans coming home from the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan struggling to re-integrate into society. Some war wounds are visible, like the 30,000 physically wounded, but many of the soldiers' wounds are invisible. Survivor Corps is creating a national network of veterans to connect people to each other and to the professional help they need.

"I like to think this is one of Cohasset's reaches into the world. I've always been grateful for the hometown support and I encourage people to get involved," said White.

Hanna Somantics class offered

Pain & Mobility Clinic at Jade Forest will offer a learning event in Hanna Somatics designed for athletes and those seeking to improve organization and control of their bodies. The clinic will take place from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., on Monday, June 23.

The workshop will be led by John Loupos, certified. Hanna Somatic educator and founder of the Pain & Mobility Clinic at Jade Forest Kung Fu/ Tai Chi on Route 3A, Cohasset. Fee to attend is $30. Attendees should wear loose comfortable clothing. Call ahead to pre-register at 781-383-6822 or visit the Web site at painandmobility.com.

Hanna Somatics represents an approach to neuromuscular intelligence in that it fosters improved body control and proprioceptive efficiency. Hanna Somatics accomplishes this either directly via one-on-one clinical sessions, or through simple movement patterns that are designed to improve or restore sensorimotor communications pathways that may have become compromised via trauma, stress or overwork.

The class will focus on learning to control the core. Sensing and controlling one's core is key both to optimal body performance and to the avoidance of injuries. This learning event will not entail fitness or conditioning workout-type exercises. Instead, participants will learn to incrementally increase their sense of voluntary control of muscles comprising the core by following along with a series of movement sequences.

The Curves Stretch Circuit enables you to stretch without ever having to get down on the floor.

OPINION

EDITORIAL

'Tis the Season

Graduations from high school and college. Warm weather. Sunshine. Summer vacation.

There is a lot to celebrate this time of year.

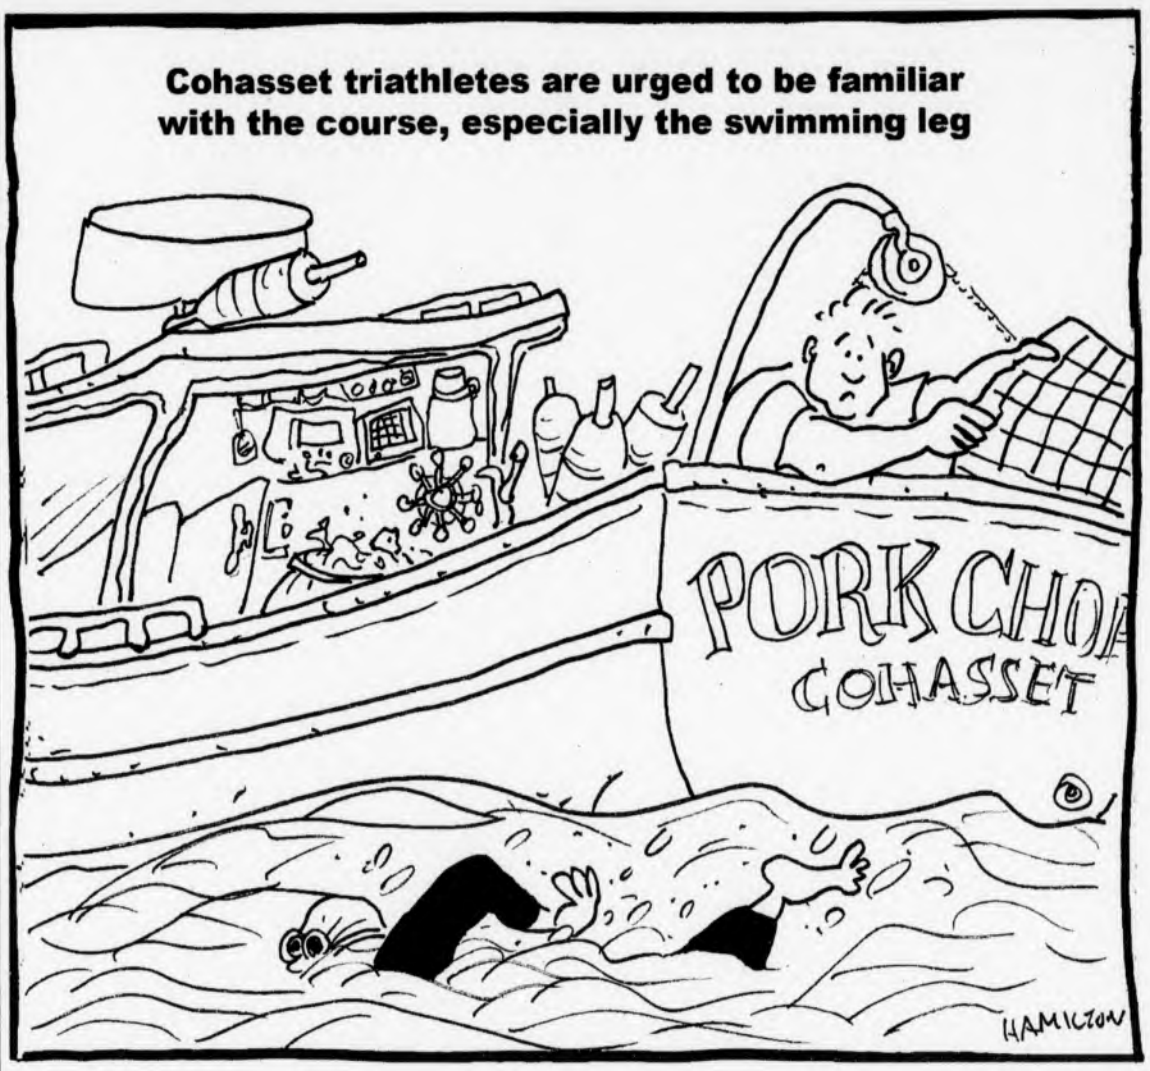
But some teenagers and young adults think that celebrating is a synonym for partying with alcohol.

The police log over the past couple of weeks has been reflecting that fact. Some Cohasset teens have been following this all-too-familiar pattern.

For the record, all arrests of anyone aged 17 or older are printed in the police log that runs in the paper every week.

In recent years, we have not been repeating the names of those arrested in the "police beat" on page 3 that provides a narrative synopsis of arrests and other police incidents over the past week. We think, unless it is a felony arrest or major accident or incident, then having one's name appear in the paper twice for the same thing is not necessary.

Over the weekend during a single incident, police took 12 people ages 19-21 into protective custody. Another 15 were released to a parent or responsible adult. The party-host, who is 19, is facing several charges. In this case, most of those in attendance were from Hingham, which only demonstrates the issue of minors partying with alcohol knows no residential boundaries.



Cohasset police are taking a tough stance when young people mix alcohol with automobiles. Those "kids" are very likely to face arrest and criminal proceedings.

We can only hope that parents are having some tough talks with their children.

Many parents remember drinking as teens and some may consider it as a foregone conclusion that "kids will be kids" when it comes to alcohol.

It is sad but they may be right in many cases. However, we can only hope that as adults, if we keep harping on the dangers and tragedy that could result from underage drinking – that some of the warnings will sink in. The heartache that can result from mixing alcohol with minors is beyond words.

Let's face it: alcohol is a major problem in our society for nearly all ages. What a shame that so many start so young.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Heartfelt thanks for Relay support

TO THE EDITOR:

To all Relay For Life volunteers, participants and supporters

This past weekend the 12th successful Relay for Life, the signature fundraiser of the American Cancer Society, took place at Cohasset High School. This event brings together participants from Hingham, Hull, Cohasset and Scituate and inspires a sense of community, camaraderie and hope always permeates the event from start to finish. Hope is the catchword of Relay, because hope is what it's all about; the hope that one day we will be free from the fear of this terrible disease, that our children will grow up in a world where cancer is no longer fatal.

I would like to thank the many volunteers who contributed to this event. As always I am grateful for the commitment of the team captains who provided enthusiastic leadership and their team members whose hard work raised thousands of dollars from our generous supporters. Thanks also to our local business sponsors who go above and beyond to support this event, the local restaurants that provided chowder, desserts, coffee and tea to the Taste of the Relay, and the Cohasset Football Team and the Hull Girl Scouts who helped with organization and set-up. The Town of Cohasset was exceptional in providing its facilities for the event and their employees who helped make it a safe event for all who attended, and the Second Congregational Church of Cohasset who generously provided the use of the church meeting rooms for our team captain meetings.

Finally, my sincere gratitude to the superb planning committee, without which this event would never have been possible. Their incredible effort, loyalty and passion for the cause goes beyond words.

Matt Deveney Memorial Concert, a hit!

To the Editor:

I just wanted to take a moment to thank each and every person who helped to make our first annual Matt Deveney Memorial Concert a smashing success.

For those of you who were unable to attend, let me paint a little picture. On Saturday, June 7th, guests enjoyed a peaceful and picturesque summer night on the Charles, watched the sunset as they visited with friends, listened to an outstanding performance by Grateful Dead cover band Playin' Dead, and gave generously by purchasing balloons or bidding on some of our awesome silent auction items. We chilled and jammed at the best outdoor venue on the Charles River, the Museum of Science Washburn Pavilion.

We received $26,723 from over 300 individual donors. Special thanks to everyone for your kind and extremely generous donations. Thanks to our corporate donors who contributed items for our silent auction and raffle.

Sincerest thanks for your support of our family and the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute. Matt would have been floored by this incredible show of support. Thanks for helping us to remember a wonderful guy with a big heart.

If you would like to contribute, please make your check payable to the Matt Deveney Memorial Fund and mail c/o Elizabeth Deveney, 664 Gallivan Blvd, Dorchester, MA 02124.

We are penciled in for next year. Hope to see you there.

Collection to benefit service personnel

Members of First Parish Unitarian Universalist Church in Cohasset have recently learned that military personnel seriously injured in Iraq are airlifted to the Balad Air Base Hospital where they are triaged and stabilized before being sent to Germany and then eventually home. These men and women are picked up from the field without any personal items or civilian clothing. Flight doctors say these soldiers really want to travel and arrive home wearing their own clothing, not military fatigues or hospital pajamas. Church members have been asked if they could supply clothes and personal items that would be distributed to these men and women, injured in the service to the country. Help from the community is being asked to collect clothing to help meet these needs.

The list, for both men and women, include: underwear, bras, socks, flip-flops, shirts, pants, belts, toothbrushes, toothpaste and deodorant.

The clothing should be new, basic and comfortable, and in all sizes. Think loose, cargo-style pants and polo-type shirts. Both winter and summer clothes are needed.

There will be a collection center in the Parish House of First Parish in Cohasset, 23 North Main St., for any items people might want to drop off to help with this effort.

Checks to help with shipping would also be appreciated. Make checks out to First Parish in Cohasset and note Balad Hospital.

Call Pat Baird at 781-383-6997 for more information.

Crossing controls, gate arms adjusted

MAKING TRACKS

TOM GRUBER & MARK BRENNAN

Greenbush hot off the press — This week we had a conversation with an MBTA representative about their ongoing work to fine-tune their crossing controls. Our emergency forces have complained about long delays at the North Main Street crossing (near the Cohasset Golf Club). The MBTA has recently adjusted the computer control system for the crossing gates to reduce the "gate down" time a bit. From our standpoint, every second that we can reduce the gate-down time is important when, potentially, a life hangs in the balance of an emergency vehicle run.

Another spot where the police have had numerous calls regarding apparent gate equipment problems is at the Pleasant Street crossing. The situation has been that the gates appear to be in the "up" position, but the bells and lights sometimes are still active. Actually, what happens is quite simple. When the gates are in the "up" position they activate a small switch that confirms that the gate is "up" and tells the crossing computer to shut off the bells and lights. If for some reason, the gate arm does not activate the switch, the bells and lights will continue until the gate is manually pushed into its final upright position, which operates the switch.

Not only is this an inconvenience for everyone waiting at the crossing and for the police, but it detains a police cruiser from its regular duty until the MBTA arrives to check out the system. Fortunately, this week the MBTA mentioned that they are replacing the switch contacts at this crossing, which hopefully will reduce these incidents.

Greenbush article error — Last week your Greenbush scribe, in his haste to email his article to the Mariner, inadvertently published an old ridership survey.

Please keep in mind that the 178 count includes four bicycles. (A great thing to see!)

Other Greenbush Project Information — This week, Cashman, Balfour, Beatty (CBB) had their fence subcontractor add a small section of fence that was missing at the Scituate end of the Town Parking Lot. This fence connects the fence up on the ledge above the parking lot to the decorative picket fence along the railroad tracks.

Lower King Street/Route 3A update — The MBTA's contractor will begin the project to widen Route 3A at Lower King Street next week. In fact, we noticed CBB adding Jersey barriers this week in preparation for the construction. This part of the Greenbush Project will add a right turn lane into Lower King Street for northbound traffic and a left turn lane for southbound traffic. We'll keep you posted as this work progresses.

North Scituate update — We received the following bulletin from the Town of Scituate on Wednesday, June 18th. We thought we'd pass it on to you… Henry Turner Bailey will reopen after final paving and line stripping on Friday morning (the 20th). All detour signs will be removed to redirect traffic. Some construction barriers will remain in place to protect a utility pole that National Grid has yet to remove.

Country Way will be closed shortly after HTB is opened. Barriers will be placed just north of Wilder Brothers entrance and south of the driveway belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Ford. Detour signs will direct traffic to go around the site via HTB to 3A to Beechwood. Mordecai Lincoln will be used by local residents and emergency vehicles only.

Little Harbor Project — The Little Harbor Project continues with pressure testing of the newly installed sewer lines. This is a very important step that verifies the integrity of the lines. Obviously, this testing must be completed before paving can begin. Originally, testing was to be done with air under pressure. (Water cannot be used for pressure testing due to the fact that these lines do not have a uniform slope that would allow them to completely fill with water. If they can't be completely filled with water, they will contain air, which will compress and give incorrect pressure testing results.) We have just learned in cases when the location of the air leakage can't be easily determined, trace elements can be introduced into the air. These trace elements are chosen such that can they easily be detected by sensitive above ground measuring equipment. Once the location of the leak is found, the culprit can be found and fixed.

Hot dogs, peanuts and…

HENSHAW

TOM HENSHAW

Here's a baseball statistic I'll bet even Steve Buckley doesn't know.

A man named Myron O'Brisky once estimated that he sold 15 million hot dogs and 10 million bags of peanuts to fans of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Steelers in 50 years at the concession stand.

And he did it without resorting to steroids, too.

O'Brisky's mark will probably stand longer than Joe DiMaggio's 56-game hitting streak since hot dogs, peanuts and Cracker Jacks are being crowded out of a lot of ball parks by an assortment of foods that would make P. J.'s Country House jealous.

How can a mere hot dog, even one doused with mustard, relish and onions, compete with the Schmitter — a sandwich of fried salami, steak, three slices of cheese, fried onions, tomatoes and a special sauce — a staple served at Citizens Bank Park, home of the Philadelphia Phillies?

Or the Cha Cha Bowl served in the center field promenade at AT&T Park, where the San Francisco Giants play and the fans apparently lust for blackened chicken, pineapple salsa, rice and beans. At least in the centerfield promenade they do.

The ball park menu has come a long way since that historic day in 1901 when Harry Stevens, the concessionaire in New York's Polo Grounds, decided it was too cold for ice cream, so he boiled some sausages, put them into rolls and sent them into battle.

They were called "tube steak" at first, but Tad Dorgan, a cartoonist for the New York Journal, coined the derisive term "hot dog" and it stuck.

Perhaps the most unusual ball park menu, detailed in Dan Schlossberg's "The Baseball Catalogue," was that offered by the Hawaii Islanders, a Triple A club in Honolulu, where haloes alohas were often outnumbered by fans of Japanese descent. Perhaps the most unusual ball park menu, detailed in Dan Schlossberg's "The Baseball Catalogue," was that offered the Hawaii Islanders, a Triple A club in Honolulu, where haoles were often outnumbered by fans of Japanese descent.

They could sample the "saimin," a noodle cooked in shrimp broth and topped with slices of Chinese barbequed pork and green onions, or "manpua," a steamed yeast dough stuffed with sweet pork and onions and eaten like a hamburger.

Safeco Field in Seattle, home of the original Japanese all star Ichiro Suzuki, hasn't gone that far yet, but you can get sushi in the form of a spicy tuna roll called an "ichi-roll" at Mariner games.

With Dice-K Matsuzaka on the mound, can Fenway Park be far behind?

Not surprisingly, the food served at ball parks often reflects the ethnic makeup of the city or region, like the pierogies, those potato- and cheese-filled dumplings of Eastern European origin, that are available at Jacobs Field, where the Cleveland Indians play.

Or the Rocky Mountain oysters served to gourmets at Coors Field in Denver, home of the Colorado Rockies. All I can say about them is that they are cut in half and deep-fried and they're not like our oysters at all.

Whatever, how long will it be before the lines of baseball's anthem that urge you to "buy me some peanuts and Cracker Jacks" will be replaced with "buy me some pierogies and a Cha Cha Bowl … ?"

HEALTH NOTES

Treats Pond, a new outlook

By Steve Bobo
SPECIAL TO THE MARINER

On Monday night, yet again, Treats Pond was discussed at a flood control workshop and the meeting revealed an interesting variation of existing prevailing opinion on the entire Treats Pond issue. The moderator was Dan Coughlin, the CEO of the Town's contractor for its Flood Control Master Plan. Dan presented a comprehensive plan for uplands mitigation projects as well as a drainage plan for reducing the impact of flooding from so called 10-year rain events like the 2006 Mothers Day storm, of which the Town has endured three in the past six years. The drainage plan included practices like holding ponds, rain gardens and other measures aimed at slowing the passage of stormwater to its eventual destination, the wetlands on the North side of Atlantic Avenue, Treats Pond and finally Sandy Cove through a 100-year-old drainage pipe, access and maintenance of which has been recently been blocked by land owners claiming that easements for maintenance by the Town in effect since the 1970's were no longer valid. According to Sam Wakeman, Chairman of the Cohasset Advisory Committee, the bill to the Town for this plan covering the watershed of which Atlantic Avenue is a part would be in the range of $3 million. Lack of the ability for the Town to conduct routine maintenance of the Treats Pond drainage has caused flooding of houses and inundated yards and driveways in the Whitehead area at intervals over the past several years.

In addition to uplands mitigation and the creation of several holding ponds, as well as improved drainage, Dan's comprehensive and well detailed plan involved discharging treated stormwater through a saltwater marsh into a culvert entering Cohasset's harbor at the intersection of Howard Gleason Road, Atlantic Avenue and Margin Street. This element of the plan was strenuously attacked by the owner of the marsh, Harbor Health Committee members and others including a delegation representing the lobstermen in Town on the basis that the harbor is rapidly being ruined by excessive stormwater. To add yet another source would be wrong.

Dan's presentation was followed by a talk by one of those phenomena, which only a small town can grow. A private citizen, a maverick with no particular reason to get involved but love of the Town and a willingness to spend endless hours in working for it, Jim Drysdale made a half hour Power Point presentation summarizing the results of his research on Treats Pond substantiated by documentation never heretofore brought to light, and which pointed to a much less costly and equally viable solution to the Treats Pond problem at a greatly reduced cost to the Town. Moreover, the solution involved discussions with Representative Delahunt that may eventually result in some State or Federal support for the stormwater mitigation efforts going on in the Atlantic Avenue watershed. I have no way to confirm the accuracy of Drysdale's data, other than to report that it seems correct; adequately and accurately portraying the current situation with respect to Treats Pond. Jim's entire presentation and its supporting data was left with the Town manager, and so, is in official hands and in the public domain.

The present information seems sufficient for the Town to make an informed decision about Treats Pond and supply those implementing the Town's flood control master plan with appropriate instructions.

What is somewhat disturbing is the apparent secrecy and lack of information in the possession of the public and responsible Town officials about the full range of reasonable options for stormwater mitigation in the Atlantic Avenue watershed. The fact that a citizen had to go to the trouble and effort to piece together a full picture of the situation, something for which the Town was paying its own legal staff a not insignificant sum of money with few results should bother us voters and we should make our displeasure known at the next opportunity.

The past year may go down as the greatest ever for New England sports fans — an embarrassment of riches our children will view through a nostalgic haze the way we remember the first moon walk. For those of you currently being raised by coyotes who may not be aware, the Sox won the World Series, the Celtics won the NBA Championship, and the Patriots capped off a perfect season with another incredible last-second Superbowl win. (It's okay to fudge a little when you're talking to coyote people.)

And it's not over yet. Another dramatic and unforgettable sports moment will happen a little after 8 am on Sunday, June 29th, right here in Cohasset. A woman in a wetsuit will look out at the ocean off Sandy Beach, think of the husband she lost in that water last year, then somehow find the will to run forward, dive in, and swim the same course in her first triathlon.

It's moments of courage like these that elevate athletics to a window into the divine. The starting leg of Karen Lyons' race, and the sight of her running across the finish line an hour or so later, are two you will not want to miss.

Treat of solutions

Townwide plan addresses Atlantic Ave. flooding

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Town Meeting said it needed more information, more data, more review into the Treat's Pond flooding problem and the Army Corps of Engineers proposed solution.

On Monday night, over 30 residents came out to hear a second opinion on the Treat's Pond/Atlantic Avenue flooding problem — and hear what another engineering firm believed could solve them. As part of the town-wide flood control master plan, Dan Coughlin, principal engineer for Coughlin Environmental Services, gave his preliminary findings and proposed solutions.

Coughlin made clear right away his primary purpose was not to reclaim Treat's Pond as a saltmarsh, unlike the Army Corps of Engineers proposed project, nor did his project scope allow him to evaluate the engineering behind the Army Corps' proposed project.

Coughlin said there were significant issues in addressing the Treat's Pond flooding — access limitation, private property issues and severe tidal restrictions on the outfall. Although it has been said the Treat's Pond issue is a private property issue, Coughlin said the town has to play a role in the solution.

"It is the town's obligation to provide access for health and safety vehicles in the event of an emergency," said Coughlin.

Relative to the other major flooding area the Jacob's Meadow watershed, which is 860 acres, the Treat's Pond watershed is estimated at 69 acres. It includes the lower part of Beach Street (excluding Mohawk Way), Atlantic Avenue both on the Sandy Cove and Meadow Lane sides extending down to Whitehead Road.

Right now, Treat's Pond is used to capture all the water coming from the watershed. In a significant rainstorm, the pond fills up quickly and, with nowhere else to go, the water floods neighboring properties and Atlantic Avenue. The situation is further exacerbated if the sole drainage outlet (to Sandy Cove) is blocked by sand.

"(Right now), it doesn't take much of storm to start generating flooding," said Coughlin.

At some points the terrain has a steep slope and stormwater on those portions of the watershed goes to the lower system. To further aggravate the situation is Cohasset's infamous ledge.

In order to begin to address the problems, Coughlin is proposing a multi-pronged approach. Although he said his methods would not eradicate the flooding, his proposed solutions would make their occurrence less often and less severe. A stormwater interceptor pipe, the creation of two larger detention basins, the installation of 32 best management practices (raingardens, swales, small detention basins) are some of the options he proposed.

First, Coughlin is proposing the installation of a stormwater interceptor pipe to run along Atlantic Avenue, beginning just north of Treat's Pond and ending at the head of the "Pocket Marsh" near the intersection of Howard Gleason Road and Atlantic Avenue. The interceptor pipe will capture roughly half the water (approximately 500,000 gallons) in a major rainstorm (normally headed to Treat's Pond) and divert it to this pipe.

A detention pond at the outfall would allow for water storage and infiltration, then a dike would meter out the water.

"The utilization of (best management practices) and metering out the water through existing saltmarsh should enhance pollution attenuation prior to harbor discharge," said Coughlin. A culvert at Margin Street, which connects the harbor to the pocket marsh, is in bad shape and Coughlin advised it should be replaced.

The estimated cost to install the pipe is $1.1 million. Drawbacks include an elaborate permitting process, some freshwater flow into the Cove (see related sidebar) and private property access issues.

Two larger detention basins are proposed in wooded areas near Beach Street. Together, Coughlin believes the town could gain 360,000 cubic feet of water storage.

In addition, Coughlin suggested implementing 32 best management practices throughout the watershed to improve infiltration and ground water recharge as well as cleaning the water. Estimated cost is $380,000.

As a final suggestion, but not one of high priority, was the installation of small stormwater pumping station near Treat's Pond.

During the discussion portion of the night, several expressed they were concerned the use of the Sandy Cove drainage outlet was not mentioned as a possible solution to alleviate the flooding. Sam Wakeman, current chairman of the Advisory Committee, said he was surprised the existing outfall was not talked about.

Coughlin said he did recommend the continued maintenance and regular clearing of the drain, but did not see the Sandy Cove outlet as a lasting solution.

"From my perspective, I'm trying to find a solution to the flooding problems that will always be there," said Coughlin. Utilizing the pipe on Sandy Cove runs the constant risk of being plugged by sand, seaweed or other debris, "it is not a reliable solution for flood prevention."

In the short term, Coughlin recommended the town have more data collected on the pollution levels of Treat's Pond to be used as baseline data. Very little water quality testing has been done on the pond, Coughlin said just one wet weather sample was taken by the Army Corps. He suggested seasonal, wet weather and dry weather samples be taken over a period of months.

"There is a very limited amount of data and it is hard to make a professional opinion with such a small sampling data set," said Coughlin.

The information may be useful for comparison purposed once the area is on town sewer and/or flooding solutions and BMPs are implemented, said Coughlin.

In light of suggestions outlined in Coughlin's flood control master plan study, he suggested the town go back to the Army Corps of Engineers and ask them to re-assess their proposed project.

The Flood Control Master Plan is still being drafted. Another workshop yet to be schedules is expected to address other areas suffering from flooding. In the next two months, Coughlin expects to finish his draft master plan and submit it to the town. A final plan is expected by the end of the summer.

Freshwater would hurt harbor, citizens say

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

Following the nearly two-hour presentation by Dan Coughlin, the floor was opened to questions and answers from the audience.

Concerns were raised about allowing more freshwater to entire the already struggling harbor ecosystem, as well as a fully functioning saltmarsh environment in a pocket marsh off of Border Street.

Charles Humphreys of 24 Atlantic Ave. and owner of the pocket marsh spoke vehemently against bringing any freshwater into the marsh or the harbor.

"It's an impossible thought," said Humphreys, adding it couldn't be right to move thousands of gallons of freshwater into a saltmarsh. "This full flush everyday saltmarsh can't be eaten up in a drainage project."

Coughlin said the project was a balancing act and although some freshwater flows may be added, the benefit for public health and safety may outweigh the detriments.

Others, like Peter Whittemore of Elm Court, Paul Pattison of Elm Street and Selectman Karen Quigley (speaking as a private citizen) agreed with Humphreys that more freshwater to the harbor could be disastrous.

"To switch watersheds is unnatural," said Whittemore.

"It is unconscionable to even consider putting freshwater into the harbor. We need to stop thinking of the harbor as just a dumping ground for freshwater, right now when we don't know what to do with it we put it in the once thriving, beautiful harbor," said Pattison, a lifelong resident, lobstermen and shellfish constable for the town.

Quigley said she along with the Harbor Health Committee and the harbor lobstermen are vehemently opposed to adding more freshwater — and stormwater pollution — to the harbor.

Jacqueline Dormitzer of 111 Atlantic Ave. said there needed to be some hard data to show what effect the additional influx of freshwater would have on the harbor's health and marine life.

Resident has own Treat's Pond solutions

By Nancy White
NWHITE@CNC.COM

It has been evident throughout the Treat's Pond saga that not all town residents are on the same page when it comes to the solutions for restoring the pond and the flooding. That was very clear on Monday night when a private citizen and vocal opponent of the Army Corps of Engineers Treat's Pond project proposal, Jim Drysdale, was given the floor.

Armed with a PowerPoint presentation, Drysdale proposed his own alternative solutions to the Treat's Pond flooding issue.

Drysdale was upfront about his lack of professional credentials when it came to hydrology; his career was spent as a medical school professor with little background in hydrology. However, he said he has gathered hundreds of pages of data and information concerning the Army Corps of Engineers Treat's Pond project through a request under the Freedom of Information Act.

Drysdale said the project for Treat's Pond got its start in 2003. An open meeting was held with a half a dozen interested town and community groups to introduce the Army Corps project. Representatives from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) and Army Corps offered simple solutions to the flooding problem: clean out the culverts that run along Atlantic Avenue, retrofit the existing pipe with a septic system type pipe to allow water infiltration and cleaning before reaching the outfall, get rid of the pipe altogether to create a stream, or extend pipe 50 feet down beach or below low water mark.

After that, the project fell off the town's radar a bit, but several meetings were held between the Army Corps and the residents of the Sandy Cove Association. In one of the documents he got through the information act, a Sandy Cove resident listed as an unacceptable option as a "visible manmade structure on the beach."

He said the meetings were "secret" and done out of the public's eye.

Drysdale talked a bit about the town's easement to Treat's Pond and the drainage pipe granted by Elizabeth Bigelow in 1964. Currently, a wooden gate blocks the town's legal easement access to Sandy Cove. In his review of the deeds, he believed the town did have the legal right to Sandy Cove via a private drive off Atlantic Avenue.

"It seems to be the town has the easement and the easement is referred to in each of the property's deed and the (Sandy Cove South) Association's deed," said Drysdale.

Drysdale offered two options for the town to consider, both involving the existing pipe.

The first suggestion was to raise and/or extend the existing drainage pipe, fit it with a flapper or cap, conceal it with rocks for aesthetic reasons and maintain it with a shovel.

The second option he proposed was to shorten the pipe to above the high tide mark, stabilize the streambed, conceal the pipe outfall in grass and maintain it with a rake.

"This beach has always had a pipe," said Drysdale. "It doesn't have to be a hideous structure."

To implement these solutions, Drysdale said the town would need to enforce its deeded easement to Treat's Pond and the drainage pipe on Sandy Cove. Cleaning the culverts and modifying the existing drain Drysdale estimated to cost $5,000. Then, once the flooding issues have subsided he claimed a state agency would be willing to rent the town equipment to significantly rid Treat's Pond of phragmites.

"If we get town and stormwater agencies to work together, I think we can find a solution beneficial to all," said Drysdale. He suggested perhaps the federal money could be re-appropriated to the Jacob's Meadow flooding problem.

Although a portion of the audience left following Coughlin's presentation and discussion session, supporters gave a round of applause following Drysdale's presentation.

Road closings for Cohasset Triathlon

The following temporary road closures are part of the overall traffic safety plan for the Cohasset Triathlon at Sandy Beach on Sunday morning, June 29. These closures are necessary to provide safety for race participants and spectators as well as providing an orderly flow of vehicle traffic around the race route. Although residents impacted by these closures will be allowed access to and from their properties when necessary, everyone is encouraged to plan ahead and avoid using vehicles in the race area. Check the times and locations of closures to see how they may impact travel plans the morning of Sunday, June 29.

During road closures, the best route to take to go to Scituate would be Route 3A. Access 3A by way of Route 228, Hull Street; Forest Avenue/Lower King Street, where there will be a police officer present to assist at 3A; Sohier Street and Pond Street. This is best because Border Street will close temporarily outbound toward Scituate, and both North and South Main streets will only be open for one way traffic from the Scituate line to the Hingham line during race time.

Those attending church services during race time should allow a little extra time. If traveling to St. Stephen's Church or Second Congregational Church from the north side of town, access to the common will be from Depot Court. Access to Depot Court is Ripley Road by way of Jerusalem Road/North Main Street or 3A/Sohier Street. Ripley Road can also be accessed from Pleasant Street. Those traveling from the south side of town will be able to use North and South Main streets. Those traveling to St. Anthony Church can take Summer Street from the harbor, Spring Street from Pond Street/Cushing Road, or South Main Street from the Scituate line.

Contact Cohasset Police Department at trafficquestions@cohassetpolice.com for any assistance with travel plans.

No parking zones:

Cohasset Village: South Main Street, between Brook Street and Elm Street, even numbered side of the road, from 7 to 10 a.m.

Cohasset Common: North Main Street, between Depot Court and Highland Avenue, even numbered side of the road, from 7 to 10 a.m.

Hearing slated on Aquarion water rate hike

By Carol Britton Meyer
CMEYER@CNC.COM

Aquarion Water Company has filed an application with the Massachusetts Department of Public Utilities requesting an approximate $3.1 million, or an overall 24.8 percent, increase in water service revenues.

Customers in Hingham, Hull, North Cohasset, and Norwell will have an opportunity to comment on the proposed rate increase at a public hearing in July.

The Hingham selectmen voted recently to intervene in the case – that is, "to get involved and present legal arguments as to why the rate hike is not justified," said Selectman Laura Burns.

It has been seven years since the Company last increased its water rates, stated Aquarion Sr. Vice President of Operations Larry Bingaman in a letter the company is sending to all of its customers. "When the proposed rates are expected to go into effect, investments totaling $21.4 million will have been made for water utility infrastructure improvements since 2001 in such areas as increased water supply and replacement of aging and undersized pipes, as well as other needed water system enhancements."

The MA DPU will hold a public hearing for Aquarion customers in all four towns on Wed., July 16, at 7 p.m. in the Hull High School auditorium at 180 Main St. Directions to Hull High School are included with the letter.

"We recognize there is never a good time to raise water rates, and no one is happy when prices do increase. We held off as long as possible."
— Larry Bingaman, Aquarion

Aquarion's request for a rate increase will be thoroughly reviewed by the MA DPU. No change in water rates can be made within the Department's approval.

Bingaman is hopeful that the process will be completed and the new rates effective before the end of this year.

If the proposed rates are approved by the MA DPU, the average residential water bill for customers in all four towns, using an average of 175 gallons daily, would increase from $1.67 to $2.03 per day.

"We recognize there is never a good time to raise water rates, and no one is happy when prices do increase. We held off as long as possible," Bingaman said. "But to put things in perspective, a 20-ounce bottle of water at a local convenience story costs between $1.19 and $1.29."

Customers are invited to provide comments at the hearing or in writing via email to the MA DPU by 5 p.m. Fri., July 18, addressed to dpu.efiling@state.ma.us and the hearing officer, carol.pieper@state.ma.us. Written comments may be sent to: Carol Pieper, Hearing Officer, Dept. of Public Utilities, One South Station, Boston, MA 02110. (Telephone number: (617) 305-3500.) Refer to Docket D.P.U. 08-27 in all correspondence. For further information about the hearing or approval process, contact Pieper.

Information pertaining to the subject docket is posted on the MA DPU's website:

http://db.state.ma.us/dpu/qorders/frmDocketFind.asp.

More information about the rate application is posted on Aquarion's website:

www.aquarion.com/massachusetts.html.

Customers may also contact the Aquarion Customer Service Center at 1-800-732-9678 with questions or for assistance with water service needs.
